MANY DROWNED IN DYKE BREAK

Loosed Flood Waters Thunder Down Upon Sleeping Italian Villages and Feared 300 Lives Lost.

(United Press.)

BERGAMO, Italy, Dec. 1.—Thundering down upon sleeping Italian villages nestled in the Brembana valley, flood waters loosed when the great dam at the foot of Lake Gleno burst early today completely submerging the town of Dezzo and drowned many inhabitants.

A Central News dispatch received in London it is feared 300 lives were lost.

As the survivors, roused from their beds, fled to the hills amid the rising waters, towns for miles around were plunged into darkness as five hydro electric power houses were swept away in ruins.

The flood rushed down the narrow valley, destroying everything in its path. Hundreds of cattle, adding their terrorized bellowing to the harsh noises of the dawn, were carried away on the crest of the water and drowned.

The towns of Gueggio and Teveno were inundated and the flood did not spend its fury until it had swept on so far as Corna.

Property damage was great. Telephone and telegraphic communication was completely destroyed and it was not until nightfall that word of the disaster reached the outside world.

Many Towns Darkened.

Relief was sent from Bergamo this evening—a Red Cross unit and a company of firemen. This ancient cathedral city is in darkness as is Brescia and scores of other towns of the province which drew their electric power from the Lake Gleno dam.

Torrential rains of the past forty-eight hours were responsible for the catastrophe.

Refugees who had fled from the path of the waters suffered tremendous hardships. They were rescued, clinging to vantage points, while the rain fell ceaselessly, adding to the swollen torrent in the valley.

Lake Gleno was an artificial lake, its waters held up by the dam to which five power houses were attached.

Dezzo, whose peasant inhabitants tended cattle in the pleasant valley of the Brembana and the Steriana, lay at the foot of the lake.

Rain fell throughout the night. Dezzo slept.

No Warning of Crash.

Without warning, early today the grea dam gave way, collapsing with a roar like thunder.

Eight million cubic meters of water were loosed upon the defenseless town.

The sturdy power houses were smashed by the rushing flood. Village dwellings were dashed to pieces like matchwood.

The alarm was cried down the valley but not before the flood had drowned many in its path. Humans, animals, and the wreckage that had been Dezzo were carried along on the crest of the rushing wall of water.

Those who had time to escape, sought the hills, a rising flood licking about their feet as they stumbled to safety.

Those who escaped were at work in the fields. Oehers of Dezzo's hundred inhabitants were trapped directly beneath the dam that held back the waters of the artificial mountain reservoir.

Fears were entertained tonight for other towns in northern Italy. The rain fall had not abated and the waters of Laggo maggiore were steadily rising until the city of Pallanza was threatened.

OFFICER IS EXONERATED IN KILLING

Coroner's Jury Holds Deputy Sheriff Al Smith Blameless for Shooting Alleged Blackmailer On Verdon Farm.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., Dec. 1.—A coroner's jury late Saturday afternoon found that Deputy Sheriff Al Smith fired the shot that killed Robert Burdette, 38, Grenola, Kas., alleged blackmailer, during a scuffle between officers and the slain man on the August Hartman farm near Verdon, Friday night.

The jury exonerated Smith.

Burdette and Paul Wanser, also of Grenola, are alleged to have gone to the Hartman farm for the purpose of extorting $800 from the owner, they having called upon him Wednesday night and pretended to be state law enforeement officers. They threatened to prosecute him unless he paid them the money and it was arranged that they should return Friday night. When they appeared Sheriff Albert Young and Deputy Smith were concealed in the house and in attempting to arrest them Burdette was shot.

It was alleged that the shooting was accidental and there was some question as to whether the fatal bullet was from the officer's gun or that of Burdette.

Wanser was arrested. The two men had been shucking corn in the neighborhood.

Gale Swamps Several Boats

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Dec. 1.—Several barges and launches were swamped, others thrown ashore and two schooners damaged in collision during a 40 mile gale which swept Los Angeles harbor here tonight. Departure of many vessels in the harbor was prevented by the storm.

The schooner Speedway was broken from its moorings by the terrific wind and struck the schooner Seqoia, tearing a large hole in the latter's side above the water line. Tugs went to the ship's assistance and towed them to safety.

Several navy launches were swamped. The barge of Vice Admiral Henry A. Wiley went down while attempting to reach the New Mexico. It was later dragged ashore by tugs.

Officers Raid Farm And Take Quantity Of Mash and Booze

Herman Burkhardt, a farmer living about five miles northeast of Emerald, was arrested Saturday night following a raid on his farm by the state and county law enforcement officers.

The officers stated that they found a complete still, four gallons of liquor and a quantity of mash on his place. According to the officers, the still was constructed out of an old tin gasoline tank. "Any liquor made in this still must have been rank poison," said State Sheriff Carroll. "The tin itself would make it poisonous but the solder used in putting it together would make it deadly poison," he said.

George W. Hopperton, Sentenced Last January to Serve One to Five Years For Assault Only Recently Received at Lancaster.

COUNTY ATTORNEY TO RESIST APPLICATION

Bogus "Nobleman" On List to Appear Before State Board at December Meeting—Two Parole Violators Seek Clemency.

Arriving at the state penitentiary about two weeks ago, under sentence of one to five years for felonious assault in Dawes county, George W. Hopperton is to be heard by the board of pardons at its next meeting, December 11, on his application for a pardon. The case promises a bitter contest, with County Attorney F. A. Crites of Chadron here to assist the granting of clemency.

Hopperton was sentenced on January 3 of the present year for an offense committed at Crawford during the summer of 1922, while the railroad shopmen's strike was on there. Owing to the crowded condition of the state prison, he could not be received there until recently. He was supposed to be in the county jail at Chadron, but according to a letter which County Attorney Crites wrote to State Probation Officer Harmon, he "never served a day of his sentence" prior to his entering the penitentiary.

The offense of which Hopperton was convicted was the slugging of Leslie W. Dotson, which took place in Hopperton's pool hall at Crawford. Dotson was suspected of being a railroad agent and strikebreaker. He was said to have been employed by the

LOST MAIL FLIER FOUND UNINJURED

Found By Forest Ranger After Dozen Planes Had Searched In Vain.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 1—Claire K. Vance, United States air mail service aviator, has cheated death again.

Late tonight after hope had practically been given up of finding the aviator alive and after he had been missing more than thirty-six hours, word came to Superintendent W. F. LaFollette of the air mail service that Vance had been found safe in the high Sierras, where he was forced to land far from human habitation.

Vance was found by United States Forest Ranger Gracey after a dozen airplanes had searched all day for trace of the missing flier. Gracey guided Vance to a road and the forest ranger service provided an automobile to rush him with his mail to Colfax where he arrarived late tonight.

The missing aviator reported immediately to Superintendent LaFollette by telephone and told him the story of his miraculous escape from death—the third time that he has cheated the grim reaper in the course of his hazardous daily task.

Loses Visibility.

"I was making good headway above the storm over the mountains late yesterday," Vance told LaFollette, "when suddenly the storm seemed to rise up and meet me. I tried to climb above it, but it was rising faster than I could climb. I lost all visibility in the driving snow and then tried to drop beneath the storm. This proved unsuccessful as the storm was worse at the lower altitudes and I was close to the mountain tops that it was impossible to continue flying at that height.

"Suddenly I came to a small break in the storm and found myself over a valley in the mountains. An open space loomed before me and there was nothing but to try for a landing. I made the landing all right without injury to myself, but the plane was badly smashed. I found that I was far from communication and had no means of getting word of my safety through Plane May Be Lost.

"It was not until Ranger Gracey arrived late today that I knew where I was. He told me I was within two miles of Last Camp, an old mining settlement long since abandoned. The location of the plane is such that I do not believe it would be possible to get it out of the mountains."

Allged Suicilde of Young Colorado Girl Being Investigated

FLORENCE, Colo., Dec. 1.—Adjudged a mental incompetent and sentenced to the home for mental defectives in Grand Junction, little Florence Rosenburg may have been induced to write a suicide note, then been poisoned and hanged to a bedstead in her attic room on November 3.

Working on this theory detectives investigating the case requested exhumation of her body after a coroner's jury had found the suicide note sound.

A. E. Rosenburg, father of the dead girl, today begged with tears in his eyes that the body be left where it is. Rosenburg is in a hospital in Colorado Springs following an automobile accident.

GANGSTERS' WAR RENEWAL FEARED

Police Line Thrown Around Chicago Underworld Following Saturday Clash.

One Dead and Several Injured In Raid On Beer Caravan By Highjackers.

(United Press.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—A long skirmish line of policemen was thrown through Chicago's underworld tonight to prevent renewal of the city's bloody "beer war" of last September, following a "highjackers" raid on a beer caravan near here early today.

Chief of Police Collins fears that the raid will be the signal for the resumptio nof hostilities between rival beer syndicates.

Thomas Keane, 35, was killed, and William "Shorty" Egan, 40, was perhaps fatally wounded intoday's clash. Erwin Triebull, 40, his wife and 2-year-old daughter, were injured when the bandits mistook their automobile for part of the bere caravan and poured a volley of bullets at them. None of the family was seriously injured

There were three trucks in the caravan. As the machines passed Lemont, near here, shotgun and revolver fire burst from the darkness. Several men in two automobiles blocked the road. Egan and Keane, wounded, were taken from the trucks and placed in a bandit car. The driver of the third truck fled. The Triebull machine was nearby and the bandits fired into it. Three of the bandits then drove the trucks away and the others drove away with Egan and Keane. A few moments later the two were thrown into a ditch, where they were found by police. Keane died shortly after being taken to a hospital.

Egan gave information that will lead to the arrest of the "highjackers" police said. Police believe that the affair marks the beginning of an other era of gang warfare and they are making every effort to head it off.

After a few months in Alaska the couple set sail for Africa.

Four times, according to Mrs. Brandeis, her chances of becoming a mother were foiled by her husband who forced her to take medicine of his own concocting. The fifth time the medicine failed.

Brandeis then prepared to frighten his wife so badly, according to the testimony, that the child would not be born.

Former Premier Lloyd-George Continues Whirlwind Campaign.

There will be from 1,200 to 1,30 candidates for 615 seats in the house of commons.

Betting was that the conservative party, headed by Prime Minister Baldwin, will retain a majority of from 33 to 35 over alal parties when the elections are aover.

Despite the whirlwind campaign of David Lloyd-George, heading the re-united liberals, stock exchange gamablers believed the conservaative machine would pull through in good shape.

Political parties over here are highly organized and highly practical.

They know just where they stand and do not fight in districts where they do not concede themselves a chance.

There will be 200 to 300 seats in the elections Thursday for which there will be only two candidates.

FRICKE IS TAKEN ON INDICTMENTS

Says He Settled With Building and Loan Directorate.

Parmele Too Sick For Arraignment at Plattsmouth Saturday.

(Special to The Star.)

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb. Dec. 1. — Sheriff Carroll D. Quinton arrived here at 4:30 p. m. today from Nelson, Neb., where he had taken into custody Carl G. Fricke, charged in indictments returned by the grand jury which closed its sittings here Thursday with embezzling $96,000 from the Livingston Building & Loan association, of which he was secretary and managing officer. Fricke furnished bond in the sum of $2,000 for his appearance in court next Wednesday, when he is to plead to the indictment.

Mr. Fricke stated that he made a full statement with the directors of the building and loan association about a year ago, turning over to them all of his property of every kind and in return being given a release of all indebtedness. Some of those interested are said to have been dissatisfied with this settlement, however, and to have brought about his indictment.

Charles C. Parmele, former president of the Bank of Cass County, who was also indicted and charged with forgery and embezzlement, was to have bene arraigned today, but a motion to continue his case until next Wednesday was sustained, an affidavit being presented showing that he is sick in bed in an Omaha hotel.

Sheriff Carroll D. Quinton, indicted on charges of malfeasance and perjury, was out in the state looking for others against whom true bills had been returned, so he is docketed for arraignment Monday mroning.

When the cases of five other defendants against whom indictments had been returned were called their attorney, A. L. Tidd entered a plea in abatement and hearing on this is set for next Wednesday. Those for whom such plea was entered are County Attorney A. G. Cole, Constable William Grebe, Chief of Police Alvin Jones, Fred A. Holmes and Mrs. Julia Kaufman.

In the plea in abatement it is charged that D. O. Dwyer, special prosecutor appointed by District Judge Begley, was prejudiced and otherwise disqualified and that the indictments were not therefore lawfully procured. A lengthy trial may be required to dispose of this plea. The original bonds of those involved in this action were continued.

PLEADS GUILTY TO BURGLARY; ANOTHER HELD

Edward Hughbank, Colored, Bound Over to Distrinct Court---Part of Loot Is Recovered.

Edward Hughbank, 27, colored, 111 South Fifteenth street, who is alleged to have looted the C. P. Lippert store in Havelock last Wednesday night, pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary when arraigned Saturday afternoon before Justice of the Peace W. T. Stevens and was bound over to district court under bond of $1,000. He was unable to furnish the bond. Jesse Morris, colored, is also accused of participation in the robbery and is in custody at Fairbury.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—The weather outlook for the week beginning Monday follows:

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys: Considerable cloudiness, with occasional snows or rains; colder first of week and frequent alternations of temperature thereafter.

Nebraska: Fair Sunday and Monday; rising temperature Monday and in west portion Sunday.

Kansas: Fair Sunday, colder in southeast portion; Monday fair with rising temperature.

Makes a Confession.

Morris, implicated in Hughbank's confession, was arrested Saturday night by officers in Fairbury. Officer Major Gross left early Sunday morning to bring the man back. Charges of burglary will also be filed against Morris, according to Captaain Walter Anderson.

Hughbank was arrested by Captain Anderson and Officer Gross Saturday morning after he had attempted to dispose on the street of a palar of shoes said to have been stolen from the store. He at first denied connection with the robbery, but later confessed.

The goods stolen, valued at between $200 and $300 was recovered, except for ten pairs of dress shoes which it is alleged Morris took with him to Fairbury. Officers at Fairbury were unable to locate the shoes Saturday night when they arrested Morris.

Police recovered a horsehide fur coat, aa sheepskin coat, a suitcase, a traveling bag, three sweaters, six of the sixteen pairs of shoes stolen, and a dozen pairs of sox.

Tells of Robbery.

Morris and Hughbank, according to the latter's statement, took a street car to Havelock late Wednesday night, intending to take only money.

Wrapping a piece of concrete in a sack to muffle the sound they broke down the back door, he said, remaining in the store about twenty minutes.

They then carried the loot to near Twenty-seventh and Oak streets, where they cached it, remaining here the rest of the night and taking a street car into the city the next morning.

Late Thanksgiving night they went out and carried the loot down to Hughbank's room, where officers recovered a portion of it.

(United Press.)

MOUND CITY, Kas., Dec. 1—Arlene Scott, attractive 19-year old teacher of a country school, and J. Ellison Scott, her uncle by marriage, must stand trial in Linn county court for the murder of the latter's wife.

Judge Edward Smith, after a preliminary hearing in which testimony concerning alleged intimate relations between the girl and her uncle was presented, bound the couple over for trial.

Griffith, attorney general for Kansas, summed up the testimony presented by the prosecution, heard the judge's ruling with complete composure. Scott twitched nervously in his chair. Bond for Arlene was set at $5,000 and for Scott at $10,000.

Both were released immediately and will live at the farm homes of their parents awainting trial.

In the preliminary hearing the state centered almost its entire efforts in attempting to prove Scott was intimate with his wife's niece.

As testimony was presented attacking the girl's moral character, her father attempted to bolster up her spirits but she cried almost constantly. He soothed her by stroking her hair with his rough hand. Her mother, appearing aged and worn, was also at her daughter's side.

Two Called In Vajgrt Murder Trial Prove To Be of Value to the Defendants.

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., Dec. 1.—The defense scored heavily Saturday afternoon in the trial of Adolph Vajgrt and his wife and daughter, Alby, charged with the murder of Antone Lana, farm hand, when two state's witnesses completely nullified their testimony for the state by bringing in additional facts clearly in favor of the defense.

Helmet Fuehring, the first witness, had been on the stand scarcely a minute when he began an adverse characterization of Lana, declaring that Lana had threatened to take the lives of all members of the Vajgrt family.

Says Lana Made Threat.

Fuehring testified that Lana had come to his house September 28 in an intoxicated condition. "I want you to go to Vajgrt's house to be a witness," said Lana, according to Fuehring.

"Why?" Fuehring asked.

"I'm going to shoot that ——," Lana was said to have asserted.

"You don't want to do that or the law will get you," Fuehring said he warned Lana.

"I don't give a damn for the law. I'll kill the whole family and then kill myself. I'll get my six-shooter

Obituary

Helen Doretta Scott.

Helen Doretta Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Scott, born August 8, 1913, in Lincoln, died November 26, 1923. After a battle of a week against diphtheria, little Helen passed away to a better, brighter world, where suffering and sorrow are unknown. Jesus said: "Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Helen was a child of unusual character, a ray of sunshine where ever she went, not only among her little playmates but among her elders as well. Her lovable, sympathetic disposition made for her a host of friends who mourn with her parents the sudden ending of her short life.

MAKING PROGRESS ON NEW CAPITOL

Heat From New Boilers to Be Turned On Soon—Arched Windows In Place.

Heavy wooden forms for two of the large arched windows in the new state capitol, rising above the walls of the main structure, have been put into place on each side of the section running south from the main entrance fronting on Fifteenth street. Stonework and other masonry will be built up around them, and later the ornamental windows will be installed.

These windows will light the interior vestibule and corridor connecting with the central rotunda. The vaulted ceiling will be fifty or sixty feet above the ground level. Similar windows will be placed in the other crosswise sections of the edifice, from which the senate and house chambers and the state library will receive their light.

W. L. Younkin, representing Architect Goodhue, who has supervisory charge of the capitol building operations, expects to have heat from the new boilers recently installed on Capitol square turned into the enclosed part of the new structure within two or three days. This will enable the plastering and other inside work to be carried on regardless of weather, as the windows have been closed up with transparent cloth that lets in the light but keeps out the cold.

SHOW INTEREST AS PRIMARIES DRAWING NEAR

List of Candidates Expected to Grow Rapidly From Now On.

Movement to Bring Out A. J. Weaver For United States Senator.

Prospective candidates for political office in Nebraska are just awakening to the fact that the date of the state primaries is only a little more than four months anead, and that it is time for those who expect to compete for places on therespective tickets to "get a move on." Only a few filings have reached Secretary of State Pool so far but the li st wil probably grow rapidly from now on.

In presidential years the primary comes four months earlier than it does in the off years, and as a result those aspiring for nomination must begin their campaign activities that much sooner. By New Year's day the field will doubtless contain a number of formal entries for some of the principal offices to be fil led.

Roster Up To Date.

Up to date, the roster includes Ford for president on the progressive ticket; Congressman Shallenberger's filing for a fusion nomination, democratic and progressive, in the Fifth district; Oswin Keifer as a republican candidate for congress in the same district; and three candidates for district judge in the Seventh Judicial subdivision of the state.

There are also two announced republican candidates for United States senator—Lieutenant Governor Fred G Johnson of Hastings and C. H. Gustafson of Lincoln—who have not made their formal filings; Governor Bryan is looked upon as a democratic candidate for the same office, though he has not made any positive announcement; A. N. Mathers has given notice that he intends to seek the republican nomination for governor; and R. H. Thorpe will try again for congress in the First district on the g. o. p. ticket.

Trying to Get Weaver In.

A movement is under way at the present time to bring out A. J. Weaver of Falls City for United States senator. Many prominent republicans regard him as the Moses who can lead their party in Nebraska out of the wilderness in which it has been wandering around for a number of years. They believe his personality and prestige would be an asset to their ticket worth thousands of votes at election time.

That is why a considerable number of g. o. p. men have been bombarding Weaver with letters for several weeks past, urging him to become a candidate for the senate. Latest reports are that the Falls City man is giving the matter some consideration, though he has not yet been told anyone he would get into the race. Some of his friends look for developments along this line within the near future.

Are Warm Friends.

There is said to be an understanding within certain circles that, if Weaver decides to run, C. H. Sloan of Geneva will stay out; but that if Weaver is not a candidate Sloan will be. This idea is based chiefly on the fact that the two men are personal friends.

The Weaver boomers take it for granted that Senator Norris has definitely made up his mind not to be a candidate for re-nomination. The big talk they put up for Weaver is that he is well known all over the state, liked by all elements in his own party, and popular generally; that he is not a lawyer nor a banker but a producer, having been engaged for years in the apple growing business; and that as a platform speaker he has no superior in the state.

Demos Getting Ready.

In the democratic camp, it is generally thought that Governor Bryan will go after the senatorial office, while at the same time he may try to get delegates elected to the national convention who would be guided largely by his advice as to where their suport should go for the presidential nomination, and who could be depended on to start a boom for himself in that connection if any opening presented.

A considerable section of the party in Nebraska is not enthusiastic over this prospect, but so far nobody has attempted to block Bryan's senatorial ambition. The disposition seems to be, if he wants to run for that place, to let him go ahead and take his chance of election or defeat in case he gets the nomination. But when it comes to choosing national delegates he will probably not find his plans unopposed.

Will Boost McAdoo.

The McAdoo candidnacy is gaining momentum in a number of states, and without doubt it will be ushed in Nebraska also, whether Governor Bryan approves it or not. South Dakota democrats have already declared for McAdoo, and that is getting pretty close to Nebraska. Ford's name, also, may be filed for president on the democratic ticket, as well as on the progressive.

Governor Bryan, of course, could run for senator and for president both at the same time. That is to say, the law will not permit him to be printed more than once on the slate of his own friends nominated primary ballot. But he can have a slate of his own friends nominated for national delegates and national committeemen.

If the McAdoo supporters or the Ford boosters wi sh to control Nebraska's votes in the national conventin to ut candidates for delegates and national committeeman into the field. They cannot trust alone to the presidential reference vote in the primaries.

West Coast Hard Hit By Heavy Winds

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—The California coast suffered tonight as a result of a high windstorm which has whipped through the state since late Friday night.

Two big ocean freighters were torn from their moorings in San Francisco harbor and washed on to the bay shore.

Two launches tied up in the bay sank after battering against their moorings and others were smashed.

The gale reached fifty miles an hour at several points, according to weather bureau reports. It subsided materially during Saturday afternoon.

VETERAN RAILWAY EMPLOYE RETIRES

C. P. Philbrick of Wymore in Service Fifty-three Years.

Has Held Many Important Positions With The Burlington Lines.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 1.—With the retirement, on pension, of C. P. Philbrick, of Wymore, last week, Nebraska loses one of her very oldest railway veterans and the Wymore division of the Burlington parts with her ranking employe in point of length of service, he having entered his career on that road in 1870, and now lays aside his working tools and gives his resourceful mind a rest after 53 years of active service, to enjoy his reward.

He was in service when the few lines of Burlington tracks existing in eastern Nebraska were known as the "Atchison & Nebraska railway," and is one of the most widely known railway men in Nebraska, the northeastern part of Kansas and western Missouri,s and is personally acquainted with many railway officials, knowing all the Burlington general officers.

Mr. Philbrick was a young boy entered the railway service November 1, 1868, as a machinist's helper, in the shops of the old central branch of the Union Pacific railway at Atchison, Addison Clark was master mechanic, and his boss. This was about the time that the far-famed "Pony Express" riders, carrying U. S. mail between St. Joseph and the Pacific coast, came into being.

Several weks ago, when there was considerable press parley as to the real first pony rider, Mr. Philbrick wrote a detailed article, which was published in Nebraska newspapers, giving a correct account and names of the pony riders as recalled by his personal association and by records in his possession. Addison Clark was the locomotive engineer elected by what was then the Hannibal and St. Joseph railway, now the Brookfield division of the Burlington, to make the test run with a train handling the U. S. mail, from, Hannibal to St. Joseph then the end of the road.

Takes Technical Course.

In 1869 Mr. Philbrick went to Boston to the Institute of Technology, and after completing a term returned to Kansas and hired out as a chainman in the engineering corps of the A. & N. railway B. M. Temple being in charge and his headquarters being Table Rock, the road having built that far west.

After learning telegraph in 1871, the old tape machines having been fast passing out of service, Mr. Philbrick went to work for the M. K. & T. railway as operator at Rensallier, Mo., as station agent and in 1873 he was placed at Muskogee (then Indian Territory) as night operator, being transferred to Neosho Falls, Kansas in 1874.

In 1875 he returned to the old A. & N. railway as agent at Doniphan, a small station just north of Atchison. There were no federal hours of service laws then, and he worked 12 and 14 hours a day, being compelled to keep up his telegraph line in addition to office duties. He became an electrical genius.

Three years later, in 1879, he was made construction foreman, in charge of a telegraph gang for the Western Union Telegraph company, and built the line of communication between Lincoln and Columbus, and reconstructed other lines out of Lincoln. He was serving as dispatcher at Atchison in 1880, when the A. & N. railway was absorbed by the B. & M. R. R. in Nebraska, and went to Lincoln in the same capacity, when the office was transferred to that point and the Southern division, which afterwards became the Lincoln and the Wymore divisions, was created. J. McConniff was made superintendent at Lincoln at that time, and C. E. Yates was made the first superintendent of telegraph, at Lincoln, for the Burlington.

Rebuilds Roads.

Mr. Philbrick headed a construction gang after the disastrous flood in the summer of 1880, when all tracks along both sides of the Missouri river from Council Bluffs to Kansas City were wiped out. He rebuilt the railway line from Atchison to White Cloud, Kansas, forty miles.

In the latter part of 1881 he went to the KCS railway at Kansas City as roadmaster, and in 1883 to the Frisco railway in the same capacity.

Returning to the Burlington in September, 1887 he was appointed as train and roadmaster at Nebraska City, beginning a service that proved continuous and faithful to the present month.

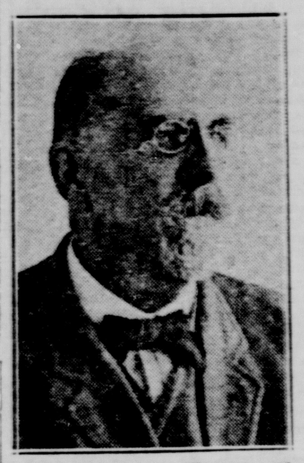

He was transferred to Wymore as trainmaster in 1889, which position he filled for 20 years, having schooled and promoted over 225 trainmen to be conductors in that time. All of the old time conductors now running on the Wymore division, and many on other divisions, were made by Mr. Philbrick. Vice President E. P. Bracken, of Chicago, and General Superintendent A. G. Smart, of Alliance, grew up with him on the Wymore division.

September 1, 1909, he was made train rules examiner on lines west for the Burlington, which position he held at retirement. He had much to do with making the present effective operating rules of the road, having been a member of the executive committee in Chicago in 1916 which revised the standard code of the American Railway association.

During 1906 Mr. Philbrick was master of the Wymore Masonic lodge. Six weeks ago he was called to speak the eulogy at the funeral of the late Trainmaster C. W. Hohaus, at Nebraska City, and the next day went to do the same at the last rites for the late D. Cullingham, train rules examiner, at La Crosse, Wis., both men having been his lifelong friends.

It is his intention to go to southern California soon to spend a part of his declining days in the sunshine among many old friends whom he will find there.

PRIEST NABS AN ALLEGED THIEF

Captures Man Said to Have Snatched Purses In Omaha Church.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 1.—The Rev. Father Schultz, celebrant of the mass at St. Secilla's cathedral Saturday morning, served communion to the parishoners, then calmly left the altar, and fully robed, gave chase to an alleged purse snatcher who was operating in the church. The priest chased Tom Moore, 1913 Jackson street, two blocks, then captured and overpowered him, and held him until officers arrived.

For the last four months, scores of reports of purse snatching from pews have been received by police, according to sergeant Coffey.

"We've been searching for the ones doing it, but didn't have much luck,'" commented the sergeant.

A parishoner informed the priest that while he was giving communion to Mrs. Margaret Duncan, 604 North Fortieth street, Moore made an attempt to filch her purse from her pew.

The priest continued serving communion, keeping one eye on the youth who was edging toward the door. Moore broke and ran after he had edged out of the church, the priest in close pursuit.

Sergeant Coffey said today that Moore's operations were mostly confined to Catholic churches while the parishoners were receiving communion.

Two weeks ago, he was captured by the watchman of the St. Bridget Catholic church, while snatching purses from pews.

He was given fifteen days at that time.

Then continue the treatment untilyourweight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not only harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully, and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take upto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles —Advertisement.

Cowgill Claims He Did Not Intend to Tear Up Sidewalks

"The allegations in that statement are wrong," declared Commissioner Cowgill, Saturday when he learned that an injunction had been obtained by residents on M street between Sixteenth and Seventeenth to prevent the city from tearing up a sidewalk there.

"I don't care to tear it up, and went down and told them last Saturday that I had no intention of doing so, and that it would not hurt their trees if I did. I have made no move about sidewalks for three or four weeks."

The temporary injunction was granted by Judge Morning. The plaintiffs were Clyde E. Hollenbeck, Clara G. Hollenbeck, Eva L. Day, Smith C. Wilson and Ray O. Wagner.

Concluding Article Six

Our flying trip last Sunday did not take us quite so far as we expected. Instead of reaching General Section 1358, which concludes Article VI of Chapter 15, we ended with General Section 1350.

Where an estate is insolvent, but has almost enough assets to pay the debts, all the claims of the first, second and third classes must be fully paid before anything can be paid to those having fourth class claims. (G. S. 1351).

When the time limit for paying debts has been reached, the County Court is required to make an order or decree for the payment of the debts and distribution of the assets. (G. S. 1352). If, however, an appeal has been taken and is yet undetermined, the Court may suspend the decree, or may order a distribution among the creditors whose claims have been allowed, but leaving in the Executor's hands enough to pay the disputed or appealed claim. (G. S. 1353). And when the disputed claim is settled, the Court orders it paid in the same proportion as other claims in its class. (G. S. 1354).

If all the debts have not been paid by the first distribution, and all the assets have not been distributed, or if other assets shall afterwards come into the Executor's possession, the Court may make further decree for distribution. (G. S. 1355).

When the Court has made decree of distribution of assets among the creditors, and the Executor fails to obey the decree within the time fixed, he becomes personally liable to the creditor he has failed to pay; or his bond may be liable for such neglect. (G. S. 1356).

When the time for paying the debts of a deceased person has been limited by Court order, the Court may, on application of the Executor, cause notice to be given of such time limit, the notice to be published at least three weeks "in some paper to be designated by the Court." (G. S. 1357).

And when this notice has been given, and a creditor neglects to demand his debt or dividend within two years of the time so limited, or two years after the last publication of the notice, "the claim of such creditor shall be forever barred." (G. S. 1358.

We have now reached the end of Article VI, and next Sunday expect to take up Article VII, dealing with "Contingent Claims." In the meantime, ask for our latest booklet, "Who Will Get Your Estate?" It is free of charge or obligation.

Neckwear

THE ideal gift—if! You know what the "if" is, of course. "If" the tie is good; "if" it is smart The carelessly chosen Christmas necktie is a stand-by of the comic section, but that just makes the good tie doubly acceptable and ours are surely good.

Shirts

Handkerchiefs

THEY'RE always acceptable; handkerchiefs are a safe choice of the puzzled shopper. If you're in doubt about a man's preferences in neckwear or shirts, why not give him fine handkerchiefs for Christmas? Monogrammed if you wish.

Hosiery

WAS there ever a man with more sox than he wanted? We never heard of one. A dozen pairs of sox make an ideal and welcome gift Silk or lisle for everyday; wool for winter wear. Or, if the man you have in mind plays golf, nothing could please him more than a pair of smart golf stockings.

Gloves

Mufflers

EVERY man needs a muffler. You find here a most interesting variety; the popular brushed wools, in all the plain colors and striking contrasts; worsteds, silk and wool and pure silk knits; full dress and tuxedo mufflers. Selections made here will meet with his approval.

UNABLE TO FIND TRACE OF LOST AIR MAIL FLIER

Search in Sierras For Missing Pilot Claire K. Vance Fruitless.

Nine Government Planes Circle Over Snow Capped Peaks Without Success.

(International News Service.)

SAN FARANCISCO, Dec. 1.—From the air, by telephone and by radio, a search was being conducted tonight of the snow-capped Sierra mountains for trace of Claire K. Vance, air mail pilot, missing now more than twenty-four hours.

Nine government planes circled low over the newly fallen snow fields in the upper reaches of the mountains which tower more than 10,000 feet, in search of some trace of Vance's plane. The air mail pilot with a cargo of mail left San Francisco at 2 p. m., Friday and was last seen at 4:20 that afternoon five miles east of the summit of the mountains battling a northerly gale in a snow storm.

Every government agency was tonight cooperating in the search for the lost aviator. The army aid service furnished six of the seven planes which left here today to hunt for Vance. Two air mail service planes flew from Reno, which was Vance's destination, and this evening additional air mail planes were enroute from Elko, Nev., and Salt Lake City, Utah, to join in the search.

Searchers Return.

Six army planes engaged in the search returned to Crissy field tonight and reported that no trace had been found of the missing aviator's plane.

Major George H. Brett announced that iwth the break of dawn seven army planes would again take the air for the search.

He will take personal command of tionsthe army planes.

Amateur and government radio stations at frequent intervals are broadcasting the fact that Vance's plane has probably crashed at some lonely point and asking that close watch be kept and report made of any wreck. The available telephones in the mountain country have all been pressed into service and their owners asked to join in the search.

Forest Rangers Join.

The forest rangers in the high reaches of the Sierras tonight joined the search. From their headquarters at Placierville and Nevada City searching parties were sent out. Word from the rangers' headquarters stated that one of the rangers yesterday afternoon about 4:25 sighted a plane in the American river canyon. This corroborated an earlier report from a railroad crew that a plane believed to have been Vance's was sighted at Eders, a little railroad station, high in the mountains. The Eders report said thae plane was noticed circling and then headed northward in the face of a stiff gale that was blowing. Snow was then falling, the report said.

Vance is one of the most experienced pilots in the air mail service. He has a record of over 400 round trip flights over the Sierras, and was one of the filers to inaugurate transcontinental air mail flying.

FORD BOOM STILL STRONG IN NORTH

Dakota Backers Preparing To "Draft" Automobile Manufacturer Of Detroit.

(International News Service.)

HURON, S. D., Dec. 1.—The Ford boom tonight was, according to its backers, still going strong. But, in the "Henry Independent" the weekly paper at Henry, S. D., which they leased as their organ, F. H. Hildebrandt, president of the South Dakota Ford-for-President club, makes the following statement:

"Henry Ford is not a candidate for the democratic nomination, or any other party nomination for president of the United States.

"Mr. Ford is not going to announce his candidacy. He is not going to throw his hat into the ring. He is not going to spend his money to buy a nomination.

"Mr. Ford is going to go serenely on about his own business, and if the people of South Dakota and the rest of the United States desire him to lend his aid in directing the affairs of this country, they will have to draft him into the service of his country."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Houston Thomas of Colorado has been elected chairman of the federal trade commission, succeeding Victor Murdock of Kansas, it was announced tonight.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The pope has asked Premier Gonatas of Greece to consider a proposal to grant pardons to leaders of the recent military revolt, a Central News dispatch from Athens said tonight.

DAKOTA STRENGTH OF M'ADOO SHOWN

State Democratic Chairman Promises to Support Former Treasury Secretary.

Republicans Work to Avoid Split Between Johnson and Coolidge Backers.

(International News Service.)

HURON, S. D., Dec. 1—A gauge to the strength of the McAdoo boom in South Dakota was provided here tonight by announcement from W. W. Howes, chairman of the democratic state central committee, that he would get behind the former secretary of the treasury at the state proposal meeting in Pierre next Tuesday.

"W. G. McAdoo is by long odds the best man for the democratic party to nominate," the chairman said. "He is the one candidate who will most easily carry the party along to a magnificent victory."

Howes is proposal representative of Beadle county.

Leaders of one republican faction tonight were talking the possibility of not selecting any presidential candidate at the state proposal meeting. But, between them and that action, other political leaders raised the wall of South Dakota's primary law.

The purpose of the non-committal attitude would be to avoid the inevitable split between followers of Senator Hiram Johnson and supporters of President Coolidge.

Law Forces Action.

Mayor George Burnsides of Sioux Falls, one of the largest factors in republican councils in the state, has been advised that the wording of South Dakota's primary law seems to force affirmative action by the proposal conventions.

Democratic leaders are warmly discussing planks for their platform, with the probability that agricultural relief will be strongly stressed. The South Dakota law requires selection of the paramount issue and farm aid has practically been chosen.

This decision is reflected in the selection of Carl C. Vrooman, of Bloomington, Ill. to deliver the democratic keynote speech. Vrooman was assistant secretary of agriculture during the war and has made a particular study of farm problems.

PLAN ATTEMPT IMPEACH MAYER

Democratic Representatives Of New York Denounce Action Of Judge.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—An attempt will be made by democratic members of the New York delegation in the house of representatives to impeach Federal Judge Julius S. Mayer for sentencing Charles L. Craig, New York City comptroller, to sixty days in jail for contempt of court, it was announced here tonight.

Democratic members of the New York delegation met here tonight at the call of Representative Carew of New York City, and adopted a resolution demanding Mayer's impeachment.

A Convict Poet Rhymes His Way Out Of Prison

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 1.—Clarence Alexander Rea, convict in Eastern penitentiary Pennsylvania, has rhymed his way to freedom.

"A bird that flutters swiftly by,
A wind that passes with a sigh,
A cloudlet sailing low and high,
And that is all!"

These lines and others, written in a narrow cell in the big prison, won a pardon tonight for the poetic convict, sentenced in 1916 to serve ten years for larceny.

The pardon was signed by Governor Pinchot on recommendation of the state board of pardons after two volumes of Rea's verse had been put out by a Philadelphia publisher.

In its recommendation, the board said that a man with the spiritual quality shown in the poetry presented them, evidently has found his way to regeneration.

RISE OR FALL OF PRESIDENT TO BE DECIDED SHORTLY

Next Few Weeks Will Bring Greatest Test In Career Of Coolidge.

Nation to Form Estimate Of Man Upon Message To Be Delivered Soon.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Coolidge stood tonight on the threshhold of one of the most momentous hours of his life.

In the convening of the sixty-eighth congress, Monday, may lie either honors for Mr. Coolidge and continued power for the party that he leads, or he may meet political disaster for both himself and party in the happenings of the next few weeks.

It depends on Mr. Coolidge more than any other man. He meets his first big test as president. Upon his first message, to be delivered as soon a the two houses are organized, congress and the country will form their estimate of him. He has been silent. When congress meets, he can be silent no longer.

The president is ready. His message has been completed. Arrangements have been made to give it the widest publicity upon the day of its delivery. Confidential text has been cabled to American embassies in Paris and London by the state department, to be released there when the message is delivered.

To Broadcast Messags.

He will read the message in person to an audience which, it is estimated, may number 40,000,000, for it will be broadcasted by radio from the hal: of the house of representatives where the president will address the house and senate in joint session.

No message was ever awaited with keener interest by the country. Mr. Coolidge came into office promising to carry out the policies of the late President Harding. Having said that, he became silent. He has refused to disclose himself. The country has been keyed up to a seldom equalled pitch of expectancy for two reasons:

1.—A desire to know whether the famous Coolidge silence cloaks indecision on great questions, or is simply the reticence of a man who cannot be drawn into speech until he is ready to speak.

2.—A desire to know how and to what extent he will carry out the Harding policies; to what extent he will initiate new ones and how he will cope with the troublesome problems of the day.

Germans Beg To Go to the United States

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Hundreds besieged the American consulate today begging to be allowed to book passage for the United States. The rush followed notifications sent out by the big steamer lines that no more tickets should be sold because Germany's immigration quota for the month had been exhausted.

Many applicants said they had sold their homes to get money to go to America.

To Reduce Force.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Franco-Belgian authorities have decided to reduce their military forces in the Ruhr and allow a number of expelled German citizens to return, a Central dispatch from Brussels, said tonight.

AUSTIN CASE NOW CLOSED INCIDENT

Disappearance of Seattle Teacher May Be Due to Loss Of Memory.

(United Press.)

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 1.—The disappearance mystery of Nell Austin, 22-year-old Seattle school teacher, is a closed incident so far as the police of Seattle and Vancouver, B. C., are concerned.

The girl's trouble was brought about by an attack of encephalitis, a strange sleeping sickness malady, or by amnesia, loss of memory, according to her attending physician, Dr. J. W. Bailey of Seattle.

An x-ray examination made in the Vancouver general hospital failed to disclose any indication that the girl's skull was fractured, physicians announced there today. Her continued delirium is attributed to her complete mental and physical exhaustion due to the days and nights she was walking towards Vancouver through the rain and wind storms.

Vancouver police announced that investigation had failed to show any indication whatever that the girl had met with violence after she crossed the line into Canadian jurisdiction.

"We have dropped the Austin case for two reasons," Chief Severin's said. "One is that we are convinced that Miss Austin left of her own free will and accord and was not kidnaped or otherwise violently dealt with and the other is that the other two sisters, Leila and Georgia, asked us to drop the case."

UNITED STATES AWAITS DETAILS

Asks Information As To Scope Of Plan Proposed By Reparations Commission.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—America's reply to the latest overture for participation in settlement of the German problem, awaits detailed information as to the scope of the plan proposed by the reparations commission.

This government has notified the reparations commission, through Col. James A. Logan, Jr., its unofficial representative, that it desires specific details. Until these are received, no final reply will be made.

Instructions were cabled Logan last night to this effect. In the message, acting Secretary of State Phillips outline the American attiude during the recent negotiations over the original Hughes proposal, when the United States informed France that the inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay reparations would be useless under Premier Poincare's reservations, which would have restricted the investigation to 1913.

The present plan of the reparations commission for the appointments of two committees of financial experts one to make a study of the stabilization of German currency and the other to investigate Germany's capital abroad and how to secure its return, has injected a new element into the situation, however.

Apparently Believe America Alone Can Solve The European Muddle.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—With the cabinet of Chancellor Marx already threatened, even before being presented to the reichstag, new hope was felt in official circles here tonight by reports from Paris that the United States had been asked again to participate in any inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

Germany still believes in the ability of the United States to solve the European muddle, but officials tonight withheld comment on the latest move in Paris to obtain American collaboration, pending official notification of the move.

It was made known, however, that Germany would welcome any serious effort to get America in.

Missing Bride Of A Week Is Found

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Stella Parnleza, missing Fort Wayne bride of a week, was found here late today. Frank Norwan is being held by police for investigation.

The woman's father said he intercepted a letter in which his daughter said she wished to live with her husband just long enough to get a dress and come to Toledo.

Norwan denies any complicity in the affair.

For a Housewife's Merry Christmas

The Gift of Leisure

WHEN a man chooses for his wife's gift an efficient electrical home helper such as the VOSS WASHER, he gives her the wonderful gift of leisure—of freedom from worry and physical labor. He gives her a renewed lease on health and happiness—and good looks.

VOSS

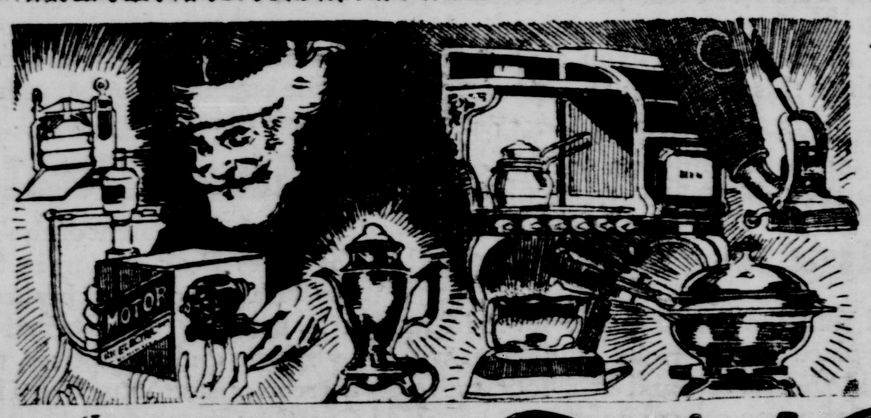

Men who have seen the VOSS usually are quick to appreciate the advantages of having an all-metal machine—rust-proof in every part—with works easily accessible for adjustment, behind a removable panel.

They appreciate the fact that the VOSS is "safe" for a woman to operate. All moving parts are enclosed. The wringer has a safety lock that is released by the lightest touch.

And finally—they like the fine appearance of the VOSS.

for Christmas Practical Gifts

Two words that have meant so much. Down through the ages millions of gifts have been selected "For Christmas." In the rush and trend of modern times the real, helpful, true giving spirit has been all but lost. Gifts should be chosen for their practicability, their usefulness, and the lasting pleasure they give the recipient.

Gifts that endure and help---gifts that add charm to the home---gifts that please and carry real meaning ---are the kind that we call "practical." All of our complete displays of appliances and labor-saving devices are practical to the utmost.

STANDARD OIL TO DISTRIBUTE ETHYL

New Motor Fuel Development General Motors Research Corporation.

In his address before the Society of Automotive Engineers in Chicago, October 12, C. F. Kettering, president of the General Motors Chemical company, announced that a contract had been entered into between that company and the Standard Oil company of Indiana for the distribution of Ethyl gas, says Will Dailey of the Dailey Motor Car company, Chevrolet dealers here.

Ethyl gas is the new fuel developed by General Motors Research corporation. It has the effect of taking the knock out of a motor, no matter under what conditions or load an automobile is driven. It is the result of several years research and test at the laboratories of the General Motors Research corporation in Dayton, and has met with enthusiastic reception from motorists in Dayton and in Cincinnati, Ohio, where it has been placed on sale at a few stations.

Light Wine Color.

Ethyl gas has a characteristic light wine color, which distinguishes it from other automobile fuels.

Distribution by the Standard Oil company of Indiana will cover the states of Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, South Dakota and North Dakota as quickly as installation can be made. This installation will be started in Indiana and carried through Illinois, into Missouri and Kansas. The southern part of the distributing territory is being equipped this winter and the northern part will be equipped as early as possible in the spring, in order that motorists may be supplied when the 1924 motoring season opens. First installations will be made in Standard Oil company of Indiana service stations. It is believed that all stations will be open and ready to supply ethyl gas by July 1, 1924.

There are 968 towns and cities in the eleven states mentioned, where one or more service stations is operated. Bulk distributing facilities exist in 4,083 towns.

New Paint Used On Oakland Stands Severe Acid Test

An unusual experiment to prove the exceptional durability of the satin wax body finish on the new 1924 Oakland open models was recently carried out by the distributor of this company in San Francisco.

In the presence of Roy Thornberg, consulting chemist for the Thornberg Electric company, and a group of business men, the chemical contents of a powerful fire extinguisher were shot against the side of an Oakland touring car and allowed to dry in the sun before the surface was polished.

The experiment, which was probably the most severe test ever given an automobile paint job, proved that the strength of the sulphuric acid contained in the fire extinguishing chemical had no effect whatsoever. After it was rubbed off and the side of the car polished, no damage was noted. Muriatic acid, also, was put on the paint but likewise failed to mar it.

"I didn't believe a paint was made that would withstand sulphuric acid," Mr. Thornberg said after the test. "I have seen the surfaces of many paints curl up under an acid test. The coloring materials used in paints are usually composed of pulveriezd bits of oxidized metals and minerals. Because of this oxygen base they are very susceptible to acid. I never saw anything like this in my life and did not know such a thing was possible."

The acid discharged from the fire extinguisher was so strong that it left scars on the enamel of the car in several spots.

Hupp Head Asserts 4-Passenger Coupes Feature Fall Sales

One of the features of the autumn's motor car sales has been the surprising demand for four-passenger coupes, which has been the source of considerable comment among automobile manufacturers. The only explanation factory executives are able to give is that present models of this particular car evidently seem to please a greater portion of the public than any preceding ones the industry has offered.

The four-passenger coupe has always enjoyed a steadily growing demand as the public has come to appreciate the advantages of high quality body construction, generally adopted for this model by leading manufacturers. Nevertheless, it has never enjoyed leadership among enclosed cars in point of popularity or sales.

During recent weeks, however, its demand among the established manufacturers with lareg volume has grown tremendously. Officials of the Hupp Motor Car corporation declared yesterday that their production of four-passenger coupes along now approximates 35 per cent of their total output, which is more than double its usual ratio. Sales have been so large that distributors and dealers have been unable to secure sufficient of these cars to meet demand. As a result, cars are being delivered to prospective owners as fast as they are received.

The improvements made in the four-passenger Hupmobile coups coincident with the announcement of the complete line of new models three months ago are deemed responsible for the large sales it is enjoying.

Theatrical Folk Like Paige Auto And Jewett Also

Theatrical people are partial to the Paige and Jewett automobiles, according to Will F. Hitchcock, distributor here. Mr. Hitchcock bases his claim on a telegram received by him this week, from North Platte. The telegram follows.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Slow Valve Leak.

A slow leak in the tire valve plunger can be sometimes checked by applying a drop of oil in the valve stem. The oil partly dissolves the rubber and causes it to anneal to an airtight joint.

Crankcase Care.

During the winter months the crankcase should be drained more frequently than in summer. This is essential because it removes the water which forms an emulsion with the oil and destroys the latter's lubricating value.

Springs and Spring Clip Logic.

Take precaution to keep the spring clip tight. Axles break in the center almost invariably because of loose spring clips. Looseness of the clips also makes the springs more likely to squeak. Keeping the springs lubricated not only prevents squeaking, but makes the car ride easier and avoids breakage.

Getting the Most From Tires.

The strongest tire (newest) should be placed on the car at the point of greatest strain, right rear wheels. As the others wear out it should be moved to the left rear, the right front and the left left front wheels. On the car equipped with all new tires the right front wears most, left rear next and so on. When the rear tires show signs of being worn, they should be exchanged with the front tires. After that the above sequence should be followed.

Changing Oil in New Motor.

Because oil tends to deteriorate very rapidly in a new engine, the replacement of oil at proper intervals will insure continued smoothness of operation and prevent undue wear to bearings. Sediment in a new engine is the greatest prevalent cause of oil deterioration. This sediment is produced by the engine "wearing itself in." A new motor is built and assembled so that it is fairly tight or stiff. This causes each moving part to adjust itself to each other part. In doing this, the various pieces rub against each other and infinitely small particles of metal are picked up from the machine surfaces. These particles, being heavier than oil, are naturally carried to the lower pan and there deposited. This wearing action takes place most rapidly during the first thousand miles of running, although the action is never entirely absent.

Moon Production Schedule for 1924 To Be 25,000 Cars

A production schedule of 25,000 Moon automobiles for 1924 was announced by Stewart McDonald, president of the Moon Motor Car company, at the banquet which concluded the convention of Moon distributors held in St. Louis last week. The distributors' convention is an annual event and was attended by nearly one hundred Moon distributors from all parts of the United States, and included the entire Moon sales organization.

An interesting feature of the convention was an advertising exhibit, in which was displayed effective newspaper advertising campaigns used by Moon distributors. The exhibit was prepared under the direction of Oliver A. Life, advertising manager of the Moon Motor Car company.

It was announced that net sales of Moon cars and parts for the first nine months ending September 30, totaled $8,171,563 against total sales of $6,877,159 for the full year, 1922.

You Are Invited
National Traffic Transmission Week Dec. 2 to Dec. 8
To Try Chandler's Amazing New Traffic Transmission

This is Traffic Transmission Week the country over.

We have made special preparations to demonstrate the biggest automobile development since the self-starter. You are urged to avail yourself of this opportunity.

Come prepared to drive a car in which you can change speeds instantly and silently on the steepest hills or in the tightest traffic pocket.

Nothing New to Learn

You will find the familiar gear lever in its accustomed place at your right hand. You will make exactly the same hand and foot movements to go from one gear to another.

There will be no "high pressure" sales solicitation. Our sole desire is to have every motorist appreciate, first, the marvelous possibilities of this exclusive feature; and second, the performance mastery of the Pikes Peak Motor.

For the first time there is available in a moderately priced car, a truly great power plant—one whose supremacy is officially and nationally established.

Only the 1924 Chandler insures positive safety with a triple action braking system.

A powerful foot brake controls the rear wheels; an automatically equalized emergency operates through the propeller shaft; and the Traffic Transmission makes the braking effort of the engine instantly available by a split second change to a lower gear.

Pikes Peak Motor

The development of the Traffic Transmission, the Pikes Peak Motor, in fact, the entire 1924 car with its powerful brakes, indestructible rear axle, facile steering, attractive, up-to-date bodies by Fisher and low prices, was possible only to a great organization like The Chandler Motor Car Company.

Advanced manufacturing skill, advantageous plant location, complete factory equipment, strongly secured financial position, and permanent executive direction all had to be present in preeminent degree.

Virtually everything that goes into the Chandler car is manufactured in Chandler shops.

Remember! This is Traffic Transmission Week! Come in! Telephone! Make the test that tells all—drive the 1924 Chandler yourself!

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler Plant under Campbell patents.)

Cornhuskers at Notre Dame Next Fall; Dewitz Out as Captain

ROCKNE SLATES NEBRASKA U. FOR GAME NEXT FALL

Notre Dame Coach Comes to Terms With Husker Representatives for Grid Combat on Indiana Soil.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Athletic directors of the "Big Ten" and other representative elevens of the midwest assembled in schedule meeting this afternoon and when the dust had settled at the Auditorium Hotel these facts were disclosed.

The Woverines have taken on six conference teams in a row.

The Illini, co-claimants of the 1922 title, apparently have displayed more care, though meeting Michigan, Iowa Chicago and Ohio State, with a couple of dates yet to be filled in between.

Chicago has assembled a choice array of home games.

Indiana and Ohio have patched things up for a three-year term.

Nebraska at Notre Dame.

As a counter attraction to "Big Ten" affairs, there was the announcement that Notre Dame's partial schedule called for games with no less than Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech and Nebraska elevens on successive dates.

Husker Book in the Making.

Definite information with reference to the Nebraska Cornhuskers' bookings for the season of 1924 will not be forthcoming until after the Missouri Valley conference meeting, dated for Saturday, Dec. 8, in Kansas City. All arrangements or agreements entered into by Nebraska representatives will be put up to the university athletic committee, composed largely of faculty men, for approval. Until such o. k. has been given, all statements with reference to the Nebraska schedule will be rated as merely tentative.

That the Cornhuskers will meet Notre Dame on Indiana soil next fall may be rated as a strong probability.

LEWELLEN SIGNS WITH PIRATE CLUB

Cornhusker Athlete Breaks In Next Summer as Major League Pitcher.

Verne Lewellen, football captain at the University of Nebraska during the gridiron campaign recently ended and pitcher on the varsity baseball team, will plunge into professional baseball next summer, landing, in a single leap, in major league company.

Lewellen proclaimed Saturday night that he had signed an agreement by terms of which he is to report, after graduation next June, to the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National league. According to "Lew," he will stay in school and join the Cornhusker baseball squad for another season of college baseball thus insuring that his pitching wing will be in trim when he goes east to join the Pirates.

Eligible For College Ball.

Although having legally contracted to pursue the national game as a professional pastimer, Lewellen has not thereby made himself ineligible for college ball. The Nebraska athletic authorities cited the case of "Rudy" Ziegenbein, Cornhusker baseballer, to the Missouri Valley conference a year ago last spring. Ziegenbein, a member of the Nebraska baseball squad, had signed a contract which required him to report to the Hastings State league club after June 1. During the interim, he planned to play baseball with the Cornhuskers. Conference heads were requested to rule on Ziegenbein's case and the decree was formally handed down that the Cornhusker player had not professionalized himself by signing the Hastings contract. As a result, Ziebenbein was a Cornhusker regular during the spring season of 1922.

Scout Liked "Lew's" Looks.

Lewellen's pitching attracted the attention of a Pittsburgh scout last summer, when "Lew" hurled fifteen games in amateur circles in Nebraska, winning all but one. The scout offered liberal terms and the Cornhusker athlete has accepted. Lewellen is a six-foot right-hander and possessor of a speedy cross-fire curveball which generally nets him ten to fifteen strikeouts in every start on the slab. During the amateur season of 1923, Lewellen did most of his pitching for Lincoln's American Legion team.

Ashland Students Celebrate Victory

ASHLAND, Neb., Dec. 1—Ashland students celebrated a 19 to 0 victory over Wahoo high with a big rally and bonfire here Friday night.

Chamberlain and G. Miller scored the touchdowns. Van Wie kicked two field goals and one point after touchdown. G. Miller's 46-yard run to a touchdown in which he turned off three tacklers featured the game.

TILBERG CLAIMS WAS MISQUOTED

Midland Man Refutes Press Dispatch From Fremont On Title Dispute.

Hastings College Confident Committee Will Rule In Favor of Bronchos.

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Dec. 1.—Dean W. E. Tilberg of Midland college, the chairman of the Nebraska conference championship committee, informed Dean Weyer of Hastings college today that he was misquoted in a Fremont dispatch which said a post-season game would be necessary to decide the state college title.

Dean Tilberg said he remarked two weeks ago that public sentiment might demand a post-season game if two teams finished unbeaten. Chadron has since been held to a tie by Peru Normal, whereas Hastings college won every game of the seven it played.

It is anticipated here, following an interrogation of other conference committee members, that Hastings' right to the title will not be seriously questioned when the conference committee meets at Lincoln December 8.

Conference Meets in Lincoln.

Nebraska state college athletic representatives will probably put in a busy day when the annual meeting of the conference gets under way in Lincoln Saturday, December 8. The sessions of the conference athletic heads will be held at the Lincoln Y. M. C. A.

In addition to the regular routine business, a number of important matters will come up for consideration.

One will be the application of Omaha university to membership in the Nebraska conference. The Omaha school was a member of the Nebraska conference two years ago, but was dropped out because of a lack of interest in conference athletics on the part of the Omaha public.

The question of title awards may provoke some discussion.

Chadron May File Claim.

There is a possibility of Chadron Normal filing a title claim in addition to Hastings college. The Hastings Bronchos weathered a conference slate of seven games, placing all in the victory column. The Chadron Eagles won four games and were held to a tie score by Peru.

The matter of title award will be passed to the championship committee consisting of Dean W. E. Tilberg, of Midland college, Professor M. S. Pate of Kearney Normal and Dean C. E. Ashcraft of York college.

Chadron Normal folowers are claiming a tie with Hastings college for the grid championship. In a Saturday message to The Star, President Robert I. Elliott of Chadron Normal says:

Puts It Up to Committee.

"We have received no official notification from the championship committee as to what will be done about the tie between Chadron Normal and Hastings college for championship honors.

"Both schools have a 1.000 per cent record and we will leave the matter with the championship committee."

The matter of the 1923 basketball championship will also come in for some dispute. Nebraska Wesleyan and Peru Normal weathered the conference schedule without a defeat and failed to get together in a post-season contest. Wesleyan won eleven cage games, while Peru was the victor in nine contests.

Football coaches will be on hand to arrange football games for the 1924 season. Basketball schedules will be drafted at the Saturday meeting and a date and place selected for the 1924 intercollegiate track meet.

Gage Vohland, senior, was the big scorer for the Gibbon team. The eleven was coached by Superintendent Claar. The Gibbon record:

FIRST LADY SEES GRIDIRON BATTLE

Wife of President Coolidge Has Box Seat at Game by Marines and Army.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Uncle Sam's marines from Quantico, Va., were parading Washington's streets tonight singing paens as a result of their victory over the Third Corps Area army eleven today, 7 to 0. The Marines' triumph came in the last two minutes of play, when, after intercepting a forward pass on Army's 35-yard line, they started a crushing drive down the field that ended only when Goette hurled across the final chalk mark for the lone touchdown of the battle.

It was a fitting climax to a struggle that was filled with thrills from the initial whistle. Time after time the crowd of 45,000 persons was brought to its feet by the spectacular playing.

As colorful an assemblage as ever gathered for a sport contest here saw the game. Mrs. Calvin Coolidge occupied a box with Secretary of the Navy Denby and Assistant Secretary Theodore Roosevelt.

The lineups of both elevens consisted mainly of graduates from West Point and Annapolis, many of whom were all-American stars in their college days. The victory marked the Marine's third consecutive win over Army

Washington Conquers Oregon.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 1.—Unleashing a third quarter attack that could not be stopped, even momentarily. The Golden Tornado of Washington roared its way to victory over Oregon's hard fighting football machine in the stadium today, 26 to 7.

Outscored in the first half, 7 to 6, by the game ball hawks from south of the Columbia river, the Huskies' power was not to be denied when they settled down in the second half.

After the game was won, three touchdowns to one, Freddy Abel, substitute halfback, who played most of the game in place of Leonard Ziel, Washington's kicking and passing ace brought the small crowd to its feet with a 62-yard run to a touchdown after sifting his way through right tackle.

Georgia Ties Centre.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 1.—University of Georgia gave the dope a slam in the face when the Bulldogs played Centre college's great eleven, unbeaten in the south, to a 3-3 tie here this afternoon.

Captain Joe Bennett, playing his last game for Georgia, kicked a goal from the 30-yard line in the first quarter. Lemon, brilliant kicker of Centre, tied the score in the second quarter when he booted a goal from the 31-yard line. Frequent fumbles marred the struggle and choked off drives that were marching steadily down the field.

A large crowd was on hand from all parts of Georgia and the south to witness the first struggle between the two schools.

Georgetown Defeats Fordham.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Georgetown university defeated Fordham in the final game of the season here this afternoon, 6 to 0. Fordham put up a desperate defense all through the contest and prevented the visitors from piling up a larger score by holding them down to downs on several occasions on the five-yard line.

The lone touchdown was made in the second quarter, when the ball was placed on the 18-yard line by a series of runs by Metzger and a 12-yard forward pass from Mothergans, who had gone in to replace Gaffney. From there, Metzger and Degassis smashed the Fordham line and the former finally carried the ball over. Degassis failed to kick the goal.

The maple-maulers will compete in singles, doubles and team events. Omaha day is December 15. At this time officers will be elected or the Nebraska Elks Bowling association.

NEBRASKA TEAM MUST NAME NEW CAPTAIN FOR 1924

University Athletic Committee Rules That Rufus Dewitz Ineligible As Cornhusker Leader.

BOARD MAY RULE NO TITLE AWARD

High School Moguls to Meet at Grand Island Tuesday Afternoon.

Wilber, Crawford, Neligh and Hartington May Present Title Claims.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

It is not unreasonable to predict that the Nebraska high school athletic board of control will refuse to award a high school football championship at the special board meeting to be held at Grand Island next Tuesday.

The high school race for the 1923 banner is in a muddle, the Thanksgiving day games only serving to definitely drop Hastings out of the running. Morrill fell before Crawford in a game for the western title earlier in the week.

Four teams which have weathered the storms of competition without defeat are Crawford, Hartington, Neligh and Wilber. Crawford will face a protest when the board meets Tuesday. Hartington and Neligh were unable to come to terms for a Turkey day contest and the board may rule that Wilber has not played a strong enough schedule to warrant a championship.

The net result may be that the board will declare "no championship" for the 1923 season and call it a day's work.

Bayard Protects Crawford.

The Crawford protest, which may mar the Dawes county team's record, comes from Bayard. Crawford scheduled Morrill for a game at Scottsbluff Tuesday and refused to meet Bayard in a scheduled Thanksgiving day game.

In discussing the protest, Supt. Howard Smith of the Bayard school says:

"We feel Crawford cancelled without justification. The contract stipulated either team might cancel if forced to play a game Thanksgiving week to settle the state championship. We are protesting to the state athletic board on the ground that the Morrill-Crawford game was no state championship contest and that the state board did not request Crawford to play this particular week and thus nullify the Bayard-Crawford contract."

This particular situation was discussed at a previous meeting of the state control board and the members declined to take action cancelling the Bayard contract.

Hartington and Neligh have had difficulty in getting together in the northeast section, both of them pushing over opponents in Turkey day tangles.

North Loup Files Claim.

And now comes North Loup high school with a record of scoring 501 points to none by opponents. The Loupsters have been playing a great part of their schedule with reserve aggregations, but insist, if the board is to order post-season games, that North Loup be given a look-in.

The whole situation will probably resolve itself as follows: The board probably will decline to award a title on the record alone. A series of post-season games, necessary to pick a winner by elimination, is out of the question and the only way out is to declare "no championship" and award honorable mention to the undefeated terms.

The twenty-one "letter" men on the University of Nebraska football squad will meet early this week to elect a 1924 captain. Choice of Halfback Rufus Dewitz, announced Thursday night, following a ballot by the varsity regulars, failed to "take." In other words, Dewitz has been declared ineligible for another season of football at the Cornhusker institution.

Decree that Dewitz is ineligible was handed down late Saturday afternoon by the eligibility committee of the university. Professor R. D. Scott, Nebraska's faculty representative to the Missouri Valley conference and spokesman for the committee, announced that Dewitz has already played the limit of college participation permitted by the conference three-year rule, which bars him from a fourth season.

Similar to Peterson Case.

Ineligibility of Dewitz is based on a ruling similar to that handed down in the case of Carl Peterson, Nebraska center during the gridiron campaigns of 1921 and 1922. Peterson, prior to enrolling as a Nebraska freshman in 1920, was a prep student at Bethany college, Lindsborg, Kansas, and played two seasons as a member of the Bethany squad.

Dewitz was a football man at Nebraska Wesleyan during the college seasons of 1919 and 1920, playing fullback for the Methodist team. He enrolled as a Nebraska freshman in 1921 and became a fledged Cornhusker in 1922, playing that season and the one of 1923. Although a prep student at Wesleyan, as was Peterson at Bethany, Dewitz's second football year has been charged against him as a year of participation, under a Missouri Valley conference rule, which permits a single season at a secondary institution but counts a second season as a college year of competitive sport. With one year at Wesleyan and two at Nebraska charged against Dewitz, the Cornhusker committee proclaimed it had no recourse—that Dewitz has had the full three years allowed by conference statutes.

Election Early This Week.

Desire of the university committee to have the captaincy question settled at an early date inspired the announcement Saturday night that the varsity men will be called together this week to ballot for and elect a new leader for the 1924 squad.

Decree erasing Dewitz from the Cornhusker picture will compel the Nebraska coaches to develop an almost entirely new backfield next fall. The line prospects for next year are encouraging, and with Locke, Mandery, Myers, Bronson and other varsity subs, plus a string of Huskers coming up from the 1923 freshman squad, the backfield situation is virtually on a par with the line outlook. Rhodes, varsity end, is still another backfield prospect for next fall.

HARNESS RACING POPULAR SPORT

Pacers and Trotters Enjoyed Most Prosperous Year In History.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The harness horse game has known no season beyond that of 1923 in brilliance of contests, liberality of purses all along the line and enthusiasm of its devotees.

Some years ago, when the runners came back from retirement, it was freely predicted that the trotter and pacer soon would be pushed into the discard because the public's real interest in horses was centered in the runner.

But it has been found, in cities whre both harness horse and running race meets have been conducted, that reawakened interest in the latter has in nowise lessened love for the former. Nor has it caused a decrease in the attendance of either.

Murphy Still Supreme.

Once again Tommy Murphy rules supreme among the reinsmen. The wonder-pilot eclipsed all his former records, both as regards win-races and money earned.

Murphy was first on 64 occasions, second 32 times, third 17 times and fourth in eight other races. His winnings reached the remarkable total of $101,768, which is nearly $25,000 better than his best of other years.

Cox Ranks Second.

Cox was second with 20 victories and $65,456; McDonald third with 15 triumphs and $48,185. Old "Pop" Geers, now well beyond 70, did not participate in many races, but showed splendidly in his every competition. He figured in 12 contests during the season, winning five and being unplaced but twice. His down $12,444. Merriman, with ten wins in 12 times, gathered in $10,930 for the owners, and Hal Bee was money gain was $4,225.

Favonian was the crack trotter of the year. He won five races in ten starts, was second three times and also drew a third, being out of the money but once. His winnings were $20,425. Ethelinda, with seven victories in ten attempts, won $17,295, while Clyde the Great was third with $17,130.

Year's Pacing Sensation.

Anna Bradford's Girl was the pacing sensation of 1923. She won every one of her nine starts, taking third with $9,590.

Statistics covering the Grand Circuit meetings, show that there were 154 trotting and 114 pacing races. The heats were 438 and 341. There were 1,118 starting trotters and 805 starting pacers in those races. Of that group 205 trotters and 159 pacers were money winners.

Rich Purses On Circuit.

The Grand Circuit tracks donated the huge sum of $559,525 in purses, of which $395,207 was for trotters and $164,317 for pacers.

The year was a remarkable one in many ways for the harness game, but especially so in the matter of time performance. The amazing number of 385 trotters and 330 pacers stepped the mile in 2:10 or better.

The success of the harness game in 1923 has brought new encouragement, and fresh courage to its executives and plans now are busy made which will result in 1924 being even a greater and more spectacular year than the one just agone.

Ponca Hi Eleven Has Good Record For Grid Season

(Special to The Star.)

PONCA, Neb., Dec. 1.—Ponca and Newcastle battled to a scoreless tie on the Newcastle field Thanksgiving day. The game was arranged this week and Ponca was handicapped by lack of practice and injuries.

Ponca outgained its opponents by a comfortable margin, but was unable to score.

The season just closed has been one of the most successful in Ponca athletics. South Sioux City and Hartington were the only teams to cross the Ponca goal line and defeat the locals. In each of these games Ponca lost in the closing minutes of play.

Frank Stowe, former York college athlete, coached the Ponca eleven this season. Fields, Davis, Kendall, Schenck, Watson, McCarthy, Elfline and Rakow played their last game in Ponca togs Thanksgiving day. The Ponca record follows:

Cedar Rapids High vs. Toledo Team in Post-Season Game

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 1.—Cedar Rapids and Scott high of Toledo, Ohio, will meet December 8 at Toledo in a game to decide the national high school championship, according to an announcement made here tonight by Coach Leo Novak. Toledo officials offered a guarantee of $5,000 to the locals for the contest.

Director Knute K. Rockne, after bringing his Irish teams to Lincoln for two successive years, is extremely anxious to entertain the Cornhuskers in a 1924 game at Notre Dame—so anxious, in fact, that the Notre Dame director is reputed to have offered the Nebraska athletic management a record-breaking guarantee. Rockne has stressed the fact that he wishes to make the Nebraska game the home-coming attraction of his home schedule; that he must play Army and Princeton away from home, and, having brought his teams to Nebraska the past two years, considers himself entitled to a game at Notre Dame in '24.

Rockne Team Super-Card.

It is conceded in Nebraska circles that Cornhusker-Irish relations have been agreeable and fairness to Coach Rockne and his school virtually demands that Nebraska reciprocate by booking the '24 game for the Notre Dame gridiron. In addition to his guarantee, Rockne is reputed to have offered to schedule his team to play in Lincoln the season of '25 and '26, which probably will appeal to the Cornhusker authorities, as a Rockne team always is a super-attraction in the Nebraska camp.

Henry F. Schulte, head track coach at Nebraska, and John K. Selleck, manager of student activities, represented the Cornhusker institution at the Chicago pow-wow. They are expected to return to Lincoln today or Monday, after which the university athletic committee will hear the Schulte-Selleck report and take such action as the schedule situation merits.

Jack Dempsey Victim Of Chump Friends

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

(Copyright 1923 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 28—"Nobody ever will whip Jack Dempsey in the ring; his friends will whip him outside."

So concludes Jerry Ludades. Within the circle of fist-cuffing, they they call him "Jerry the Greek," and know him as "the best trainer the champion ever had."

Jerry watches over Dempsey as a mother watches over an ailing infant, watches over him, guards him, cares for him—and then grieves when those hours come when Dempsey, rather than refuse invitations of friends, says, "yes," and goes out to spend an evening in pleasure and in entertainment.

"A great fighter to retain his fistic form and all the power and the stamina nature gave him, must get regular sleep, eat only plain wholesome foods, stay away from the social stuff," says Jerry. "If Jack did not have friends, that is just what he would do. But he has friends, and everywhere he goes they crowd in on him and invite him here and there, and because he never wants to hurt anybody's feelings, Jack always accepts.

Flood of Invitations.

"In Los Angeles there wasn't a day when Jack wasn't invited to go here for lunch, or there for dinner, and somewhere at night. Every one who invited him put that invitation in such a way that Jack knew if he didn't accept he'd hurt somebody's feelings, and perhaps, kill the little party, where he was to be sort of the honor guest.

"Always I would say to Jack, 'tell them no,' but Jack is always afraid if he says that, he'll cause somebody a little sorrow, so he just goes ahead and says 'yes,' and then he will say to me Jerry, I'll go to that stunt tonight, but tomorrow night I'll be in bed at 8 o'clock, and will be out on the road at 7 the next morning working off the bad effects of staying up too late the night before.'

"But the next day somebody else calls on Jack, and Jack can't say 'no,' and that's the way it goes.

Fed Up On Fancy Dishes.

"Jack never drinks, and he tries not to eat foods that aren't exactly what an athlete should eat, but sometimes he is the guest at some home, and the lady there has cooked something special and urges Jack to eat it, saying that to eat something fancy just once won't hurt him And it wouldn't. But the point is that everytime Jack goes out, he gets up against the same thing and so, if he does not want to hurt the feelings of his hostess, he is always eating foods which aren't quite so good as they should be.

"Jack goes to little affairs upon the condition that he is to leave early, but they always keep him a whole lot later than he figured, by arguing that one late night won't hurt him. And one late night wouldn't. But when that happens as a regular thing, it isn't helping the champion.

CELLAR RIVALS IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Bancroft and Fletcher Seem to Be Slated to Fight It Out for Tailend Place.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—One of the minor divertissements in prospect for the 1924 season in the National league is the Bancroft versus Fletcher duello as respective managers of the Boston Braves and the Phillies. There is something of a parallel in the careers of this pair. Both are shortstops, although Fletcher no longer dallies with the nimble assist.

Both were field captains under McGraw. Now both are managers of chronic tail-end ball clubs.

Phillies Doomed to Cellar.

Bancroft has fallen into the softer berth, atnough neither can be said to occupy the very ostermoor of elegant ease. The Braves and Phillies, at this premature writing, seem destined to indulge in a two-team race in the general direction of the rear, and of the two the Phils figure to get there first. The man-power of Bancroft's new team is slightly more impressive than that of Fletcher's, and, seemingly, his owner's purse strings are more amenable to persuasion.

In any case Bancroft and Fletcher will remain in the freshman class of the McGraw managerial school for the coming season. Thencefortn, it will be a question of advancing to the sophomore grade or being flunked out entirely.

Former Pals of McGraw.

At present there are only two managers of the National league clubs—Branch Rickey and Bill Killifer—who have had no connection with McGraw. Wilbert Robinson, of the Dodgers is a post-graduate. He has already won pennants in 1916 and 1920, and annually defies logic by making something out of nothing. Bill McKechnie has done quite well with his short regime in Pittsburgh, while Pat Moran's success in Cincinnati is above elaboration.

At that, we regard Moran as beyond the McGraw influence entirely. After winning a pennant in Philadelphia in 1915 and finishing one-two-three the following seasons, he was wafted gently but firmly out and subsequently taken on as a coach by the Giants. Before he had a chance to don a New York uniform he was allowed to escape in order that he might take over the Reds. In other words, the McGraw influence affected Moran's success like rain affects rubber.

McHargue Features Central City Win

ALBION, Neb., Dec. 1.—Central City defeated Albion in football here Thanksgiving day, 31 to 13. The game was featured by two 75-yard runs by Captain McHargue. The Central City leader reeled off his two long runs in the first five minutes of play, each netting a touchdown.

Gould, flashy little halfback for Central City, wa at his best in spite of injuries, and aided by good interference, on the part of Parker and Wilson, reeled off enough yardage to make three touchdowns.

Lokan, Albion halfback, and Nelmyre, fullback, featured the Albion play.

Spink Rates John L. Sullivan As Greatest of All Fighters

By AL SPINK.

Of all the modern prize fighters I have always claimed that John L. Sullivan was the greatest that ever lived.

But I have always admitted, too, that he was never in perfect condition to fight except on one occasion and that was when he met Paddy Ryan in Mississippi City, Miss., in a fight for the championship of the world, and won it.

Sullivan on that occasion was in his twenty-fourth year, and was the most wonderful specimen of physical strength and beauty I have ever laid eyes on.

Up to that time he had never dissipated, never touched either tobacco or strong drink, and was the model athlete in every way.

Sullivan Physical Marvel.

I have seen all the great pugilists who have come since, seen them in their great fights, but never have I seen one to compare in wonderful muscular development and fearful hitting power to the Sullivan who fought Ryan that day for the world honors.

But beside being wonderful in physical appearance, Sullivan was as speedy as lightning, ambidextrous, too, being able to hit a hard crushing blow as well with one hand as with the other.

That he was a sprinter, too, was proved when, after knocking Ryan down in the ninth and last round of their fight, Sullivan picked up his fallen adversary and then vaulting over the ropes, ran with the speed of a greyhound to his quarters.

Ryan Great in His Day.

Many, when I put in this claim for Sullivan, have said: "But Ryan, from whom Sullivan won the championship, was never a great fighter, never considered great by any one."

Oh, wasn't he? Then just read what the great sports writers of that day had to say about Ryan.

"Referee," then writing for the New York Daily News, in January, 1882, just before the Sullivan-Ryan fight, said:

"It must be allowed that 'Strong Boy' Sullivan, as he is styled by the disciples of the prize ring, has wonderful strength and tremendous hitting power, but he has never fought a fight, which is one point against him.

John L. Outweighed.

"He is four inches less in stature than Ryan, does not possess the same length of reach, and on the day of the battle, he will have to give the champion about twelve pounds and a beating, for Ryan will weight 190 pounds, while Sullivan will enter the ring weighing about 177 pounds.

"Ryan has fought in the ring. He has just met one of the most scientific and pluckiest pugilists who ever fought for the championship of England, and defeated him.

"Ryan's battle with Joe Goss proved that his hands were battering rams and that he could stand punishment. It also demonstrated that he was thoroughly game and to use the vernacular, a capital two-handed 'in and out fighter.' Ryan has all these advantages in his favor.

Fought with Bare Knucks.

"While we do not question Sullivan's pluck, it must be borne in mind that he has not yet met even a second-class pugilist with the bare knuckles and no one can tell whether his hands can stand the heavy work they will have to undergo, and no one can tell whether he can stand the terrible punishing blows that Ryan will deliver.

"Fighting with pillows on the hands and contending with nature's weapons unadorned are two different things.

"Ryan has been through the mill; Sullivan has not, and if the latter can defeat Ryan with everything in the champion's favor, then he is a wonder.

Partisans Bet Big Money.

"We expect the battle will be a surprise, and judging by the hundreds of Uncle Sam's treasury notes that are now being wagered at $100 to $80 on Sullivan, some one will meet a heavy 'facer.'"

In February, 1882, Billy Harding of the New York Police Gazette, just before the fight, said:

"Ryan has had experience in the ring, can stand punishment, and his hands are toughened. Another important point to be taken into consideration is that Ryan is several inches taller than Sullivan, has a longer reach, is just as scientific, and will weigh fully twelve pounds more than Sullivan on the day of the battle."

But just the same, Sullivan whipped this great Ryan in nine rounds, and whipped him easily.

Ford Trucks Are Bought On Performance Records
If you were to ask a hundred—or a thousand—Ford truck owners why they use Ford trucks in preference to all others, they would likely say, "Because the Ford stands up."
They know that under the endless grind of daily service the Ford stays on the job month in and month out, with very little mechanical care, and with practically no expense for repairs or replacements. They buy to get performance.
A few might add that the Ford is the lowest priced truck on the market. But they would emphasize the work this truck does, not its initial cost, in accounting for the fact that there are more Ford Trucks in use today than all other makes combined.

BANKS PREPARE TO MAKE LEGAL FIGHT ON TAXATION LAW

Have Been Advised by Lawyers to Tender Only Fourth Assessment.

County Treasurers Told Can Accept Nothing But Payment In Full.

Steps are being taken on behalf of the Nebraska bankers' association to resist collection of taxes on state and national banks and trust companies for 1923, except on the basis of intangible property, the same as was done a year ago. Notwithstanding the passage of a special act by congress in 1922, intended to remove banks from that classification, it is still contended by spokesmen for the financial fraternity that their institutions are entitled to the same exemptions as private capital receives under the Nebraska intangible tax law.

That law provides that moneys and credits in general shall be assessed and taxed as intangible property, at one-fourth of the regular tax rate in each governmental subdivision. When the present revenue statute was enacted in 1921, the provisions of the old law relating to banks and trust companies, making them taxable on the full value of their capital stock and surplus, were left unchanged.

Bankers Retain Attorneys.

In preparation for the legal fight which will soon be undertaken, Attorneys C. H. Kelsey of Norfolk and W. A. Prince of Grand Island have been retained by the taxation committee of the Nebraska Bankers' association. The lawyers have advised all banks to tender to county treasurers only one-fourth of the taxes assessed against them.

State Tax Commissioner Smith has countered this move by sending a letter to all county treasurers instructing them that banks are liable for the full tax and that they have no lawful authority to accept anything less.

C. E. Burnham of Norfolk is chairman of the bankers' association committee on taxation.

Assess Banks for Legal Fund.

The November 7 issue of the Nebraska Bankers' Association Record, published by W. B. Hughes of Omaha, secretary of the organization, announces that the executive committee of the association has voted to assess each member bank an amount equal to its regular annual dues, to provide a fund for contesting the assessments in the courts.

"Returns on this assessment are coming in at an encouraging rate," the publication ays. "It would have taken several years for the association to lay aside out of membership dues enough to pay the cost of the 1922 case; so the council decided to raise a fund to pay up for the 1922 case and to provide enough for the 1923 case."

Expenses Legislative Committee.

How much this fund amounts to is not stated. However, the report of Treasurer C. F. Brinkman to the Nebraska bankers' association at its annual convention in Omaha, October 24, showed that the total receipts for the year were $29,378 and total disbursements $27,395, of which sum $7,170 was to meet expenses of the legislative and taxation committees. Elsewhere appears an item of $8,379 spent by the committees, with a footnote stating that this includes "legal expense of taxation committee."

Secretary Hughes' report to the convention shows that the association has 1,114 members, and that eleven banks in Nebraska do not belong to it.

The total assessed valuation of banks and trust companies for the state in 1923 is $50,628,243. At the average rate of 16 mills tax for all purposes, this would produce a total revenue of $810,052 if the banks paid the full taxes. Of that sum the state would get approximately $101,000. Should the banks win their forthcoming suit, their total tax contributions would be reduced to $202,513, of which the state's share would be $25,250.

majority. Even if the Farmer-labor, socialist and independent members voted with the republicans, the total still would be only 213 or five short.

Longworth Chosen.

The progressives made no effort in today's caucus to prevent selection of Representative Longworth, of Ohio, as republican floor leader. He was chosen by an almost unanimous viva voce vote.

Intention of the pregressives to carry their fight to the floor of the house when it meets next week, was evidenced when Representative Nelson, Wisconsin, leader of the bloc, asked Representative Sydney Anderson, caucus chairman, whether caucus action was to be binding on those attending. Anderson ruled that unless a specific resolution was adopted, caucus action was not binding.

This leaves the progressives free to throw their strength between republicans and democrats and deadlock organization of the house, preventing Coolidge from delivering his message and delaying the appropriation bills and other legislation indefinitely.

The progressives were defeated overwhelmingly in the first round of their fight to amend the house rules. Resolutions offered by Nelson to abolish the steering committee, and to force the members of the committee on committees to vote each state as a unit, were voted down almost without debate.

The democrats went into caucus tonight with harmony the keynote. A move to displace Representative Martin, Louisiana, from the ways and means comittee, because of his vote with the republicans on many schedules of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act, was checked by the democratic leaders.

Representative Finis Garrett, Tennessee, minority leader in the last congress, had no opposition. His nomination for speaker means he will automatically become democratic leader again this session.

GOLDEN RULE DAY TO BE OBSERVED

Divide Food and Offering to Starving Children of Near East.

Lincoln Families Asked to Serv Inexpensive Dinner On Sunday.

Today is International Golden Rule Sunday.

Today we are remembering how the other half lives. We are thinking that while we are comfortable, with sufficient food and clothes, living in easy, often luxurious surroundings, with the precious companionship of friends and family, there are thousands upon thousands of other who are stinted, illy clad, dependent upon charity for every meal.

Today we are remembering those small children in the very far away, if Near East, whose lives today and whose future tomorrow lies in the hands of those who know them not and whom they have never seen. Their well being and comfort depends upon the charity of those beyond the seas, who know only by hearsay the sorrows and the hunger and the illness that these tiny boys and girls have suffered.

The many years of their lives depend upon those who have never known terrible persecution, pitiful loneliness, and lack of love—as these children know far too well. Their lives are in alien hands—hands which reach out so gladly to help them, but which sometimes neglect or forget to offer their bounty.

And today is Golden Rule Sunday. Today we shall not forget.

Today we are learning the meaning behind "Whatsoever ye would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them."

We are not denying ourselves.

We are only trying to put ourselves in the places of those dark haired boys and girls whose eyes tell of sorrows that we cannot know and whose faces speak of privations we shall never suffer—privations and persecutions in which they had no part, but of which they are innocent victims.

Today we are giving of our abundance.

Today we are as they—though we can never realize the desolation and terror of those young lives—though in our comfortable homes we cannot know the bare orphanages and slim meals.

Today we are trying, reaching out of our country across the seas and the mountains to the tiny victims of the war, whose need is so great.

Today we are dividing our food and offering to those children the other half—which means days more of life and new strength to them and a newer, stronger link in the chain of humanity and brotherliness that is binding us one to the other.

FRIENDS COME TO AID OF GOVERNOR

Bond Will Be Provided to Save M'Cray Embarrassment of Public Arrest.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 1.—Friends of Governor Warren T. McCray, under indictment on 191 counts, charging him with embezzlement, forgery and larceny, in connection with his personal financial transactions, were rallying to his aid tonight to save him the embarrassment of a public arrest.

The bond of $25,000 set by Judge Collins of the Marion county criminal court will be provided before time for the sheriff to serve the summons on him Monday, McCray's attorneys announced tonight.

Many of the governor's friends have called on him, and expressed their desire to go surety for him, the attorneys stated.

McCray, confronted by the most serious ordeal a governor of the state has ever faced, went quietly about his executive duties today as if nothing had happened.

He answered the challenge of a faction of the republican party which wants him to step down and out by saying that he would continue to be governor until his term expired.

CRUELTY TALE UNFOLDED BY MRS. BRANDEIS

cne night. There was a terrible noise in the brush. Professing to believe it was made by a lion, Brandeis fled.

As he ran, natives, their bodies painted a ghastly white with a phosporescent preparation, appeared and danced a gruesome war dance in the half light.

Falls in a Faint.

The whole effect was so realistic that Mrs. Brandeis fell over in a faint, according to her testimony. She lay in the jungle almost all night, she declared, finally regaining strength enough to drag herself back to the cabin.

As a result of this gruesome experience the baby was never born, she declared.

When Mrs. Brandeis had regained her health the party started back to the United States. Mike Cottar, an African guide who accompanied the Brandeis home, saved her life, she declared, when he husband attempted to throw her through a port hole of their state room while in mid-ocean. Cottar heard her screams and overpowered her husband, she said.

She occupied Cottar's room and he slept with Brandeis the remainder of the journey.

Arriving in Omaha the pair started housekeeping in the Brandeis "bungalow" which is located on the roof of the Brandeis downtown stores here.

One night about a week after their return Brandeis, according to Mrs. Brandeis, entered her room, tore off her clothing and beat her into unconsciousness with a jewel handled "bull" whip.

Blood flowed freely from fourteen deep cuts in her body. She was under a doctor's care for weeks and still bears the scars of her frightful treatment, she declared.

Decree Is Granted.

After listening to the testimony Judge L. B. Day granted Mrs. Brandeis her decree and restored her maiden name of Ryan.

Alimony was settled out of court, it being understood that Mrs. Brandeis received $250,000 in cash and an annuity of $8,000 as long as she lives.

Brandeis, who is 29 years old, will inherit an additional $8,000,000 on his thirtieth birthday. He was recently divorced from Madeline Frank Brandeis, beautiful San Francisco girl who is now a motion picture director in Hollywood.

Brandeis carries a complete motion picture outfit with him on his hunting trips and exhibits the films to a few friends at private showings when he returns home.

Pictures of the Alaska trip ended with a long fade out showing Mrs. Brandeis in his arms.

Affidavits in Dispute.

In his statement to the pardon board, Hopperton admits that he used a metallic tobacco cutter on Dotson but says he did so in self defense only when the latter attacked him. He asserts that the broken nose which Dotson afterward exhibited, together with other hurts, was caused by the latter's stepson, Young Moody, in a fight between the two which took place the following day.

Hopperton's attorneys, Allen G. Fisher of Chadron and Dale Stough of Lincoln, have filed with the board an affidavit purporting to have been signed by Dotson, in which the alleged victim of the assault is quoted as saying that he provoked it, that Hopperton merely defended himself, and that the injuries inflicted by Hopperton were of a minor character. The affidavit goes on to say that Moody was the one who beat him up and broke his nose.

Other sworn statements from Mr. Moody, asserting that he made the assault on Dotson and from Fred W. Davis, who says he saw Moody hit Dotson with a baseball bat, have also been presented.

Dotson has been working in Wyoming recently, but his wife, who still lives in Dawes county, wrote to the county attorney that the stepson, who is 14 years of age, had been offered $200 to sign the statement against her husband, but after he had done so no money was paid him.

The Hopperton case was appealed to the Nebraska supreme court, which not long ago affirmed the conviction.

Bogus "Nobleman" on List.

Craig Chesterfield, alias Raymond Guinon, who was reported to have victimized several business institutions at Fremont by representing himself as a British "count," although he was born at Baltimore, wants to be paroled from the reformatory. He was convicted of forgery in 1921, after presenting a bad check for $381 at a bank. He was implicated with James Baird. Chesterfield is classified as a "bookkeeper and artist." He was once employed by the Australian government. J. M. Guinett, federal immigrant inspector at Omaha, writes that he will keep tab on Chesterfield if the latter is paroled to him.

Earl C. Smythe, alias Pearsoll, who got a penitentiary term of one to five years for giving a fradulent chattel mortgage to the Ranchers' State bank at Cody, receiving $150 thereon, will be among those heard December 11. He broke jail at Valentine but was recaptured. He is said to be an army deserter and a letter from the state's attorney at Oacoma, S. D., indicates he may be wanted there for passing worthless checks.

Pair of Parole Violators.

Loren Boring, doing one to ten years for auto theft in Hall county, petitions for a second parole, after violating the terms of one which the old pardon board granted him in 1922. He returned to prison five months after his release, and has served altogether a little more than two years.

Another repeater in the parole line is Fritz Luellman, serving one to twenty years in the reformatory for forgery in Wayne county. He was 18 years old when convicted in 1919. After getting a parole, he stole from Dr. S. L. Ashworth, Lincoln chiropractor, who had befriended him and was returned.

HOTCHKISS OIL COMPANY FILES DAMAGE ACTION

Alleges Mutual Loaned to Plaintiff to Gain Control of Business.

Asks $85,000 Charging Plot to Force Concern Into Bankruptcy.

The Mutual Oil company loaned the Hotchkiss Oil company money for the purpose of gaining control of the latter company and eventually forcing it into bankruptcy, according to a petition filed in district court Saturday afternoon in which the Hotchkiss company asks $87,500 damages, said to have been incurred through the alleged conspiracy.

The first loan was made August 1, 1922, the petition says, and, at the request of the Mutual company which is engaged in wholesale business, the deal was kept secret. The Mutual company feared that its other retail customers would be antoganized if the transaction became known, the petition states.

Loans Hotchkiss $50,000.

Loans aggregating more than $50,000 were made to the Hotchkiss company between August 1, 1922 and March 1, 1923, although its paid up capital amounted to only $37,500, the petition says. The Hotchkiss company, organized under the laws of Maine, is capitalized at $50,000,000, it is said.

After the loans had been made, the Hotchkiss concern allowed free access to its books to the Mutual company and used a bookkeeping system suggested by the Mutual representatives, it is alleged.

November 1, 1922, the Hotchkiss company had an opportunity to sell enough of its unissued capital stock to repay the money advanced to it by the Mutual company the petition sets forth.

Bills of sale to the Mutual company were executed by the Hotchkiss company, because of the suggestions of the Mutual officers that some security was needed for its loans, it is said.

Business Flourishing.

Although the business of the Hotchkiss company was flourishing and the expansion of the business through the loans had been a success, the Mutual company demanded immediate possession of the Hotchkiss companys books on February 23, 1923, it was claimed.

The Hotchkiss company refused to turn over the books and March 6, 1923, the Mutual company brought action in federal court to forclose on the bill of sale. A receiver was later appointed and when the property of the then bankrupt Hotchkiss company was sold by the receiver, November 8, 1923. The Mutual company purchased the property at less than half its value at the time the suit was commenced, the petition says.

TIPPETT SPEAKS AT HI-Y MEETING

Denver Pastor Preaches Doctrine of "Aiming High" to Boys' Conference.

The 300 Older Boys' conference delegates attending the Saturday evening session at the First Christian church heard an address by Rev. Donald Tippett, pastor of the Christ Methodist church at Dencer, saw a Hi-Y installation service demonstrated, took part in songs and devotions.

Rev. Mr. Tippett preached the doctrine of "aiming high." He urged that none be guilty of the greatest of sins, the sin of not growing up. The worst tragedy that can befall is the tragedy of not reaching the goal, he said.

"The number of men put out on third didn't determine the world's series last year, and in the game of life, those who die on third don't determine it either. It isn't just arriving at first that counts."

W. W. Shaver, state boy's work secretary, lead the installation services, assisted by members of Hi-Y cabinets from various high schools.

Koby Sirinsky, violinist, furnished special music and O. B. Anderson led a song service.

Two dinners were held by the conference delegates earlier in the evening. C. C. Sheldon presided at the Camp Sheldon reunion at the Grand hotel, wher camp songs wr sung, and short extemporaneous speechs were made. The other dinner was at the Y. M. C. A.

The last session of the conference will be held at the First Christian church at 2 o'clock Sunday.

HUMANE BODIES MAY BE UNITED

Steps Taken Saturday For Branch to Affiliate With County Society.

A committee of the Lancaster County Branch Humane society was appointed Saturday afternoon at a session of the executive committee held at the chamber of commerce to work out plans, if possible, whereby the branch society may become affiliated with the Lancaster County Humane society, an incorporated organiaztion. The committee is made up of Lincoln Frost, president of the executive committee, R. O. Williams and O. J. Allison.

The proposal to make the change and become a part of the incorporated society was made as a result of the possible inability of the branch to hold property, it was said Saturday night by officials of the branch. It was also said by branch officials that the Lancaster County Humane society had been dormant during a greater part of the time since its organiaztion and the change will give it life since the branch society has been an active organization.

Before the change can be brought aobut it may be necessary to amend the constitution of the older society, and it was to learn what can be done in this respect that the committee was appointed Saturday.

Manufacturer Says 1924 Chandler Gear Shift Clash-Proof

National Traffic Transmission week begins today. The Chandler Motor car company, through its agencies everywhere has issed a general invitation urging the public to ride in the 1924 Chandler to become acquainted with its remarkable advance in automobile design and operation—a clash-proof gearset.

The Traffic Transmission, which is an exclusive feature of the Chandler, was first publicly announced in September, when the 1924 Chandlers were offered to the public.

National Transmission week has been set as a time during which every Chandler dealer will be prepared to demonstrate the 1924 Chandler to any motorist who would like to see for himself that the transmission is in fact all that the manufacturers claim for it.

From the beginning of the automotive industry, the transmission has remained virtually unimproved. Until the coming of the Traffic Transmission, the only practicable gearset for passenger cars was the sliding gear transmission That the sliding gear transmission was far from perfect is admitted throughout the industry.

So recently as October 25, Automotive Industries, a leading trade paper said. "The sliding change-speed gear from its first application to automobiles, has been described as a mechanical monstrosity, and innumerable attempts have been made to replace it with something better." Naturally, when the Chandler company brought out the Traffic Transmission, with the announcement that all the old difficulties of gear shifting had been eliminated, it was to be expected that the news would seem to many to be too good to be true.

Probably the most appealing feature of the new transmission to the average driver, is that it is impossible to clash gears. Even the most expert of drivers, operating a car with the sliding gear transmission, was likely to clash gears occasionally. It was this clashing of gears, a fault inherent in a design that required the meshing of the teeth of two gears while both were rotating rapidly at different speeds, that always had been one of the greatest drawbacks to driving.

The Chandler company, in its general invitation to the public, emphasizes the fact that one who accepts is under no obligation.

National Traffic Transmission week was originated with a view to inducing as many motorists as possible, regardless of the make of car they drive, to learn by their own experience that gear-shifting troubles have really been eliminated at last.

PERU STATE NORMAL.

Many alumni were at Peru during homecoming week. Supt. M. G. Lefler of Lincoln, was one of the visitors. Principal Leger of Fairbury, spent two days at "Old Peru." Many recent graduates spent the Thanksgiving holiday among the oaks. Home coming week has been an enjoyable ceek.

The hundred odd guests at the radio concert were given a delightful entertainment. Mrs. Lon R. Graf opened the program with some well received solo dances. Miss Frances Hacker read two delightful comic sketches. A. E. Holch led a glee club of men's voices in a clever skit and two songs.

WITNESSES FOR STATE NULLIFY OWN EVIDENCE

shotgun and clean them all out," replied Lana, according to the witness.

Realizing that Lana was drunk, he tried to persuade him to stay with him for the night, Fuehring said. He feared that there would be serious trouble. Lana refused to be persuaded though, and Fuehring accompanied him to the house, the witness continued.

Arriving at Vajgrt's, Lana went to the door and called Adolph Vajgrt, the father, outside, said Fuehring.

Adolph attempted to shake hands but Lana cut him off with:

"Come out in the yard where there's lots of room to fight," Fuehring stated.

The affair was finally smoothed over and relations were fairly friendly when they parted, but Fuehring testified that Lana haid said after they left Vajgrt, "If I had my knife I'd have fixed Adolph pretty quick. Once I took a butcher knife from the table and made a lunge at Adolph but I don't know whether I did any good or not."

"Well, Lana was mild enough when he was sober, wasnt he?" County Attorney McKillip interjected at this point.

"No, he was never very mild," Fuehring replied.

James Marek, Crete banker, was called to the stand and testified that Vajgrt had come to his bank and paid about $200 on his and his wife's insurance policies on Monday the same day the killing took place. The state attempted to prove by this that Vajgrt was worried and wanted to get his affairs in shape. Marek immediately reversed the effect of the testimony by stating that on the Saturday before, Mrs. Vajgrt had come into the bank and had wished to pay the insurance, but, since the accounts were not available, she was told to come in again the next time she was in town.

Attempting to Clear Vajgrt.

J. J. Thomas, chief counsel for the defense, showed a disposition to clear Adolph Vajgrt from all connection with the killing and trust to a self-defense theory to clear Mrs. Vajgrt and Alby, the 15-year-old daughter.

Mr. Thomas withdrew his objection to County Attorney McKillip testifying as to Mrs. Vajgrt's confession at the coroner's inquest.

In her confession, Mrs. Vajgrt testified that Adolph knew nothing of the killing until it was all over. She testified that she and Alby had gone to see Lana and that a struggle had taken place in which Lana was shot. The gun was in Lana's hands and Lana was attempting to point it at her and Alby when the trigger was pulled, she declared.

Only in the testimony of Glen Pendell of Seward, did the state advance its case. Pendell testified that Mrs. Vajgrt had told him that Lana had told him that Lana had had improper relations with Alby only once, this being last spring, when Alby graduated from the eighth grade.

Court was adjourned until Monday morning. The jurymen will not be allowed to go to their homes.

Pure Breds From Nearly All Sections Make Bow at Chicago Live Stock Show

Approximately 11,000 Animals Strut Proudly As Expert Judges Make Awards—Nebraskans Win First Honors.

(United Press.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Eleven thousand "barn yard beasts" who never saw a barnyard, scented the breath of Chicago's stockyards today. Pure breds, thoroughbreds, and all the breeds of blooded animals were on formal show at the international livestock exposition which is being held under the shadow of the great packing houses.

Champions of many a state and county fair strutted proudly as hundreds of expert judges passed by taking notes on the size of their hoofs, the color of their noses, and the distance from shoulder to rump.

Hundreds of flunkeys, taking pride in the glossiness of fur, wool and hair on their charges, hurried among the animals grooming them hourly for fresh inspection.

Blooded cows and bulls, pampered and petted; monster hogs, too bulky and too polished to know the joys of a pig pen; prize winning sheep, their long, luxurious wool carefully combed, looked their prettiest for the throngs of spectators.

Not far away—so close that the December wind carried the odors to the show—thousands of other cattle and hogs and sheep were being herded to the slaughter. The difference was only a matter of blood—and grooming, perhaps.

Giant Note Books.

Almost as astounding as the animals themselves were the giant "note books" of the judges. From stall to stall, down one aisle and then another, the judges went, each animal being "covered" with dimensions, color, and weight.

Youthful judges from Indiana and Oklahoma tied for first place in the initial judging contest. Virginia placed third and Missouri was fourth. High school judges from Nebraska won first honors in their class with a total of 1,535 points. Oklahoma placed second, California third, Virgina fourth and Indiana fifth.

Gerald Jenny, Wisconsin college of agriculture, won the annual essay contest from a field of 180 "aggie" students.

Hundreds of blue ribbon saddle and harness horses were on exhibition in another department.

A polo game each evening of the show is a feature of the horse exposition. The show will continue through next week.

RENEWED EFFORT TO HALT CRIME

Indianapolis Police Are Instructed to Arrest Every Suspect.

Drastic Orders Follow Brutal Murder And Series Of Robberies.

(nited Press.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 1. — Orders went out from Indianapolis police headquarters tonight to arrest every suspect in the downtown district in an effort to check the crime wave that has terrorized the city the past week.

One of the most brutal murders in recent years, several holdups, a half dozen robberies, and a multitude of petty thefts, caused issuance of drastic orders to arrest every suspicious character who could not give a satisfactory explanation of his actions.

Police admitted tonight that they were still far from a solution of the murder of Mrs. Helen Whelchel, 22-year-old manicurist, whose body was found Wednesday morning between the Big Four railroad tracks west of the city.

After crushing her skull, the assailant threw her from an automobile onto the railroad tracks expecting a passing train to mutilate the body beyond recognition, according to police.

A man who danced with her the evening she was murdered was quizzed for several hours today, but was unable to shed any light on her movements after she left the dance hall, police said.

BONUS FIGHT IS TO OPEN EARLY

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The soldiers' bonus and the Mellon tax reduction plan will march into the new congress side by side.

Confident that sufficient majorities exist in both the senate and house to pass a bonus bill, supporters in informal conferences tonight decided to lay a compensation measure before congress at its initial session next week, and to make a fight to get it passed while the administration's tax reduction legislation is being framed and discussed in the house ways and means committee.

The attitude of President Coolidge toward a bonus for world war veterans was still a mystery tonight. Congressional polls conducted by the American legion, however, indicate that there will be enough votes in the incoming congress to pass the bill even over a presidential veto. Mr. Coolidge has not revealed whether he favors or opposes a bonus, but he will announce his position next week in his message to congress.

Five Plans Offered.

Five ways for financing a bonus are proposed in the bonus bill to be introduced in the house on Monday by Representative Elton Watkins, democrat, of Oregon. These plans are:

1—By levying a poll tax of $250 on each imigrant entering the United States.

2—By taxing each alien resident $50.

3—By levying a 2 per cent tax on the gross income of each foreign corporation in the United States.

4—By increasing inheritance taxes, and 5—By re-enacting an excess profits tax and using money in the federal treasury for which no appropriations have been made.

Either of these plans, Watkins declared tonight, would produce enough money to pay ex-service men at the rate of $1.25 a day for foreign service and $1.00 a day for home service between April 5, 1917, and Nov. 12 1918.

Peru State Normal

Prof. A. Crago, has returned from Florida, and resumed his duties on Tuesday.

Miss Nellie Mc Aulay left Peru, on November 24 for her new position in Huron, South Dakota. Miss McAulay has charge of the commercial department of the Huron Presbyterian college.

Miss Ehther Hoyt '22, who is taking work at the University School of Music at Lincoln, spent the Thanksgiving holidays at Peru with her parents.

Miss Edith Van Middlesworth, a graduate of Peru and a former critic teacher under presidents Hays and Rouse, is teaching in the Valley City normal school, Valley City, S. D.

Professor and Mrs. Hoyt entertained several of their friends on Thanksgiving evening. The hosts invited the guests to listen in on their radio for the program broadcasted by station WOAW, Omaha. This program was sponsored by the Peru state teachers college, and consisted of musical selections, readings and talks. The talks were given by President W. R. Pate and various prominent Peru alumni.

The Dramatic club put on two plays Friday evening: "Not a Man in the House" and "The Twelve-Pound Look." Both plays were well acted. The latter play by Sir James M. Barrie discovered some dramatic talent. The leading roles were taken by Helen Humbert of Omaha and Merritt Whitten of Nebraska City.

Professor Clayburn, of the department of geography went to Lincoln to attend the Nebraska-Kansas Aggie football game. Rejoicing over the Cornhusker victory, he hurried to Omaha to help with the radio program.

Cars Damaged In Collision

W. J. Overton, assistant superintendent of streets, driving a city car, was a party to a collision at Sixteenth and P streets Saturday morning that damaged the city car and the car of Fred Hansen of Havelock. Neither driver was injured. According to Mr. Overton he was driving south on Sixteenth street and Hansen went on P street. The heavier car struck Overton's machine and chased it across the intersection, demolishing two wheels, the running board and bending one axle. Mr. Hansen's car was also damaged.

COTTON PRICES STILL MOUNTING

Predict "Dollar a Pound" Unless Destruction By Boll Weevil Checked.

Bankers Over Nation Expect Good Business During Winter Months.

(International News Service.)

NEW YOR, Dec. 1—The seriousness of the cotton crop destruction by the boll weevil was emphasized this week by a prediction by Edward S. Butler, president of the New Orleans cotton exchange, that the price of cotton may go to one dollar a pound unless the menace is checked.

Cotton this week reached the highest price since August, 1920. Industrial and railway corporations continue to announce extra dividends, reflecting the prosperity of the country. Statistics compiled today show gains in October by forty railroads over the income of October 1922. Bankers predict good business throughout the winter.

Bank clearings of the entire country this week were estimated at $7,110,056,240, compared with $8,072,157,724 last week.

The rate on money for call loans in New York this week ranged from 5 1-2 per cent to 4 3-4 per cent. Three months loans were made at 5 per cent. Demand for money was light. The south reported plenty of money despite the short cotton crop

Price gains predominated over declines for Liberty bonds during the week. The first 4 1-4s (registered) advanced 11 cents and the Liberty 2 1-8s gained 9 cents. New bonds issued by various corporations this week totalled $45,482,500.

Failures Decrease.

Bradstreets reported 287 business failures this week throughout the entire country against 406 last week and 409 this week last year. Most of the failures were in middle western states.

Average price of twenty representative industrials on the New York stock exchange was 92.34 against 92.10 last week. Average price of twenty representative railway issues was 83.82 against 84.02 last week.

The amount of the cotton crop brought into sight totalled 417,012 bales this week, compared with 442,558 last week.

The total exports for the week were 161,019 bales against 67,997 last week. The American visible supply of cotton is ostimated at 3,226,125 bales, against 3,147,915 last week.

Heavy shipments of corn forced down the price this week. The visible supply of corn increased 556,000 bushels. The visible suply of American wheat increased 1,455,000 bushels. The visible supply of Canadian wheat increased 2,824,000 bushels. Chicago grain men have started a movement to have repealed the tax on future trading in grains This is speculative trading where grain does not actually change hands.

AMERICAN LEGION SHOWS SPLENDID GROWTH IN 1923

Service Campaign Inaugurated Year Ago Brings Many New Members.

Work of Lincoln Post Is Reviewed In Annual Reports Of Officers.

The annual report of E. U. Guenzel post commander of the American Legion in Lincoln, shows a decided growth of that organization's activities. Starting with a slogan of "Service We Gave—Service We Give" the commander and executive committee in December of 1922 created a new office of service-secretary. C. C. Becker was appointed to give his full time to such work. This office took cars of all ex-service men's wants and did much of the legion's business. Later Henry Harper took over Mr. Becker's duties. So successful has been this phase of legion activities that the new administration will continue the office of service-secretary with Mr. Harper retaining his position.

When Christmas rolled around the legion cooperated with the auxiliary in distributing boxes of food to needy veterans in Lincoln. The state reformatory was also visited and the ex-service men confined there were given Christmas boxes.

In January, 1923, the membership committee began its drive. Twenty teams were used in canvassing the downtown districts. This was done through the cooperation of merchants, churches and civic clubs of the city. Many firms soon attained 100 per cent in legion membership.

The annual legion show was held in the Orpheum theatre in February. It was during this month that it began taking a part in boy scout work. Several members took charge of boy scout troops. A troop was organized at the state home for dependent children.

The G. A. R. convention found the American Legion men helping the old soldiers. The entire time of the service-secretary was put at the disposal of the civil war veterans.

Dedicate Memorial Avenue.

Memorial avenue was dedicated in April. The Lincoln woman's club asked the legion to take part. On this day the veterans came out in uniform to plant ninety-three elms in memory of their comrades. General Pershing and Colonel Paul assisted the legion in this part of the dedication.

A smoker was held in the club rooms on April 16, where the legion entertained all war veterans of the city. Over 400 guests turned out for this occasion. Another banner meeting was held in the club rooms when the organization held a "Legionnaires and employers" meeting. At this meeting representatives of the United States Veterans bureau told of their problems of rehabilitating veterans of the world war.

Twenty-five hundred children witnessed the picture, "The Man Without a country," at the city auditorium in the first part of May, as guests of the legion. Prior to this a big parade of school children was held. Children of the Orthopedic hospital were given the very best seats.

The Lincoln Junior league assisted in providing transportation for the crippled children. The legion assisted its auxiliary in annual poppy day drive. Money from this drive is used for welfare work among ex-service men. Thanksgiving and Christmas boxes are part of the things provided for from this fund. The organization cooperated with the G. A. R. on Memorial day.

A round-up at Capital Beach was held for all ex-service men in the state during the latter part of June. Over 20,000 people attended. A feature of it was the children's kiddy car and coaster wagon parade.

In July the post paper commenced publication every two weeks. This took the place of the Mid-west Veteran which had suspended publication a short time before.

The Legion dutifully took a lead in the ceremonies at the city auditorium at the time of President Harding's death. A squad of men took the post colors and American flag to Fremont to do honor to the funeral train when it passed through.

During fair week many visitors congregated at the club rooms. A boxing match was put on by the organization at Landis field.

Legion Takes Auditorium.

The city auditorium was sub-leased from the city in October by the legion It was run on about the same plan as the city run it before. During the state convention at Hastings, the Lolncoln post stood back of Professor Taylor of the state university until he was elected department commander.

Armistice day was celebrated in Lincoln on November 10, because of the desire of the post to cooperate with the University of Nebraska in making this the greatest day that Lincoln ever had. The organization entertained Governor Bryan, General Duncan and his staff, and the mayor of the city. The greatest parade that was ever held in Lincoln made this day a success. A reception for Department Commander Charles W. Taylor and a free dance to all ex-service men was given at the city auditorium.

In general the legion aided in filing state aid claims, claims against the government and helped in personal troubles of many ex-service men. The firing squad of the local post attended many funerals of ex-service men. New jobs were procured for veterans in every month cured for veterans in every month of the year. The legion hand took part in many of the post's ceremonies.

PROSECUTION TO FOLLOW PROBE

Punishment Foreshadowed In Investigation Of Veterans Bureau.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Federal prosecution of persons responsible for the "grave wrongs of an apparently criminal nature" found by the senate committee investigating the veterans' bureau, was foreshadowed in a statement issued by the department of justice tonight.

The statements said Attorney General Daugherty was examining data received from the committee and added that the senate committee believed "three appeared to be grounds upon which criminal proceedings might be instituted."

Assistant Attorney General Crim, whose resignation was to take effect December 15, has studied the testimoney taken by the committee, and will remain as special assistant to the attorney general to prosecute the case, it was announced.

General O'Ryan and Major Arnold, counsel for the senate committee, will be asked to act as Crim's assistants.

The statement pointed out that Daugherty could not discuss the case nor say what steps were contemplated until definite action had commenced owing to the necessity for insuring an unbiased trial.

Plan Test Case Over Tax Return By City Banks

The city will refuse to accept the offered one-fourth payment of 1923 taxes on bank capital and will join with the banks in a friendly suit to determine the legality of the full assessment as claimed by Commissioner Dayton, city treasurer.

Mr. Dayton said Saturday that he could not take the one-fourth payment and issue the usual receipt and that he doubted if the banks would accept the kind of receipt he would offer for such a payment and that consequently he had agreed to join in hurrying court action to determine the rights of the city and of the banks. In the meantime, the banks will not pay their city taxes on capital stock.

COLORADO.

40 to 80 BUSHELS CORN PER ACRE ON $15 TO $20 PER ACRE LAND

There never was a better time than right now to invest in cheap western land. Washington county farms stand undisputed as to their producing quality of wheat. During the past few years our farmers began raising more hogs and corn and there are thousands of acres of corn in Washington county this year which will yield better than 40 bushels per acre. We can offer farms either improved or unimproved, which are bound to make you money within one next few years. Why pay high priced rent when you can secure a farm of your own on terms equal to the rent you are paying in the east. Akron the county seat, situated 112 miles northeast of Denver, is the main line of the C. B. & Q. Chicago to Denver, a thriving little town of 1,600 population. Plenty of good churches and schools. Doctrine of Kindness Preached at State Hospital Meets with a Ready Response

THE CHAPEL AT THE STATE HOSPITAL. -MACDONALD.

HAUCK PHOTO

PROF. FREDERICK A. STUFF

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

It is Sunday morning.

Into the chapel of the hospital for the insane comes a long line of worshippers; men and women, some of them nod to their acquaintances and speaks lightly of things, others merely walk on, directed to their seats by the white-capped attendants.

Here and there are silverhaired, sweet-faced women who, for many years have known no other home than the asylum. Here is a fresh young face, with only, perhaps, an unusual expression to the eye to show the trouble; faces with drawn lips, pale cheeks, a restlessness in their movements tell of bitterness against the confinement that they believe to have been forced upon them.

The majority of them are quiet, very quiet. There is something different about the chapel Sunday mornings—they realize that it is the House of the Lord, and they have come to worship.

But this Sunday morning, there was grief in the hearts of these men and women. The face that has come to mean so much to them, the voice that has told them many things, and urged the on to a different better life is not there; their friend, their adviser for more than twenty years has failed them, and they can't understand.

Aiding the Unfortunates.

For nearly twenty-one years Prof. Frederick A. Stuff of the University of Nebraska, has given his Sundays and as much other time as he could manage to the people in the asylum. He has been doing his bit towards aiding humanity, and a big bit it was.

A recent order passed by the regents of the university have made it impossible for a man to accept two salaries, no matter how small they may be, from the state. So it happens that Prof. Stuff was forced to give up his work, the work of half a life time.

Not only are the inmates of the hospital sore at heart over losing Professor Stuff, but the staff of physicians and attendants as well. He has been a large factor in discipline and in aiding the patients to strive towards a more natural life, according to Dr. D. G. Griffiths, superintendent of the hospital.

"To my knowledge," said Dr. Griffiths, "Professor Stuff has never missed a Sunday out here since he began his work, except a few in the summer when he has been away on vacations.

Change In Discipline.

"And in those one, two or three weeks that he has been gone, we would notice a decided change in the discipline out here. The men and the women became restless, and their troubles that they seemed able to forget after his visits, seemed to come back two-fold, and we would have a terrible time of it until he came back again.

"Professor Stuff knew just how to talk to these people. He didnt nag at them, he didn't feel sorry for them, that is, he didnt tell them so, he just talked to them as one person would talk to another, telling them of the things that were going on in the world, and of the duty men and women owed to the world. He would them that kindness was the greatest thing in life, that they should be careful of people's feelings, not to say and do unkind things, and to keep their minds as free of hatred and bitterness as possible.

"And they would listen eagerly to everything he had to say, and not only listened, but tried to do as he said.

Their Spiritual Adviser.

"Approximately only about one-fourth of the thousand inmates go to chapel, sometimes not that many but they carry the word back to their wards and are factors in keeping others as Professorr Stuff has told them they must be. So you see, when Professor Stuff is away, that means there is no influence to go into the ward, for he is about only one who can guide them spiritually.

"We have tried, the Sunday he has been away, to have others out here to give sermons and to talk to the people, but they always seemed to say the wrong thing. They would do more damage than they would do good. I don't know what we will do now. We haven't told the men and women yet, and they have not heard of it until they saw someone else in the pulpit."

Professor Stuff regrets leaving his work, too. He has been able to get so close to the men and women who have learned to love him, that it is like breaking home ties not to be able to work with them longer. While he will not be able to give so much time, he will go out there occasionally to visit his friends, and Dr. Griffiths says that there is no doubt but what he will be called for some special case or other.

"If I have been able to give something to those people out there, something that no one has been able to, I am glad, but I attribute it to nothing but my experience. After nearly twenty-one years it would only be natural that I would be able to do something for them.

"One must not refer to the condition of those minds, that is in the talks I have been giving them on Sunday, I have always avoided that. 'I tell them of current things that are going on, I read them passages from the Bible that I believe will have a soothing influence, and I try to tell them what happiness and forgetting about the scores they want to settle and all that, will do for them.

"I do not stop with giving a certain sermon on just one Sunday, but I give it again and again, at least two or three times. I dont mean in succession, but close enough together so they will remember they have heard it before.

Study of The Situation.

"One peculiar thing about them is they like to hear something they have heard before. It arouses their memory, and it gives them a keener sense of appreciation after the first time. They are that way with music, too. If they hear a song once they may like it and respond to it, but not with the genuine warmth that will come on hearing the same song, the second or third time."

But Professor Stuffs work hasn't been from the pulpit altogether. He has spent hours with individuals, trying to help them, and speaking frankly to them showing them that they must help themselves along the road of recovery.

"There was one old fellow out there,' said Professor Stuff,' a shoemaker, and he was suffering from delusions. He thought everyone was against him and plotting for his down fall and all that. I began to work with that man, trying to show him where he was wrong, where the trouble was with his own mind and no one else. He responded wonderfully. He seemed to grasp my idea almost at once, and he began to improve. I finally secured a position for him outside, and he was released. So far he has suffered no relapse, and it is to be hoped that he does not.

"I think the most outsanding case I ever had was a good many years ago, when the chanel was in the ironing room above the laundry. Six days out of the week this room served for ironing, and on the seventh it was used as a church. It was an awful place, too. But, my story about this young woman, a University of Nebraska girl, who was a wreck from overstudy, her's was a general nervous break lown that affected her mind."

"She had married a Lincoln fellow, and her domestic life had not been happy by any means, it may have been due to the condition of her mind at that time, or the unhappiness may have affected her mind, I don't know. Anyway, she was taken to a local sanitarium at first, and her baby boy was born there. She refused to have a thing to do with the baby, would not even look at it. She grew worse and they finallyb took her to the state hospital.

Restored By Right Treatment.

"The first Sunday morning after her arrival, I saw her sitting in the back row. Her face was familiar, and I knew who she was for she had had work under me at school. It happened, too, that Sunday, that it was Mother's day, and I had chosen verses and sonnets about mothers to be delivered as my sermon.

"I remember I read from Tennyson's "Princess," the sonnets between the cantos, concerning mothers, and I talked of the wonder of motherhood. At that time my sister was head of the nursing staff, and she was standing by me as the lines filled out of the chapel. When this girl came by she threw her arms around my sisters neck, and sobbed 'Oh, I want my baby, I want my baby. The baby was rought to her, and in ten days she was out of the hospital.

"Her care outside was not good, bhowever, and before long she was back in the hospital again.

"I began to work with her again, and she had confidence in me because she knew me. She had recognized me that first Sunday, and that, together with the reading of Tennyson, with which she was also familiar had restored her reason for the time being at least.

"I worked hard with her and she, like the shoemaker, responded quickly, and was out in three weeks. She went back east and later married. I saw her not so long ago and she seems to be very happy. Her son s a fine lad and is a big boy now. Her domestic life seems delighted and she seems to have recovered entirely.

"There was another case too, of a school teacher who had not heard of any of her relatives for over thirty years. I began working with her and found some of the relatives. They came immediately, and furnished money to help make things easy and pleasant for her. After a while, she too, was released and at the present time is in California and has continued her work out there. She seems to be getting along splendidly without any relapse.

"Don't believe, though, that we consider these cases definitely cured, for they may not be. We have helped them restore their mind, and I can only hope for the best.

Patience Not Science.

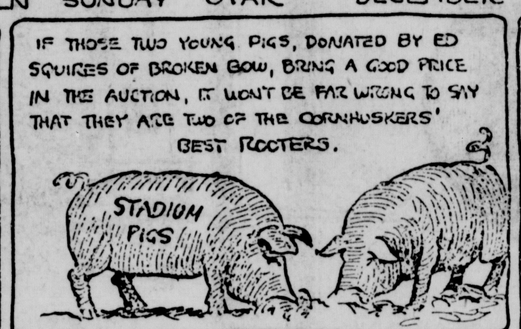

"I want it understood, too, that there is no science about this. I merely talk to them, gain their con-

Beautiful Yule Tide Customs of Pagan Days Reflected In Our Modern, Christian Christmas

BY LULU MAE COE.

"Little House of Christmas, all drifted deep with snow.
Holly-decked, and sweet with fir, and hung with mistletoe,
All the roads of all the world, cheerless, were, and drear,
Were your blazing Yule logs quenched that beckon once a year."

The chariot of the months, with the mysteriously youthful Father Time holding the ribbons, has brought the Yule to us again—almost before it had whisked around the corner from sight it is coming up the hill of the minutes again for its glorious hour.

The old, but ever young Noel rides in, triumphant, bearing in its outstretched arms, its offering of tradition and custom, symbolized in the green of the fir, the white of the mistletoe, and the red of the holly.

Ance again we hang the wreaths in lighted windows, topped with their bows of red. Again, we light the taper and push the curtain up to show Him that He is welcome therein. And again, we place the fir, so straight, so slim, so tall and place the brilliant and gleaming balls upon it.

We do it—yes—lovingly, thoughtfully, tenderly for those who will be in our homes.

We do it because our mothers and our fathers and their mothers and their fathers did it. Custom has dictated it, the custom handed down from father to son, and we trim the tree and hang the wreaths as though those dim ancestors had decreed it.

We do—but far dimmer and far more remote ancestry has laid this task upon us than we consider.

As we do the simple, homely Christmas duties, the tree rustles and murmurs with a tale it can not tell. It knows that its ancestors have not always been blazoned with Shristian hands. It knows that long, long ago before He whose birthday we celebrate was on earth that it was a festal tree. It knows that, of all the trees of the world, it was chosen for this one great day.

Story of Ages Past.

In the candle's flickering we can read a story of ages past, when candles were lighted in lands far away. In the pearl gleam of the mistletoe is a history of another people, who lived so long ago that much of their life is lost in antiquity. The holly tells another tale of those days when man believed in the good and the evil spirits of His words had penetrated into so few places.

Christmas, we say, the birth day of the Christ.

A Christian day with Christian ceremonies, with good will and kindliness and thoughtfulness.

Yet, December 25 is the commemoration of an event, rather than a particular day.

And its quaint ceremonies and pretty traditions have come into the Christian era before the coming of the Christ and some of them he took over into the new life, and so closely have they become a part of us that time has erased the thought of their origin from our minds.

Christmas is an evolution of the joyous celebration with which primitive man welcomed the northward turning of the light bringing sun. The early man, who peopled the darkness beyond the ruddy rays of his fire, with hobgoblins and mysterious creatures of his imagination feared the long dark nights of the southward moving sun and was joyous when it seemed to stop in mid December and returned to him, with its light.

And did He not come to bring light into the world?

The Roman Saturnalia, a feast in honor of Saturn, was held about this time, and from that feast has come many of our Christmas customs. The others are a mixture of German, Scandinavian, and Briton. Christmas was not celebrated until the reign of Constantine, for the early Christians regarded birthdays as pagan customs, and, after persecution, death, rather than a new life seemed sweetest to them. When the celebration was finally considered, December 25, as adopted by the western church, was chosen from four other dates which were chosen as Christ's birthday, although it probably occurred in the autumn.

The Saturnalia was celebrated for seven days, one of which was devoted to the children, from whence has come the significance of Christmas as a day for the children. The festival began with a public sacrifice in front of the temple of Saturn and was followed by feasting and merrymaking. Crowds thronged the streets shouting "To Saturnalia"—and today we wish all "A Merry Christmas." The religious sacrifice has become a church service, and the Christmas dinner is a proper part of every Yuletide celebration.

First Christmas Presents.

Probably the first Christmas presents were exchanged at the Saturnalia, when bakers presented to their customers small images of dough or baked clay and the chandlers gave to all who bought their wares colored Christmas tapers. It was the custom to exchange small presents, as a sign of good will, with others during the seven days of the feast.

The hanging of the mistletoe originated in Britain in the days of the Druids. At the winter solstice—again when the sun was coming north with its light—the ancient Britons, accompanied by their priests, the Druids, went in ceremonial form in search of the dull white berries. The vine was regarded by them with veneration and when found it was gathered with solemnity.

The arch-Druid, or high priest, in a white robe and standing upon the broad back of a white bull, cut the precious parasite from the tree with a gold knife. The mistletoe found on the oak was selected, for it was the Druidical sacred tree, and it was rare on the tree, but the Britons did not venerate that on the wild crab, where it grew profusely. After the mistletoe on the oak had been cut, the bull was sacrificed, and portions of the vine given to the people to take to their homes.

The holly and the mistletoe, so common in our homes at the Noel, represented life to the ancient folk. Once upon a time, it is said, only the mistletoe was used, but it was thought to represent too tranquil, smooth a life and that it was misleading. Accordingly, in dim ages past, so long ago that only antiquity knows the time, mistletoe was taken from the places of worship, and holly substituted. It meant in its red berries the sorrows and sadness of life and in its thorns the crosses and hurts of existence.

The Yule Log.

The Yule log is a remembrance of the old Scandinavian Christmas. Today, our fire places are too small for the huge log, and some of our homes have no hearth, but where it is possible, we burn the Yule log on the Christmas night. The early northerners kindled huge fires in honor of Thor at the feast of Jul, or Yule, at the winter solstice. In olden times the feast was accompanied with appropriate ceremonies and a huge log was fired by setting fire to a portion of one saved from the previous year for that purpose.

The ceremonial goose and turkey of our groaning boards probably came to us from England. Beef is the traditional English Christmas dish but a "Round About Our Coal Fire," written in 1740, describing the British Yuletide, says:

"Capon and goose likewise,
Brawn and dish of sturgeon."

It is probable the goose has long appeared on the foreign table. In 1573, Tusser tells of the part turkies took in the "Christmas husbandlie fare." Since the early Pilgrims came from England and since wild turkeys were so common that they would walk tamely about a yard, as one writer described, it is probable that turkey has a long American lore. The browned little pig, with the rosy apple in its mouth is the modern boar's head of old England, considered then such a delicacy. While the boar is not native to America, it is in parts of Europe, and at Queen's college, Oxford, a boar's head is always brought in on Christmas day in a procession to the table, accompanied by a carol.

On Christmas eve we light a candle for the window, so that the Christ child may know that he is welcome as he passes by. Long, long ago in Scandinavia they lighted a candle on the eve of Noel to guide the Virgin Mary on her way. Even that was a custom from the Saturnalia, when candles were used for illumination and as symbols of light. Probably the use of candles was derived from the Jewish Feast of Dedication, which was held at the same time of the year.

Tradition of the Pines.

Lovely tradition hovers around the sturdy pines, without which Christmas is only half Christmas. It is said that St. Winifred, a missionary to the Scandinavians in the eighth century, tried to show them that the Druid priests made them worship trees only instead of the Christ. It was the custom to cut an oak at Christmas time, around which they gathered for a human sacrifice.

As it was being hewed, a strong wind felled the oak and split it into four pieces. Behind them suddenly rose a young fir, tapering heavenward and clothed in the green of eternal life. St. Winifred urged them to accept this as a substitute for the oak and the human sacrifice, telling them, according to tradition, that:

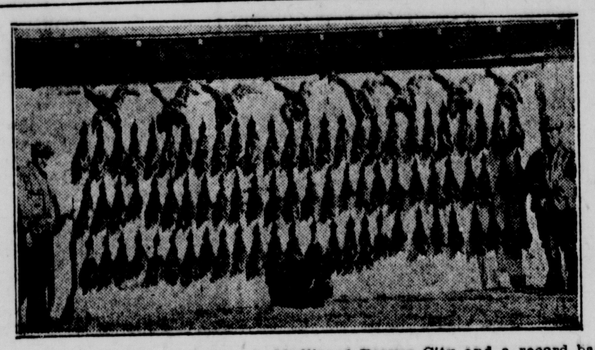

"Here is the living tree, with no stain of blood upon it, that shall be the sign of your new worship. See how it points to the sky. Call it the tree of the Christ Child. Take it up and carry it to the chieftain's hall. You shall go no more into the shadows of the forest to keep your feasts with rites of shame. You shall keep them at home, with laughter and songs and rites of love. The thunder oak has fallen, and I think the day is coming when there shall not be a home in all Germany where the children are not gathered around the green fir tree to rejoice in the birthnight of Christ."

At the feast of the Saturnalia, the Romans carried pines in their processional. In 1830, Helen of Orleans celebrated Christmas in the Tuileries with a small tree. In 1860 in France the trees were difficult to secure, but there was a change after the next decade, for in 1870, the Germans celebrated Christmas in Notre Dame. Albert Edward, husband of Queen Victoria of England, introduced the Christmas tree into England, where it was immediately popular and it also has a German origin in this country.

Legend has woven another exquisite bit of story about the fir tree. It is said that the Christ Child wanders about the earth on Christmas Eve, seeking who shall give Him welcome. In His hand He beas a branch of the fragrant fir tree, which represents the life that shall never end. Wherever he finds a home with a bit of fir at the door or a little tree at the window—a sign that He is loved and welcome and remembered—He touches that home with his gentle hand and blesses it.

Tradition, story, legend, saga—they are the background for our Christmas, for the celebration of the Christ Child's saga. Nothing known, but in their vagueness lending a mistly, hallowed atmosphere to the day. Christian is the day, yet pagan rituals and heathen beliefs have formed it, have made our Yule as we will have it in a few short weeks. Yet, is it any the less beautiful and the less hallowed because in it we are joined with those men and women who have been dust for centuries and for whom He came that they might know?

University Notes

The American chemical society announces an essay contest in each state for six prizes of $20 each on six selected topics in chemistry. Any student enrolled in any secondary or high school, public or private, is eligible. From among the winners of state prizes a national committee will select the best essay in each of the six classes. The writers will be awarded four-year scholarships at Yale university or Vassar College, pursuant to the wishes of the donors—Francis P. Garvan, president of the chemical foundations, and Mrs Garvan. Contestants are advised to consult freely with science and other teachers for advice as to sources of information. It is not the intention of those in charge of the contest to induce participants to write technical essays. No knowledge of chemistry is required of entrants in the contest; the object and purpose is to instil a live interest in the subject.

Dr. F. W. Upson, chairman of the department of chemistry at the University of Nebraska, is a member of the state committee, of which Dr. William Barr, chemist for the Union Pacific railway, is chairman. The third member of the state committee is yet to be announced. Essays must be in the hands of the designated authorities in the state before April 1, 1924. Winners will be announced not later than July 1, 1924. Contestants from Nebraska may obtain further information from the state committee.

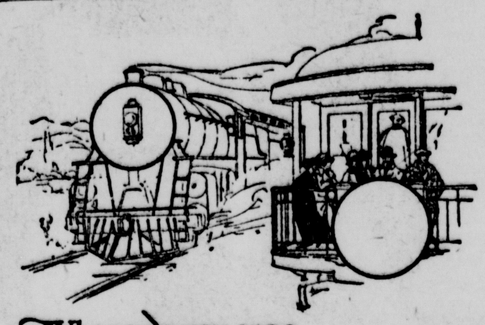

A Thanksgiving dinner and party for university students was given Thursday evening at the Grand hotel under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

Dean R. A. Lyman of the College of Pharmacy has been named a member of the advisory committee appointed by the American conference of pharmaceutical faculties to assist Dr. W. W. Chamber of Pittsburg, Pa., in his study of pharmaceutical education in the United States from a functional point of view. The trustees of the Carnegie Commonwealth fund for industrial research have appropriated $9,000 for the coming year, and $15,000 for the following year to be devoted to this work. Dean Lyman is to serve in the department of physiology and pharmacology. Other members of the committee are Dr. Rusby of Columbia university, Dr. Dye of Ohio State university, and Dean Rudd of the University of Virginia.

"Sources and Characteristics of the English Language" was the subject of Prof. Lawrence Fossler of the department of modern languages at the regular freshman lecture Monday evening and Tuesday morning. Professor Fossler traced the development of the tongue and pointed out how the English language is constantly borrowing from others to enrich its store of near-synonyms.

The bulletin of the summer session at the university is being prepared under the direction of Dean W. E. Sealock of Teachers college, director of the session, and will go to press probably the first of the week in January. Eight thousand copies will be printed to supply the requests for information, which are already coming in to the office of Dean Sealock. The bulletin gives a summary of university routine and courses.

The Trades School poultry-judging team of the university placed fourth in competition with seven schools at the Kansas City Royal Poultry show. The Nebraska men were especially proficient in production-judging in which they tied for first place. C. E. Crane of Exeter, J. J. Bastion of Lincoln, and H. D. Carter of Riverton, Ia., represented Nebraska. Mr. Crane was third high man in the contest and won a medal for his proficiency. S. J. Marsden, instructor in animal husbandry, coached the team.

OUT AT YANKEE HILL

Logan A. Rogers takes occasion to pay his respects to some of the solicitous politicians, who have been devoting a great deal of their attention to the farmer in recent months.

What Mr. Rogers has to say contains so much common sense, and is such a splendid analysis of the situation that we are taking the liberty to reproduce his communication to this newspaper. He writes:

"While conferences have been held to discuss ways and means to help the farmers and while politicians have been trying to devise workable credit agencies to assist the farmer to get deeper in debt and while calamity howlers have been hanging the crepe on the farmers' door, some Yankee Hill farmers have been making substantial progress.

"During the last few weeks three Yankee Hill farmers have been building new homes. One is building a home in Lincoln with all modern conveniences and will move to Lincoln as soon as the new home is completed. He owns one of the best improved farms south of Lincoln, the farm house having furnace and lights. Another farmer is building a new house in Rokeby which will be equipped with electric lights, bath and water system, and furnace. He owns 220 acres of Yankee Hill land, well improved. Another farmer has just completed a new house on his farm near Rokeby. This house is wired so an electric lighting system may be installed.

"These homes will be paid for when completed without borrowing money because these farmers have made and saved money. These farmers are among the most industrious men in the precinct. Each, when young, worked by the month as a farm hand. One for a time worked as a section hand on the railroad. One also worked as a coal miner in southern Colorado.

"These men are substantial citizens, who promptly pay their debts and who are not chronic borrowers at the banks and are not in need of assistance of any credit agency.

"We think a number of such men can be found in every farming community."

Righto Mr. Rogers!

You have hit the nail on the head.

Yan Hill has its duplicate in every farming community in Nebraska. In every county of the state and in every section of every county may be found men, who by industry and thriftiness have accomplished the same measure of progress. They are not complaining and fault-finding. As a matter of fact, they do not have time for that. They are busy gathering their corn, and other crops, taking care of their dairy herds, and poultry flocks. They are tending to business, no matter how loud the politicians shout, and the failures grumble. The farmer is back on a pre-war basis, so far as his own business is concerned. He is doing his own work. He is watching his cream checks. He is feeding his chickens, and he is selling the eggs. He is reducing his obligations at the bank, if he has any, and he is adding to his savings if he is free from debt.

The crepe-hanger and the professional politician alone, are unaware of the change. They persist in talking in terms of post-war inflation because a large share of the people in the cities and towns still have a lesson to learn.

The smart farmer, better than anyone else, knows what took place from 1918 to 1920.

He knows that he quit farming. He hired the work done, which he himself had been accustomed to perform. His fields were forgotten, while the hired man planted and cared for the crops. He quit milking cows, and selling cream. His poultry flocks were ignored.

The easy credit, which he secured at many of the banks, completed his misfortune. He borrowed heavily, in many cases to buy high-priced land, and in others to increase the comforts of life.

It is fortunate that he has discovered his mistake. Conditions throughout the country would be tremendously improved if a lot of folks, who live in the city, discovered the same fact.

Easy credit is not always a good thing. It can be greatly abused, and in recent years it has been abused. When the tightening came, there were comparatively few instances where men, who deserved credit were refused it. If there had been greater caution in the preceding months, there would have been no such instances. It is impossible to breathe value into anything by legislation. Loans can only be made when there is ample surety to justify the advancement of credit. Whenever the government undertakes to grant credit upon a different basis, it will have inaugurated a most dangerous policy. No one is being refused credit today, who deserves it. The only loans refused are those without sufficient surety to warrant them. Under the circumstances, it is a bit tiresome to listen to suggestions of additional credit agencies by professional politicians. If these proposed new agencies are to function in accordance with the accepted principles of finance, they cannot perform a single service which is not already being performed.

The agricultural builder is not greatly concerned over the solicitude exhibited for him in his present plight. He knows that he is master of his own fate.

We thank God that the progress recorded by Mr. Rogers at Yankee Hill has its foundation in the same spirit of industry, thrift, courage and enterprise in a thousand other agricultural communities of Nebraska.

FED TO THE HOGS.

Twenty years of faithful service by a noble pair of black horses met a strange reward, some Lincoln people, interested in promoting kindness to dumb animals, recently discovered.

It is not a pretty story for a Sabbath morning, for it is a startling revelation of the cruelty and thoughtlessness of men.

The original owner of the team purchased both horses when they were young. They were splendid animals, big, well-muscled, powerful, gentle and faithful. For nearly twenty years they served their master well—so much so, in fact, that he was able to retire to a less strenuous life after a quarter of a century. Through the long years of service, these horses had become inseparable but their owner no longer needed them and he sold them. A second time they were sold and then they came into possession of some horsetraders, who disposed of them. They were parted. One of the horses, still able to haul heavy burdens, became the property of a garbage hauler in Lincoln and is today performing his daily task. He is so old his teeth are gone. He is no longer fit for heavy work. The other, older and weakened by heavy hauling, was less fortunate. He was sold to be killed and fed to the hogs.

It would seem that a quarter of a century of faithful service would have merited better theatment than this. With pasturage so easy and cheap to obtain the least that could have been done would have been to turn these horses out to forage when grass was obtainable.

The idea of feeding horses, or other dumb animals to hogs, is revolting enough in itself, without further shocking the sensibilities with the knowledge that men are ungrateful to animals, which serve them so nobly.

FEDERAL BUREAU COSTS.

The people of the country are of course aware of the fact that within the past few years the federal government has vastly increased its field of activities, one bureau or commission after another being set up and supplied with funds, but it is probable that few realize the tremendous extent to which this has gone, or the great increase in expenditure which it necessitates.

In 1900 there were only three independent governmental establishments not under the executive departments, these being the civil service commission, the interstate commerce commission and the Smithsonian Institution, the total cost of all offices outside of executive departments being $19,270. Today there are thirty-three independent establishments and their cost to the people of the country reaches the tremendous sum of $650,145,618 per annum.

And not only has there been this great increase in bureaus and commissions, with their drain upon the taxpayers of the country, but the cost of maintenance of the executive departments has at the same time grown enormously. In 1900 the expense of these departments was $447,553,458,44, while for 1923 the bill is $2,240,329,871. Of course the country has grown in population and wealth, but not to such an extent as to justify these great increases.

The fact of the matter is that the country is being "bureaued" to death and the people are being pushed into state socialism without realizing it. Upon the very flimsiest of pretexts new establishments or commissions are set up and financed, being supplied with "experts" and "investigators" in ever increasing numbers who run about over the country and spend money as though it were as void of value as the product of the Berlin printing presses.

A few of these spending agencies are the bureau of efficiency, coal commission, river commission, commission of fine arts, employes' compensation commission, board of vocational education, federal fuel distributor, federal narcotic control board, federal power board, general accounting office, housing corporation and many others.

It is not believed that the people as a whole desire this constant coddling or that they favor the increasing tendency toward paternalism, but various groups with varying hobbies are able to exert such influence upon congress as to put their schemes across and it has been found much more difficult to get rid of a bureau than to establish one. There is reason to believe, however, that a reaction is setting in and that relief may not long be delayed.

REPRESENTING HIMSELF—AND OTHERS.

Senator Howell of Nebraska is reported to be desirous of being placed on the naval affairs committee in the senate, owing to the fact that he is a graduate of Annapolis naval academy and for that reason feels a strong personal interest in the navy.

The same report says that he may ask to be placed on the committee which looks after matters in the District of Columbia, with the idea of helping to place the utilities there under municipal ownership.

Heretofore it has been supposed that the people of Nebraska sent Mr. Howell to the senate to represent them and look after their interests. But he seems to regard the job as his own oyster which he is privileged to season in any manner that suits his personal taste. So if the information that comes back to Nebraska is reliable, the senator proposes to go after what he wants personally.

On the naval affairs committee, Mr. Howell will be able to render excellent service in heping the department to pull what it wants through congress and thus do something in return for the free transportation on government ships which was furnished to him and other senators and congressment on their junket trips to the West Indies, Alaska and elsewhere last spring and summer.

When not busy along this line, he will doubtless find some time as a member of the District of Columbia committee to dabble in municipal ownership for the city of Washington. After he gets his hand in there, it is to be hoped that he will stay on the job more closely than he did in Omaha and not permit a situation to develop like that of last August during which Missouri river mud was dished up to the municipal water patrons of that city.

It is difficult for Nebraskans to see where the senator is going to be able to do very much for them by going in for naval expenditures along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and having the government buy up waterwarks, gas plants, electric light systems, and street railways in Washington D. C. But no doubt if he were here he could explain it all to our entire satisfaction.

We are still completely in the dark as to whether Senator Howell intends to work for the repeal of the Esch-Cummins law by joining hands with the group of insurgents who are fighting to dislodge Senator Cummins, its principal author, either as president of the senate or as chairman of the interstate commerce committee, or whether he will stay "regular" by giving his vote to the "old guard" organization that is doing everything it can to keep the aforesaid law on the statute books.

He proclaimed during the campaign last year that he was dead against the Esch-Cummins act and favored its repeal. His course at Washington will show whether or not he really meant what he said or was just spoofing the voters.

THE MOST PROFANE PLAY.

Theatrical comment seems to be agreed that "The Cup," the vehicle which brought Tom Moore back to the legitimate stage from the movies, is the most profane of all plays seen in many generations on a New York stage. It is evident from the criticisms that have run in numerous New York and outside papers that even the city's theatre-goers, not easily shocked at modern freedom on the stage were distressed at the profane and obscene language used.

It is to be regretted that the stage should subject itself to criticism just at a time when it seems to be holding its own against the movies for the first time in a decade. In our craze for realism we have gone far in allowing our play writers license of expression. Eugene O'Neill in his "Anna Christie" and "Emperor Jones" takes liberties with the sensibilities of an audience that are daring enough. We can imagine the crudeness of the language of the dives—we hear enough of it unintentionally—without having it brought to the stage in all its vulgarity and suggestiveness. There are some incidents of human existence that cannot be and never are portrayed on the stage or screen, there is a language of the gutter that is not necessary to make convincing a scene depicting the worst side of life.

Fred Stone's plea for a clean stage and clean plays came as a timely rebuke for "The Cup." It is safe to predict that whatever life it has in New York will be all the run such a play will ever enjoy.

In this age of efficiency, a fortune awaits the young genius who can give suffering mankind hair cream, cold cream, shaving cream, library paste, shoe polish, metal polish and tooth polish all out of the same tube.

The age of miracles never ends. A North Platte publisher takes his front page to commend a rival publication on the excellent special edition which it published.

A New York policeman has married a girl whom he once arrested for speeding. It's up to her now to give him a run for his money.

Some of the variegated color schemes in clothes leads one to believe there is conspiracy abroad.

Business of Crowning a New Poet

Hail to Mr. Ram Spudd, Whose Newly Discovered Genius Covers a Multitude of Measures

The discovery of a new poet is always a joy to the cultivated world. It is therefore with the greatest pleasure that we are able to announce that we ourselves, acting quite independently and without aid from any of the English reviews of the day, have discovered one. In the person of Mr. Ram Spudd, of whose work we give specimens below, we feel that we reveal to our readers a genius of the first order. Unlike one of the most recently discovered English poets who is Bengalee, and another who is a full-blooded Yak, Mr. Spudd is, we believe, a Navajo Indian. We believe this from the character of his verse. Mr. Spudd himself we have not seen. But when he forwarded his poems to our office and offered with characteristic modesty to sell us his entire works for seventy-five cents, we felt in closing with his offer that we were dealing not only with a poet, but with one of nature's gentlemen.

Mr. Spudd, we understand, has had no education. Other newly discovered poets have had, apparently, some. Mr. Spudd has had, evidently, none. We lay stress on this point. Without it we claim it is impossible to understand his work.

What we particularly like about Ram Spudd, and we do not say this because we believe it and must say it, is that he belongs not to one school but to all of them. As a nature poet we doubt very much if he has his equal; as a psychologist, we are sure he has not. As a clear lucid thinker he is undoubtedly in the first rank; while as a mystic he is a long way in front of it. The specimens of Mr. Spudd's verse which we append herewith were selected, we are happy to assure our readers, purely at random from his work. We first blindfold ourselves and then, standing with our feet in warm water and having one hand tied behind our back, we groped among the papers on our desk before us and selected for our purpose whatever specimens first came to hand.

As we have said, or did we say it, it is perhaps as a nature poet that Ram Spudd excels. Others of our modern school have carried the observation of natural objects to a high degree of very nice precision, but with Mr. Spudd the observation of nature becomes an almost scientific process. Nothing escapes him. The green of the grass he detects as in an instant. The sky is no sooner blue than he remarks it with unerring certainty. Every bird note, every bee call, is familiar to his trained ear. Perhaps we cannot do better than quote the opening lines of a singularly beautiful sample of Ram Spudd's genius which seems to us the last word in nature poetry. It is called, with characteristic daintiness—

SPRING THAW IN THE AHUNTSIC WOODS,
NEAR PASPEBIAC,
PASSAMOQUODDY COUNTY

(We would like to say that, to our ears at least, there is a music in this title like the sound of falling water, or of chopped ice. But we must not interrupt ourselves. We now begin. Listen.)

The thermometer is standing this morning at thirty-three decimal one.
As a consequence it is freezing in the shade, but it is thawing in the sun.
There is a certain amount of snow on the ground, but of course not too much.
The air is what you would call humid, but not disagreeable to the touch.
Where I am stanting I find myself practically surrounded by trees.
It is perfectly astonishing the number of the different varieties one sees.
I've grown so wise I can tell each different tree by seeing it glisten,
But if that test fails I simply put my ear to the tree and listen,
And, well, I suppose it is only a silly fancy of mine perhaps,
But do you know I'm getting to tell different trees by the sound of their saps.

But we should not wish our readers to think that Ram Spudd is always and only the contemplative poet of the softer aspects of nature. Oh, by no means. There are times when waves of passion sweep over him in such prodigious volume as to roll him to and fro like a pebble in the surf. Gusts of emotion blow over him with such violence as to hurl him pro and con with inconceivable fury. In such moods, if it were not for the relief offered by writing verse we really do not know what would happen to him. His verse written under the impulse of such emations marks him as one of the greatest masters of passion, wild and yet restrained, objectionable and yet printable, that have appeared on this side of the Atlantic. We append herewith a portion, or half portion, of his little gem entitled

YOU.
You!
With your warm, full, rich, red, ripe lips,
And your beautifully manicured finger-tips!
You!
With your heaving, panting, rapidly expanding and contracting chest, Lying against my perfectly ordinary shirt-front and dinner-jacket vest.
It is too much
Your touch
As such.
It and
Your hand,
Can you not understand?
Last night an ostrich feather from your fragrant hair
Unnoticed fell.
I guard it
Well.
Yestere'en
From your tiara I have slid,
Unseen,
A single diamond,
And I keep it
Hid.
Last night you left inside the vestibule upon the sill
A quarter dollar,
And I have it Still.

But even those who know Ram Spudd as the poet of nature or of passion still only know a part of his genius. Some of his highest flights rise from an entirely different inspiration, and deal with the public affairs of the nation. They are in every sense comparable to the best work of the poets laureate of England dealing with similar themes. As soon as we had seen Ram Spudd's work of this kind, we cried, that is we said to our stenographer, "What a pity that in this republic we have no laureateship. Here is a man who might truly fill it." Of the poems of this kind we should wish to quote, if our limits of space did not prevent it, Mr. Spudd's exquisite

ODE ON THE REDUCTION OF THE UNITED STATES TARIFF

It is a matter of the very gravest concern to at least nine-tenths of the business interests in the United States.

Here and There

To Decrease Pain of Taxpaying.

(New York Times.)

Like a gleam of sunshine coming after what in some parts of the country still is described in good old English phrase as "falling weather" is the news that the great people in Washington who decide what part of other people's income they will take as taxes, and how, have decided that they will simplify some of the printed forms by means of which this always painful process has been made, in the past, distinctly agonizing.

Almost as welcome as would be a reduction of the amounts collected will be a change toward comprehensibility in these forms. This gracious favor is to be extended, it seems, only to taxpayers whose incomes from any source do not exceed $5,000, but that will benefit a majority of all the payers of Federal income taxes; and the abandonment of what seemed to be the old policy—that of making the blanks as complicated and obscure as possible—may be the beginning of a new era. In good time, perhaps, the reform will be extended at least a little distance into the higher incomes, and it even may occur to some of the Great Ones that incomes could be divided more equitably if their nature were vied rather than their amounts.

Just because a man is able to earn a little more than $5,000 a year, instead of a little less, but is exactly the same way, it does not seem fair to inflict upon him that "larger form" which takes the joy out of Spring for every taxpayer who is obliged to struggle with its complexities at that season.

In the past, nobody—literally nobody—has been able to make out a return sure to satisfy the collectors. Honesty of intention has not been enough to give certainty, nor have been consultation of "experts" and the careful following of their instructions. The experts differ among themselves as to the interpretation of departmental regulations, and too many of us, willing if not quite eager to give the government its precise due, have received humiliating demands, accompanied by alarming threats, to pay more than we had seen the need to pay.

The Dangerous Duck.

(Chicago Herald and Examiner.)

The ducks are in a union.

We observed with some disturbance the other day the experience of "Mr. John Bilsonger, a Chicago sportsman," who while shooting over a Nebraska lake was attacked by a flock of Canadian brant. A group of redheaded ducks, passing by, saw the melee and took a bill it it. Mr. Bilsonger made a brave resistance, but before help came was severely punished.

If this news gets about the breeding grounds the matter may become serious. Duck hunting is a pretty perilous sport for Chicagoans anyway. We know one man who, having joined a duck club, was hit so hard in the checkbook that his wife has had to pawn her diamond earrings, and another who invited all his relations to dine with him when he should return from his shooting expedition and was forced to feed them on noisette of veay which had cost him $85 and expenses of transportation.

If the ducks take to assault and battery, however, these experiences may come to seem almost comic in comparison with those to come. Against a large flock of ducks, especially if they be redheaded, what protection has the ordinary shooter? He dare not kill more than the legal limit, and the rest would find him easy prey.

The only suggestion that seems promising is to wear armor.

Prodigies.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

The late Dr. Boris Sidis, psychologist and author, was most widey known to the general public as the father of a boy prodigy who could read at the age of 2 and who entered Harvard at 11 with the highest honors. Dr. Sidis was himself an internationally known authority in psychology and psycho-pathology. His studies on "The Psychology of Suggestion" and "The Nature of Hallucinations" have been widely discussed by experts. But the general public has always been more interested in the method by which he enabled his boy, whom he named after William James, America's most noted psychologist, to pass the Harvard medical school examination in anatomy at the age of 7. His method was much akin to that by which Winifred Sackville Stoner and other child prodigies have been developed, "play with purpose." From the first his attention was concentrated on learning. Dr. Sidis believed that the brain began its development simultaneously with the body and that it loses its power of receptivity as it grows. Accordingly, he stimulated his son's brain unremittingly. When his son became a Socialist and was sentenced to 18 months in prison for participation in a May day riot, many people believed that the boy's mind had been developed at the expense of his judgment. Few people want their children to be prodigies. Unbalanced development may indicate genius, but it is more apt to indicate an abnormality which handicaps a child in the normal relatons of life. A child prodigy sometimes grows into a John Stuart Mill, but it is just as likely to become a very ordinary and very unhappy human being.

MUCH FARM LAND ABANDONED

(R. L. Holman, in the North American Review.)

I do not suppose there has ever before been so much tillable land abandoned and left idle on American farms as a survey of this situation would disclose today. In riding up and down the public roads and highways of rural districts all over the country one can see field after field growing up in ragweeds, indigo weeds or other weeds peculiar to the locality. In some cases, briers, bushes and brambles are forming a a mass of tangled growth, showing that the land has been forsaken by its owner for a number of years. It would be difficult to give an accurate statement as to the amount of tillable land that has been turned out within the last three years, but rough estimates given from over the country show that the idle acreage of this kind will vary from 5,000 to 30,000 acres for each county making the report. I note, in scattered instances, that entire farms of hundreds of acres have been abandoned by their owners until such time as conditions will permit their placing them again on a profitable basis of operation.

These conditions are more or less pronounced according to the locality, but they are very much in evidence in some of the best farming sections of the country and much of the land thus left idle is capable of producing crops far above the average.

Yet in spite of the fact that such a large percentage of our productive land is lying idle, and notwithstanding the fact that the producing land that remains is on the average becoming less productive, we read continued reports to the effect that there is surplus of farm products, a supply that far exceeds the demand.

Confiscatory Taxes.

(Harvard Courier.)

Constant increase in taxation means eventual public ownership of everything. Who would care to own property if he must pay out all the income in taxes? The theory of taxation nowadays, appears to be to take from those who have to provide comforts and conveniences for those who haven't. This is also pretty good socialistic doctrine. Some think the socialists are showing wisdom by changing their method of attack and seeking to accomplish by taxation what some have advocated by confiscation. Results will be the same in the end. If a way is not found to put a stop to the paternalistic ideas the object will be accomplished.

Doing Good Work.

(York Democrat.)

The big labor organizations of the country are doing a good thing for themselves by cleaning out the anarchists and communists from their ranks. To succeed labor must have the support of the patriotic people of the country and they cannot have that so long as they permit red mouthed anarchists to speak for them. The red regime will not work in America and intelligent labor leaders are well aware of the fact.

The World's Prayer

An International Song Dedicated to President Harding.

Since life began world's history's been wrought
With men's grim battles oft renewed and fought;
Progress has taught the evil of our way,
And peace is dawning with a newer day.

The force of might—not right—has often ruled,
And all the world in armament been schooled;
Please God, no more vast graveyards where we kneel,
But join our hearts and hands for common weal.

Men's minds have vied for better ways to make Destructive forces for destruction's sake;
From chaos and confusion there shall rise
Enduring peace and everlasting ties.

CHORUS.

We pray for peace on earth, good will toward all;
May love instead of hate our hearts enthrall.
We pray that every nation sees the right;
That truth and justice rule in place of might;
That armament forever cease its reign;
And wasting war may ne'er return again.
Long may the world be bright
With freedom's holy light,
And sing
Great God our King!

How Dead Stars?

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.
Famous Astronomer and Writer on cientific Topics of Popular Interest.

'I wish you would help me out in a dispute with' a friend. I was telling him that perhaps at night, as he gazes at a particular star, the star is so far away that it might take fifty years for the light's rays to reach here, and that perhaps the particular star no longer existed. For this statement I was laughed at, so I said I would write to you. Please say a few words on this subject.—Sherman Du Bois, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Your statement was scientifically correct, and you were very modest in your estimate of the star's probable distance as reckoned by the time that its light would consume in coming to the earth. Among the vast host of stars visible, either with the naked eye or with telescopes, very few are so near that their light would not take hundreds of times fifty years to cross the space separating them from us.

Great clusters of "giant" stars are known to astronomers (though visible only with large telescopes) whose distance exceeds a hundred thousand, light years, so that some of these are four thousand times as far away as the star which you suggested might be distant fifty years. Your friend should read up on the recent work of the astronomers. His idea of the dimensions of the universe is altogether too narrow. Every clear night when he looks heavenword, microscopic waves of starlight that have been thousands of years on their unresting way break gently on the retina of his eyes— that strange strand whereon two infinities meet; space time and intelligence.

Those electro-magnetic waves flow over a thousand and eighty-six thousand miles in a second. They reach us from the moon in less than a second and a third; they come from the sun in about eight-and-a-third minutes; they require about four-and-a-third years to reach us from Alpha Centauri, the nearest star in the sky; about eight and six-tenth years from Sirius; twenty-four years from Vega; nearly forty years from Capella; about fifty years from Regulus; more than a hundred years from Antares; a hundred and seventy-five years from Bettelgeuse; more than two hundred years from Spica; nearly four hundred years from Alcyone and four hundred and fifty from Rigel and from Denib Cygni.

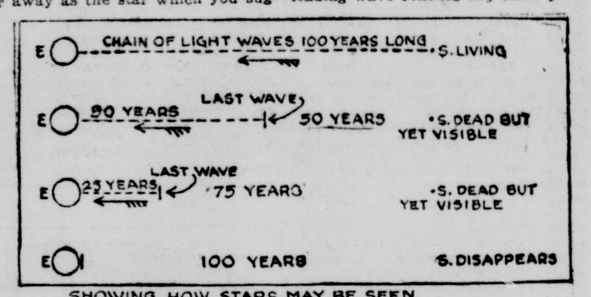

All of these are nearby stars, as astronomers now measure the universe; yet you will observe that only four of them are less than fifty light years distant. There are three or four others whose distance does not exceed that amount, but there are millions that are separated from us by thousands and tens of thousands of light years.

You were likewise correct in saying that a star whose light is at any given moment visible to the eye may really have ceased to shine years before. Thus it is possible that a star distance 200,000 light years may remain visible on the earth two thousand centuries after it has actually been extinguished.

Many are puzzled to understand how this can be. The explanation lies in the fact that a ray of light is an unbroken chain of waves extending away from the light source and continually lengthening at the rate of 186,000 miles per second—i. e., the leading wave arrives, at the end of every successive second, at a distance of 186,000 miles farther from the source than it was at the beginning of the second. But when the leading wave reaches any fixed point of observation, like the earth, the length of the chain no longer increases, though the waves continue to flow through it, stopping at the earth. Then, if the emission of waves at the source ceases, the last wave will form the end of the chain, and only after it reaches the earth will the star disappear.

This is clearly seen in our diagram. In the upper part the light-waves extend to the earth from a star 10 light-years distant. As long as the star actually shines the chain of waves will remain full. But supose it to be extinguished; then after fity years, the last wave will have arrived at a point half way to the earth, and the observer will continue to see the star, although it has been dead fifty years.

At the end of seventy-five years there will still be a chain of waves twenty-five light years long pouring earthward, and the star will still be seen. But when, as shown at the bottom, the last wave of the chain reaches the earth the star will disappear to the observer as if it had just died, although it has actually been dead 100 years.

Educational Costs.

(Kearney Democrat.)

Mark Twain, in discussing the weather said, "There has been a great deal said about the weather, but very little done about it." The same remark might be made to apply to taxes. The frenzied politician wins popular favor by demanding that taxes be lowered, but that is about as far as it goes. He attacks all branches of public activity indiscriminately, and the public school system comes in for its share of abuse. We are told that the cost of education has increased enormously. So it has. So also has the cost of everything else. We cannot expect the expenses connected with running our schools to remain stationary while we are paying more for all other services and commodities. As a matter of fact, figured on the basis of the value of the dollar, the costs of education decreased from 1913 to 1920. Durin that period the cost of living doubled, but the cost of education per pupil in average daily attendance in the United States increased only 67½ per cent, or a little oer two-thirds.

Supt. Wirsig has made an effort to discover how much the expenses of our public schools have increased, and he has recorded some interesting findings. He finds that in 1890 there was spent in the United States for all forms of education, including elementary, high school, college and university, the sum of $140,000,000. At that time, in the rural districts, a term consisted of two or three months in the winter. Also pupils dropped out of school at an earlier age than they do today. The attendance, he finds, has increased approximately 139 per cent since 1890. So much on that score.

The dollar today will purchase in commodities or services, only one-third of what it would in 1890. In other words, the same services now cost three times as much as they did in 1890. Taking the $140,000,000 spent for education in that year, multiplying it by three to take care of the depreciation in the dollar, and adding to this amount 139 per cent of itself to care for increased attendance, we have somewhere in the neighborhood of one billion dollars, approximately what was spent in the United States in 1920 for all forms of public education. In other words, figured on the basis of the increased attendance and the decreased value of the dollar, the expenses of the public schools are proportionately about as they were in 1890. And now we have more sanitary, better lighted and better ventilated buildings, and facilities for teaching that were undreamed of in 1890. Considering value received it seems that we haven't any kick coming at all.

Strength In Organization.

(Neligh Register.)

Naturally the closing of the doors of the Atlas bank had a depressing effect upon the spirits of the people of Neligh. That grand institution, monument of architectural perfection is the pride of every man, woman and child in the county, but it was built by human hands and human intelligence, and we were slow to realize that this same human force existed in Neligh. Before the sun set on the doom of the Atlas bank, a new organization was being formulated and Monday morning at banking hours the doors of this magnificent building were thrown open to the public and the new organization, "The Antelope State Bank," with a capital stock of fifty thousand dollars, had purchased the building with its full euipment and an army of efficient stockholders were stationed in their respective places ready to wait on customers as of old, I sometimes wonder if Neligh appreciates the intellectual and physical force she possesses. What an example of organized strength! If we were to concentrate our forces in municipal building and improvement we would have to move everything out that we don't want, to make room for things we do want.

Tax Reduction Popular.

(Wahoo Democrat.)

Every politician and every political party will adopt the same slogan on the tax question. They ave all seen the handwriting on the wall and tax reduction will be a plank in every platform. The voter will have the pleasant occupation of picking out the party or individual that he considers is most serious in its intentions. However, this may be quite difficult when they are all talking at once.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt Will Address Lincoln Mass Meeting Wednesday at St. Paul Church

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, (right), famous suffrage leader, who will speak at St. Paul M. E. church in Lincoln Wednesday evening on the subject: "Peace or War—What Shall We Do About It?" Lady Astor is shown at the left in the above reproduction. Lady Astor and Mrs. Catt appeared on the program at the International Woman's Suffrage congress at Geneva in June, 1920.

For twenty years, Mrs. Catt led the women of twenty-six nations in the struggle for woman suffrage. She founded the Alliance and was its president until her resignation this year. During these arduous years she made fifteen trips to Europe and toured the world forsuffrage from 1910 to 1912.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, former president of the world's league for woman suffrage, will speak in Lincoln on the subject, "War or Peace —What Shall We do About it?" Next Wednesday evening at the St. Paul church. Mrs. Catt has addressed large audiences in most of the great capitals of the world, and has been a central figure in the campaign for the advancement of the women of the world as well as of the United States, according to the league officers of the Women Voters, under whose auspices she will speak.

Lincoln women who have heard Mrs. Catt speak are looking forward to her coming, and speak in terms of high praise of her work. Among these women is Mrs. W. E. Barkley, who says:

"It may be the turning point in the life of the young people who hear Mrs. Catt, Wednesday evening. I should certainly urge all parents to bring their families to see and hear this truly great woman who is known all over the world for her work. I consider it the greatest experience in my life to have worked for her. She appointed me one of the twelve delegates from the United States in 1920 to the Geneva meeting of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance which she had founded in 1902. I watched her preside over that gathering of wineh frin 33 countries from all parts of the world speaking many different laungunges. It has been many years since Mrs. Catt spoke in Lincoln. And so world-wide is the demand for her time that it may be the only opportunity Lincoln young people will ever have to meet this woman who has devoted her time, her health and her strength to the cause of humanity."

Has Great Personality.

"It must be ten years ago that I heard Mrs. Catt speak at Topeka, Kas.," says Mrs. Maurice Deutsch, president of the American Association of University Women. "She was introduced by United States Senator Capper, who was then governor of Kansas. Her personality, her tact, her great reserve force, so impressed me that I said to myself, 'There, if ever, is a woman big enough to be president of the United States.' And I still think she is."

Mrs. A. E. Sheldon, a former president of the Nebraska Federation of Woman's clubs, who heard Mrs. Catt speak at the joint convention meeting of the federation and the suffrage association held at Hastings in 1916, says that the speaker was "better than any other speaker I have heard. Mrs. Catt combines the logical mind, the womanly woman, and the effective speaker. Nor does she appeal only to one certain kind of an audience. She so bewitches the guests at the hotel that they crowded the gallaries to hear her speak."

Mrs. Catt was frequently entertained at the home of Mrs. J. E. Kirshman's parents on the Ames campus, where Mrs. Catt and her husband were both students. Mr. Catt left a generous loan fund there for students, and his wife has added to it. "Always on her return visits to Ames," Mrs. Kirshman says, "it is the young people who are particularly interested and who interest her. I well remember in my student days that she asked me what I thought about suffrage."

The story of Mrs. Catt's impromptu speech on "Law Not War" is another of the favorite ones with Miss May Gund., state chairman of the national committee to prevent war. Mrs. Catt had been scheduled to speak on the "Psychology of Political Progress," her speech to follow that of Will Irwin on "The Next War." Mrs. Catt stepped forward at the close of Mr. Irwin's speech, flung her manuscript on the table, and talked instead on the other subject.

Other women who speak with anticipation of Mrs. Catt's coming or with pleasant remembrances of other times when they have heard her, include Mrs. C. A. Sorensen, Dr. Laura Pfeiffer, Mrs. T. J. Doyle, Mrs. Frank Reavis, Mrs. W. E. Hardy, Mrs. H. H. Wheeler, Mrs. W. Leroy Davis, Dr. Inez C. Philbrick, and Mrs. E. F. Pettis.

Johnson Popular on University Class Rolls; Fifty Members of Tribe Registered at Nebraska

In the strictly unofficial name-popularity contest at the University of Nebraska the Johnsons win first place with fifty members of the tribe listed in the new student directory. The Andersons take second honors with thirty-five names, and the Millers, with thirty names, are menaced for third place by the Smiths, with twenty-nine, and the Browns, also with twenty-nine. The Jones, or Joneses, with twenty-eight names, struggle hard to keep up the popularity of their family title. The "dope" for the state has been again up-set: the Smiths and the Jones, usually considered the most commonly found names, have lost their prestige to the family of "sons"—Johnsons, Andersons, Nelsons and Hansons.

The good Scotch clan of Campbells flaunts a membership of fourteen students in the university, while the legion of Mc's, with 119 members, have the greatest solidarity and strength of all the similar names.

Real Colorful Crowd.

That there is a colorful crowd at the University the directory proves, for there are twenty-nine Browns, ten Whites, eight Greens, seven Grays and two Blacks. There are apparently no Yellows at the University.

With names from the rolls one might construct any scene: for the Hunt, there are Wolfes, Foxes and Hunters. For the naval folk there are Barges and Barrs, Hatches and Hulls and Sands, not to mention a Mast. The ecclesiastical phase of life is represented by an Angell, Bishops and Parsons, Virtue, Churches and Bells. From the sublime to the ridiculous: there are Swallows, with choice of Waters or Beers.

If name-sources mean anything, the university is represented by tradesmen and craftsmen of all sorts, with Smiths and Bellows, Bakers and Cooks, Barbers and Beards, Farmers and a Tennant. In addition there are Houses, Barnes, Caves and Mills.

WESLEYAN NOTES.

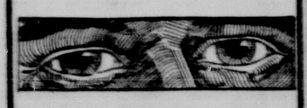

Winifred Wygal of New York city spent the fore part of the week on the campus. She addressed the university girls' chapel Tuesday, explaining the purpose of the association with respect to the individual girl. Miss Wygal is a national secretary.

Special Action by the Territorial Assembly Was Required For a Divorce in the Old Days

By LULU MAE COE.

Divorce is a simple matter nowadays—too simple, the cynics are wont to say.

Married today and divorced tomorrow—they paraphrase the trite old phrase. The machinery of the divorce court is not sufficiently elaborate, we are constantly told. It is as easy to secure a divorce as it is to walk around the block—to cross the street—to wash a dish.

It is only the work of a short time to consult a discreet attorney, to tell him all your causes of complaint, and for him to file a petition for divorce in the district court. Then, only waiting, until the court summons to appear on a certain day in the court of domestic relations.

An appearance one morning or two—a decree—absolute at the end of six months.

And one is a free woman—or man.

No, it is not difficult to secure a divorce today. If one does not desire headline blazoning, it can be done quietly.

The decree is later filed, perhaps never again to be seen by curious eyes. Buried under others it lies—those others that day by day are mounting higher an higher by twos threes.

Times have changed, though.

Times Change Rapidly.

Divorces were not always so easily, nor so quietly secured. The mounting pile of others nor the dust of times does not hide their record. The decree may be no more, but its record will never be lost.

Once, long ago, to secure a divorce required real effort. Many solons bent their legally inclined minds upon the subject. The subject was discussed and argued and voted upon—it was introduced and sent into committee and reported back upon.

Perhaps—when a whole state took a hand—or rather something that was going to be a state—men and women thought twice before they asked for relief from the bonds of matrimony.

Perhaps—they did not mind each other's peculiarities so much—they found that they could stand them. Perhaps incompatibility was not such a well considered term—if it meant the breaking up of the home circle under the awe-ful eye of the state.

Perhaps—when the state was so young that it wasn't a state at all, the wife who decided that she could not stand to watch her husband eat oatmeal with salt another day, just went out and severely talked to herself about her little prejudices—instead of rushing to secure a divorce—for divorce was difficult to secure and the way thereto long and tedious.

Couples Thought it Over.

Perhaps—when the wife's curlers and the house dress that had been clean three days before got unbearingly on the husband's nerves he went forth and plowed a deeper furrow or chopped the wood a little harder—for he had a wholesome respect for the law and he did not know that he cared to have the men from all the counties talking about "his" divorce.

No—they probably stopped and considered, and decided that foibles were mutual affairs, that hard labor prevented a fresh appearance momently and that perhaps the friendliness and companionship of the home circle compensated for the unconscious rubbing of raw characteristics on sore nerves by those therein.

Long, long ago—almost three score and ten years ago—when men could gaze from their cabin doors and see nothing but the rolling Nebraska prairie, when the covered wagons were still stringing snake-like across the prairies, when the rush of '49 to the west was just yesterday's event—divorce was not easy to secure.

In those days of '54 and '55 and '56 when the prairies had just given up part of their own for the Territory of Nebraska—there were no divorce laws. In those days when the first counties were being formed, when civil government was gaining a stand—men worked hard and labored long and did not think of complexes and triangle.

For in those first days—the territorial assembly had a hand in the granting of divorces and only deep need and great abuse could take those sturdy men and women to it for relief. It was not pleasant to have one's private affairs discussed in the presence of representatives of all the counties—few though they were.

No Divorce Laws.

In those first territorial days, there were no divorce laws—such a law had to take its turn in the multitudinous laws necessary for the new territory. Yet, in those days five couples, of which the first was Susan and George McEnheimer, sought for relief from their matrimonial adventures.

There were no divorce laws—therefore the territorial assembly was sought for relief. And relief it gave—after quite due deliberation and evident intensive concentration on the subject.

Sixty-seven years ago the proceedings on the divorces of George and Susan McEnheimer, and of the five other couples, were made a part of the house journal of the second regular session of the general assembly of the Territory of Nebraska, which was held in Omaha, Nebraska territory, beginning December 18, 1855. The act by which their divorce was made possible is a part of the session laws of the territory for 1855, open for all to read, and are the only ones previous to the approval of the divorce law, which took place three days later.

Somewhere in the depths of the state house the original divorce petitions may be hidden. Somewhere are the home addresses of those early five who sought divorce. Somewhere are the grounds of complaint through which they sought relief from matrimony. Somewhere, under the dust and grime, lie those first divorce petitions—but none know where.

The only record of those first ones are in the session laws and the journal—which are preserved for all time.

Assembly Had to Act.

The proceedings of the McEnheimer divorce may be traced through the house journal—

January 9, 1856, J. Sterling Morton of Otoe county introduced H. F. No. 41, an act to dissolve the bonds of matrimony between George McEnheimer and Susan McEnheimer.

The records say that it was read the first time, rule suspended, read the second time, and referred to the committtee on the judiciary.

Six days later, Leavitt L. Bowen of Douglas county, from the committee on judiciary, made the following report:

"The standing committee 'on judiciary,' to which was referred the bill entitled 'An act to dissolve the bonds of matrimony between George McEnheimer and Susan McEnheimer,' being H. F. No. 41, have had the same under consideration, and respectfully beg leave to report:

"That your committee are opposed to the policy of the exercise of the power existing in the legislature to divorce from the bonds of matrimony, believing that this power should be confined in the courts of the territory; and your committee being of the opinion that in the case presented, there is somewhat of merit from the testimony adduced, and there being no law in the Territory on the subject of divorce, therefore recommend that the bill be "indefinitely postponed" and in lieu thereof, respectfully beg leave to introduce the following bill entitled 'An act in relation to the application of Susan McEnheimer for a divorce from George McEnheimer,' and recommend its passage."

On motion the report was received.

House File No. 41, the journal reads, "Substitute—An Act in relation to the application of Susan McEnheimer for a divorce from George McEnheimer." Read the first time, rule suspended. Read second and third times by title. Passed and title agreed to.

January 23, E. G. McNeehy, chief clerk, appeared before the assembly with the following announcement:

"I herewith return H. F. No. 41, 'An act in relation to the application of Susan McEnheimer for a divorce from George McEnheimer,' the same having passed the Council, with the following amendment, viz,

"That the provisions of this act shall apply to the cases of George and Frances Bridge, James A. Greenlee and Augusta M. Greenlee, Sam C. Scotten and Mary Scotten, Jacob Reber and Catherine Reber, and Gardner Powers and Sarah J. Powers."

Much Legal Procedure.

The act, as recorded in the 1855 session laws, is as follows:

"Section 1—Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives of the Territory of Nebraska, The application of Susan McEnheimer to the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Nebraska for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony from Geobge McEnheimer shall be and the same hereby is referred to the judge of the District Court for the first judicial district of the Territory of Nebraska, for his adjudication and decision.

"Sec. 2—The said judge of the district court is hereby authorized and empowered to hear and determine said application in such manner and under such rules and regulations as he may deem proper to prescribe; and also after hearing the testimony of both parties, if any such shall be produced, make a final decree in reference to the same. And any such final decree or adjudication shall have the full force and effect of a law of the Territory of Nebraska.

"Sec. 3—That the provisions of this act shall apply to the cases of"—and follow the names read by the district clerk.

The first divorces in the state were a law unto themselves and created a law. This act was approved January 23, 1856 and the divorce law was approved three days later. January 25, the last of the McEnheimers are mentioned in the house journal when James S. Izard, private secretary to the governor, appeared before the house to announce that the governor had signed H. F. 41.

Though those first divorces created a law, the legislature of the territory had more divorce questions come before its attention. In the cases where the court was slow in acting or where it was impossible to secure a divorce through the courts, and there were really sound reasons for breaking the matrimonial ties, the legislature acted. Today special legislation is forbidden by the constitution, but such was not the case in the territory.

Appearing at various times in those old territorial laws are other divorces that have been granted—eight in all. Many more were applied for, but the legislature refused to act, feeling that if divorce were necessary in these cases, the court would act. A committee report from one divorce that failed to pass is as follows, "being aware of nothing to prevent said parties from obtaining complete relief in the courts, beg leave to report back to the council and recommend that their further conferences be indefinitely postponed."

Some Early Divorces.

One act, approved February 10, 1857, dissolves the bonds of matrimony between Obediah J. Niles and Hannah M. Niles. Anna and J. D. O'Neil secured a legislative divorce January 13, 1860, J. B. and Salina H. Hickman November 3, 1858, and

Oily skin

How you can correct it

An oily, shiny skin is not only unattractive in itself—it is especially liable to infection from dust.

You can overcome this condition by using, each night, the following treatment:

FIRST cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. Then rub your face for a few seconds with a piece of ice.

Within a week or ten days this treatment will bring about a marked improvement.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

Lincoln Woman Visits Historic Places In France and England

Mrs. D. M. Butler arrived home Saturday morning from a six weeks' trip abroad with her brother, General John J. Pershing. Mrs. Butler crossed on the Leviathan which docked the first of last week but General Pershing didn't return at this time but remained abroad for a longer sojourn and probably will not return until after the holidays.

Mrs. Butler and General Pershing went directly to Paris which they made their headquarters for the greater part of their stay. From there delightful motor trips were made into the charming surrounding country in an U. S. army motor which was there for the exclusive use of General Pershing and his sister and under the direction of an aide detailed there for duty with General Pershing. They motored over the battlefields, through the beautiful chateau district of southern France and to the many places of historical interest in France.

Some time was spent in London and there were also many motor trips into the beautiful English country under the same arrangements as those enjoyed in France. The weather was ideal and Mrs. Butler found the late fall an ideal time for motoring in England and France.

A very interesting part of Mrs. Butler's trip was the meeting with many French and English officials and with old friends of her brother—friendships which were made during war days.

Mrs. Butler spent a few days in New York and Monday was the guest of honor at a tea which Wilbur Chenoweth had at his apartment and for which the guests were mostly a group from Lincoln who are there for study and work.

Mrs. Butler spent Thanksgiving in Boston with her nephew, Warren Pershing, who came there for the day from Exeter, N. H., where he is a sudent at Phillips Exeter academy.

Military Ball Friday to Open Formal Season

Crossed sabers, infantry and artillery guns, ammunition and weapons combined with the "scarlet and the cream" of the university will furnish a military atmosphere at the annual military ball, which officially opens the formal season for the school set, to be held Friday evening of this week at the city auditorium.

troduced during the intermission. thoduced during the intermission. Her identity is always kept secret until the night of the ball, when she appears in the uniform of the officers of the regiment, with a red-lined cape. She is elected from the two upper classes of the school by popular vote of all the students. No nominations are made previous to the day of balloting.

The grand march is led by the colonel of the cadet regiment and the honorary colonel. The university band will play for the grand march, in which 125 officers take part. The greater part of the evening, however, the music will be furnishedy by a ten-piece orchestra installed on the stage.

Ten tickets have been sold for "stags." This is in consideration of the recent comment on the fact that the habit of dancing the whole evening with but one partner is becoming strong.

Five girls in military costumes will preside over the refreshment table where candies, cakes and punch will be served. The large military cake will be cut by a silver sabre during the intermission.

Invitations have been issued to the officers of the military departments of schools in the Seventh Corps Area, and to the following Lincoln and university people as guests of honor:

ELLIOTT SCHOOL PARTY

Last Wednesday there were two real Thanksgiving parties held in the kindergarten room at Elliott school, under the personal supervision of the teachers, Mrs Slothower, and Miss Rucklos, and their able university cadets.

Preparations were begun two days before, when the tiny tots themselves, under the direction of the teachers, made their oatmeal cookies, doing all their own measuring, mixing and baking. They also made their own butter, and each little hand had a part in the churning. They made their own cranberry jelly, and one group made the green and orange paper plants, used as table decorations.

Invitations were issued to the 1-B grades, the morning class entertaining Miss Vore's room, and the afternoon class having Miss Cleland's room as their party guests, the total number of pupils participating being 193.

Several days ago, each kindergarten pupil was asked to design a paper plate, and the prettiest was chosen as the plate to be used, each child making two or more, for the occasion.

The orange and green decorations were very beautiful and the baskets of bittersweet and the Thanksgiving pictures that adorned the walls, lent a truly Thanksgiving tone.

The wood fire crackling in the fireplace drew every childish heart, even in this, each had done his share, for each had brought a stick of wood toward making this part of the days plan, possible.

Two rows of tables, "Kiddie of the east kindergarten room, and the tiny chairs put into place.

At the appointed time, and led by Mrs. Slothwer, the pupils and their little guests filed in, taking their places in perfect order. Standing quietly behind their chairs, the kindergarten "Thank You" song was softly sung, making a most impressive grace.

"Thanks to Our Father, we will sing, For He gives us everything."

In the morning four small girls helped serve the lovely cranberry tarts, buttered wafers, the oatmeal cookies and the popcorn. Four other little girls provided entertainment suitable to Thanksgiving day.

At the afternoon party cranberry tarts, buttered wafers, oatmeal cookies and candy sticks were served—the candy being brought by a little boy whose fifth birthday fell on the "party" day. A small group of little boys provided the entertainment at this party.

At each party the teacher of the guests told an appropriate Thanksgiving story which was much enjoyed by all.

The little first grade guests did not forget to thank the kindergarten teachers and pupils for their happy time, when it was time to go home. It was a day of happy hearts, and one to be long remembered by all the children present.

A RECENT LINCOLN BRIDE

A bride of last week is Mrs. Abe Polick, formerly Miss Minnie Krechefsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Krechefsky, 1645 South street, whose marriage to Abe Polick, son of Mrs. P. Polick, took place at an elaborate ceremony held Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Lindell Party house, Rabbi Medvedoff officiated and the ceremony was solemnized beneath a flower canopy with a lattice background.

The wedding music was played by Miss Dorothy Diamond, violinist, with Miss Bernice Diamond at the piano. They played Cadman's "At Dawning" before the ceremony and the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Johanna Garson, Mina Shostak and Rose Broches. Miss Garson wore a beaded peach georgette gown; Miss Shostak was in gold lace over tangerine and Miss Boches wore a gown of gold lace. They carried bouquets of pink roses. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Sarah, who wore orchid georgette over tangerine and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses and sweetpeas. Selma Hill and Sylvia Davidson were flower girls and they scattered rose petals from a dainty flower basket which they carried between them. They wore frocks of pink georgette. The bride's gown was of white crepe charmeuse trimmed in silver lace and she wore a long veil of tulle falling from a double frill of tulle which encircled the head. Her shower bouquet was of Ophelia roses.

The groom's attendants were William and Sam Krechefsky and Dave Davidson.

Following the ceremony a five course dinner was served. Covers for sixty guests were laid at tables decorated in orchid and white chrysanthemums in orchid baskets tied with orchid and white tulle and lighted with orchid tapers. A reception for a large number of guests was held that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Polick wil make their home in the east.

The first ballot-box used in Lincoln was given last week to the Nebraska Historical society by Homer M. McKay of Seward, and may now be viewed at the museum of the society. The box is made of tin (six inches high, twelve inches long, and seven and one-half inches wide) and was made by I. B. Compton, who ran a tin shop on the east side of the present postoffice square. The father of Mr. McKay, the donor of the ballot-box, was a member of the city election board in the fall of 1868. This box was used in that year and probably in 1867 in city elections in Lincoln.

CARNIVAL STAGED IN LEAGUE CLUB ROOMS.

Among the activities of women in Lincoln, perhaps no organization is more worthy of special mention than the Business Women's League. This club was organized several years ago but did not begin to function very materially, so that it received recognition among other activities, until some years later. Miss Annette Martin, the president, says that as soon as the management decided that money must be forth coming if any worth while things were accomplished, the annual dues were increased and the club began to grow in enrollment and usefulness to the community.

Headquarters were secured in the Fraternity building and rooms were attractively furnished, where members could find the latest books and magazines or recreational games and congenial conversation. At stated times the business of the club is discussed by the seven cabinet members, consisting of: commissioner of administration, Annette Martin; records, Clara McClatchey; education, Narcissa Snell; publicity, Grace Clark; membership, Angeline Riley; finance, Mrs. A. S. Berggren; records, Mabel Hogue.

Plans are formulated by the commissioners which are later presented to the open club and action taken.

The second Thursday of each month is a business meeting and the fourth Thursday a program of music, lecture or miscellaneous nature is given. All community questions are carefully considered and the co-operation of the Business Women's League in their solution and execution is an assured fact.

The league publishes a monthly bulletin called "The Business Woman" the expense of which is practically met by advertising. This paper gives facts of interest to other leagues over the state and the happenings in which the members themselves are concerned. Mrs. Esther Myers, Miss Pearl Gibbs and Miss Margaret Beams have charge of this work.

At present the Business Women's League is busy raising the money necessary to furnish a room with two beds in the new city hospital. At a rummage sale held last week, $150 was taken in to apply on the hospital fund and next Monday evening a big carnival will be staged in the League rooms where they hope to realize another lift to the hospital fund. If courage, enthusiasm and pluck can do it the success of the carnival is assured.

Hair Glory

One minute a day gave it to me

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is my greatest glory. It grows finer every year. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray. Mine is a grandmother's age yet countless girls who see me on the stage and elsewhere, envy my luxuriant hair.

So with mother. She died at the age of 57 with hair like mine today. So with many friends who use my method. They have beautiful hair, and it does not lose its color.

I am convinced that millions, in my way, can multiply the beauty of their hair. And I have arranged to bring that method to them.

A French formula

My mother and I, many years ago, found this formula in France. It had been developed by experts whose whole lives had been devoted to hair study.

One factor in it combats hardened oil and dandruff, the great enemies of hair. They stifle the hair roots, check hair growth, choke the supply of pigment which gives hair its color.

Other factors stimulate and fertilize the scalp. Hair thrives on such a scalp, as flowers will thrive in a clean and well kept garden.

One minute a day

I call this formula my Hair Youth. I apply it daily with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. Just enough to dampen the scalp. It takes but a moment, and this method does not muss the hair.

You have never known anything so effective, yet it is harmless. It does not affect the hair's color, natural or artificial. Its whole effect is on the scalp and the roots which lie therein.

Hair Youth is sold under guarantee If the first bottle fails to delight you, your dealer will return its price. So I ask you to try it at my risk. Learn what it does for your hair. Let it do what it did for me and mine, and you will reap rich rewards.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price. 50c and $1 with eye dropper. Also my Youth Cream, with two fruits in it. My Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. And my White Youth Clay—the last word in facial clay. My Beauty Book comes with each.

My Hair Youth will lead you to want my other helps, I think. And they are all now at your call. Edna Wallace Hopper, Business address, Waukesha, Wis.

Note: Miss Hopper is now playing the Pantages Vaudeville Circuit of the western states.—Advertisement.

Peasant Aprons.

There is at present a more than usually strong feeling for peasant design in the mode. Poiret and Groult have always adapted these peasant costumes, but now other designers are going to the same sources.

The apron is very much to the fore this season in every sort of variation, and particularly the actual aprons of the peasants—naturally their gala aprons, for village festivals, for weddings and betrothals. They come from every land where peasants still wear their national costumes—from Russia, the Balkans, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium, Norway. The embroideries are sometimes applied by the dressmakers to richer materials than the originals, but it is amazing how well the actual peasant aprons suit our present mode, as for example the two shown at the bottom of the page, which are worn exactly as the original owners wore them. Other bits of peasant costume which are being used on smart dresses are the boleros, shirt-fronts, neckerchiefs, jackets and blouses.

Flannel Frock.

An interesting Lanvin green flannel frock is interpreted in the beltless mode and has a smart throw-scarf collar. The sleeves are less than elbow length and the trimming consists of bands of fine vertical tucking which forms a deep square front and back on the upper section and is repeated on the sleeves and around the skirt.

An imported flannel in a subdued tomato shade develops another one-piece frock of which the upper section exploits an all-over design of tiny tucks in small block pattern; the skirt is perfectly plain, with an inverted pleat at the side. The sleeves are short and the belt is the narrow side-tie variety. Linen collar and cuffs complete the frock.

Flare Outline in Sports Coats.

In the sports coats, emphasis full flared outline is noted presented with the circular cut from the neckline. In some instances, this back section is applied in the manner of a wide, separate panel, an effort achieved with facility in the reversed use of the block or plaid fabric, which is invariably the choice in this type coat.

It is conspicuous, that in these coats large patternings in both blocks and stripes are sponsored. Several instances of the plain cloths of the lustra type are also shown.

Checks and plaids prevail in the suits of sports designation made, for the most part, with short, boyish, box jackets. Just as the large patterning is chosen for coats, corresponding uniformity is noted in regard to the selection of smaller blocks and plaids.

Accessories.

Such items as the dainty vanity bag, the proper earrings and necklaces, the color, shape and trimming for the slipper, the style of fan (for there are very many) hnd matter of gloves, must all be given careful consideration by the woman who realizes that while the dress may be faultless it may have its beauty challenged by a lack of consistency in the numerous et ceteras that now accompany the evening or daytime dress, and which have become really essential.

Comment.

Whoever it is that runs the French fashions surely must have set an exercise this season for the great dressmaking houses. He must have said, "See what you can do with a piece of material without cutting it." Speaking from the showing of M. Worth alone, we can answer that there is plenty which can be done. You will remember he has always been distinguished for drapery, and this year his lines seem more graceful than ever before.

"Wedding Ring" Velvet.

The business woman does not doff her personality in leisure hours, after the manner of a butterfly emerging from its cocoon. All day she has worn dignified frocks that embody the latest fashion notes, yet are never extreme, and when she selects her gowns for theater, restaurant or formal evening wear, she adheres to the same conservative rules.

Handsome, rich materials, simple lines, and an absence of fussy trimming—these are the characteristics of the business woman's clothes. For formal evening wear velvet is a favorite —"wedding-ring velvet" is the newest kind, so soft nad light that a yard of it can be drawn through a wedding ring.

Smock Again in Vogue.

The new Russian smock is the most attractive feature of the latest wardrobe. The knee-deep length is graceful on any figure, and the ornamental side closing adds to the general becomingness of it. To be coveted is one of the deep, rich French blue smocks trimmed with black jet buttons (ornamental buttons are "in" again) and a band of black ribbon on the side closing. It is loosely belted with black ribbon, leaving ends that fall to the lower edge of the hem. Bell sleeves, slit to the elbow, have the same ornamentation of jet buttons and the line of black. Black fringe weights the hem of this most graceful garment. The neck of it, cut in a small square, is also edged with black.

Loose Gloves.

Gloves nowadays must be of the correct color, usually to match the stockings, but the best-dressed women care little for ornamentation in gloves; above all, the glove must be loosely fitted—so loosely that it may be slipped on and off with the greatest ease. Apparently, glove stretchers are implements of a past age.

The Leading Designer of the West.

Mrs. Elizabeth Packer is showing gay velvets to make our winter formal season colorful. Many drapes and tunics bordered with fur depict the season when everything is blustery and carefree. The flounce is shifting about, from the bottom of the skirt to the neckline, accentuating the flat back and making the fair maid resemble the life size match. Evening wraps are one of Mrs. Packer's specialties, having had so much experience with designing just wraps exclusively. Be prepared for the Fall Formal Season.

Let Walt Ludwig tailor that "Tux" for you and you will be the beau-brummel of the party. Farquhar's are featuring wool scarfs imported from Scotland, these are a necessity, yet are ornamental. Call at Lincoln's "smart" shop.

Formal Footwear.

Announcing the showing of the latest styles in formal footwear at SPEIER AND SIMON. Brocades are of colors, gold and silver kid and other novelty materials. The new strapped anklets in patent and satin are especially attractive for afternoon wear. This boot-ship is noted for its exclusive patterns as it is the headquarters for the I. MILLER shoe.

Gold's Gift Dollar Days.

When there are so many friends to be remembered at Christmas, it is difficult to find good and suitable gifts at moderate prices, but Gold's have solved the problem. They are featuring all the seasonable merchandise as gifts; their practical gifts are placed in Christmas boxes and are so attractive. Take advantage of this offer at once for as you know opportunity only knocks once.

Buick Cheer.

The Buick brings cheer just the same as Christmas does, but why not unite the two factors and have one real Holiday celebration? Your happiness will be everlasting if you invest in a Buick, because it has those assets that insure long life. The new Buick body is so well built, the four wheel brakes make it dependable in every need, inspiring confidence in their ability to meet the demand you make upon them. It is easily apparent that those who drive Buicks love fine things—and temper their purchases with a keen judgment of values.

Shawls Gain Prominence.

People have reported that the shawls were going out of style, that is, those said persons who sit over some bridge table and direct the styles in New York from some little secluded spot in Nebraska—However say so, the report is false because Dame Fashion reports that the shawl is becoming more popular than ever. In the place of the straight scarf, comes a tiny challis scarf, really a miniature shawl printed in crimson flowers with wool fringe. In Paris the very latest vogue is a big printed handkerchief plaited and hung like a jabot to be worn with tailored suits and sweaters.

Lincoln's Gift Shops.

For a city the size of Lincoln it is evident that it possesses unusual gift shops. Many clever suggestions are given the Christmas shopper in the way of accessories for milady's desk or boudoir. Many cute clocks, vases, lamps, books, ink wells and personal articles such as "nighties," dressing robes, and negligees are seen which are so irresistible.

Furs—Furs.

Furs were never so widely in vogue as at the present time. Everyone wears some sort of pelt, precious or otherwise, smartly cut or less so. As a matter of fact there are some marvelously attractive furs of a distinctly common origin, dressed, dyed and manipulated to resemble their aristocratic nearkin, and which make a fashion appeal to women of good taste and of style pretension.

This winter there is no one color that dominates the fur world. Black is still considered exceedingly smart, brown is liked because it is most flattering to women of all ages, gray is advocated by the youthful, whose fresh complexions and slender lines can advantageously affect neutral colors. In addition to black, the brown and the gray furs, there are any number of oddly dyed pelts that are shades or tones of the browns and grays and white is in greater evidence than for several seasons.

SPECIAL ACTION BY ASSEMBLY TO SECURE DIVORCE

James and Wealthy Jane Clark January 13, 1860. Jennie and James A. Higgins were divorced by legislative enactment January 11, 1861, Mary and J. N. Burton November 4, 1858, R. E. and Mary Case January 12, 1860, and William H. and Juliette Lyman January 11, 1861.

The brief, dry acts "dissolving the bonds of matrimony" are rather elongated and embellished in the case of Mary and J. N. Burton. To their divorce is added the fact that Mary Burton may "retain possession of her infant child, begotten in marriage with the said J. N. Burton" and "This act shall in all respects have the same force and effect upon and between the said parties as the decree of any competent tribunal in the premises would, had the same been brought before it."

KINDNESS FINDS A FERTILE FIELD

fidence, and in these cases I have told about, was able to get at the bottom of their trouble.

"When you can convince a patient that the trouble is within themselves, that their head is not quite as it should be, then they have a chance for recovery for they understand what they must do. How long any of them will stay sane is not known. They may live the rest of their life as sane and happy as can be, or some little thing may drive them back again."

Dr. Griffiths says that the patients will take Professor Stuff's departure in different ways. Some of them will be very angry and blame someone for his absence. They will believe that some one who has a grudge against them has taken this way to spite them. Others will feel sad about it, and will not act natural for days, and still others will know that he is gone, but will not be able to understand anything about it.

It will be twenty-one years next Easter since Professor Stuff began his work at the hospital and as Dr. Griffiths has said, he has missed very few Sundays, and those were during his vacations.

He has seen many changes. Nurses and doctors have come and gone, some of the patients have gone, and there are always new ones coming in. There have been new buildings; new, more modern equipment has replaced some of the makeshifts of older days, and one of the greatest changes of all has been in the chapel building.

It is an unusually attractive building on the inside. Its walls and ceiling are painted in attractive light colors, and the windows are very chapel-like.

The chapel answers all purposes. The floor is waxed and the room is used for dancing on a designated night during the week. And it is also used for moving pictures now and then.

What the patients will do now without their beloved friend is not known, but every effort will be made to get someone who will be as kind and as understanding as possible.

University Notes

"Spelling-Manipulation and Present-Day Advertising," a study of manipulated spelling in coinage of trade names and in popular advertising, by Dr. Louise Pound of the department of English of the university, appears in "Dialect Notes," the publication of the American Dialect society. Dr. Pound undertakes defense of the employment of curious spelling by the advertiser on the basis of its psychological effect in attracting attention, and prophesies that the reflex influence of the spelling reform movement may have greater influence than when the movement was at its height, and suggests that the language of advertising may have influence upon the standard language.

Few people seem to realize that the real work of the orchestral conductor is in the preparation, the rehearsal of the music. Of course in very intricate compositions the players are grateful for the skilled help of the keen musical mind and the accurate baton of the master conductor, but in a great many instances where the work has been prepared with great care, or where the players know the intention of the conductor, the baton is largely unnecessary.

Seidl, the great conductor, used to delight in sitting down and hearing his orchestra play by itself without a conductor. Mendelssohn did much of the same thing. It is said that he would seldom beat more than the first section of sixteen measures of a movement from a symphony or an overture, and then would put down his baton, take a comfortable seat and enjoy the work, applauding with the hearers.

Maurice Ravel, the famous French composer, is of the belief that the origin of jazz music is not alone attributable to the American negro, but that the English and Scotch people had something to do with it, according to an Associated Press dispatch from London. Whoever started it, those composing it in America today have the approval of M. Ravel.

"The best jazz is written by good musicians and contains the essential harmonies," he said to interviewers who sought his opinion on the "Banana School" of music when he arrived in London to conduct a special symphony orchestra in a festival of his own compositions.

"Melodies that are popular ought not to be ridiculed,' he continued. "You may be assured that when popular music becomes national there is nothing artificial about it."

M. Ravel said that next year he was going to America to accept invitations to conduct orchestras in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

Bright New Ambulance Ready to Rush the Injured Cats and Dogs To Lincoln's Animal Hospital —Picture by MacDonald.

A picture of the new ambulance, which is used by the Humane society to gather up the invalid cats and dogs. Occasionally a stray dog or cat gets to ride in it too, and has a home at the society headquarters until they are called for.

Cat-and-dog land is all agog!

Every little dog and every little cat has heard of the brand new ambulance which the animal hospital has equipped for no other reason than to make little canine and feline patients the more comfortable on their trip to the hospital.

All the gossip now is about the old ambulance and its shortcomings. Many a little dog and cat can remember the jiggiety-joggiety ride to the hospital in the rickety old car that sputtered all the way there about the injustice of imposing upon the aged.

And the little patients can remember how they bounced up and down over every street car track and crossing, and how they would almost as soon die and be done with it, as to suffer all the agonies of that ride.

Upper and Lower Berths.

But now all is changed. A brand new, shiny, and fully equipped ambulance for dogs and cats has taken the place of the rickety old machine, and the ambulance passengers ride along in ease.

There are two sections to this ambulance, an upper and a lower. The small dogs and cats ride in the upper berth, and the larger animals in the lower section. The upper division is all screened in so the patients can not fall out and with the help of a few old quilts and gunny sacks, the beds are made fairly soft.

A dog has the distinction of being the first patient to ride in the ambulance, although he didn't live to bask in his glory. It was a bad case of ptomaine poisoning, and the dog was taken to the hospital from Twenty-third and Washington streets. He died a short time after reaching the hospital.

The next case was really not a case for the ambulance, but it served in the capacity of a hearse for once, for the dog was dead. It had been run over by an automobile and was dead when the ambulance reached the spot.

Care for Stray Dogs.

There have been several cats and any number of dogs cared for since the ambulance has been in existence and most of them recover and are taken home again.

Sometimes this vehicle is used to gather up stray dogs and cats that various people phone in about. They are taken to the Humane society and stay there until some one calls for them, or are kept there and later sold or given away.

The Humane society is the animal hospital, where the little animals are taken and cared for when sick, for a very small fee, and then returned when convalescent. And don't believe for one moment the cats and dogs do not enjoy themselves, for they do, and those in charge of the work at the Humane society say that many times the animals do not want to leave, and they are not the least unhappy, while they are there.

Sometimes when it is found there is no chance for recovery the dogs and cats are cholorotormed or killed in a manner to save them from too much suffering.

But nevermore will the little animals worry about the ride to the hospital, for the new ambulance has done away with bumps, and solid comfort is the order of the day.

The marriage of Miss Lena Amend to George Krieger of Detroit, Mich., took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Amend, 1331 South Ninth street. Mr. Amend is a brother of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, made on the straight simple lines, draped at the side. A band of orange blossoms held her veil in place, and her bouquet was of pink roses with a shower of sweet peas.

Miss Alice Horst as maid of honor wore orchid taffeta made with a bodice effect, and carried Ophelia roses. The little flower girl, Lucile Amend, a niece of the bride, carried rose petals in a wicker basket, strewing them in the path of the bride. She wore a frock of pink organdie with lace ruffles.

Mr. and Mrs. Krieger left immediately after the ceremony, and will make their home in Detroit.

MYSTERY AT RIALTO

Mystery and melodrama, beloved by all of us in spite of what we may say, holds sway at the Rialto theatre this week. The play is "Red Lights" and the posters show a Pullman car hanging over an embankment and a man leaping from the platform to something so far below that it is entirely out of the picture. A voice of warning, a face at the window, strange incidents in the private Pullman car occupied by a beautiful woman, a cloaked woman, a murder and mystery, mystery. It's all solved in the end of course to everybody's satisfaction but the interim between the first excitement and the final explanation is as packed with thrills as a high explosive. Marie Provost, Johnny Walker, Raymond Griffith, Alice Lake and others carry along the story in convincing fashion. "Red Lights" ought to pack the house.

"LAWFUL LARCENY"

"Lawful Larceny," one of the most eagerly awaited releases of this season, will be shown at the Lyric theatre all his week. A production by the director of "The Glimpses of the Moon," "Robin Hood" and other screen successes, is bound to be an attractive picture and when we read that the cast includes Hope Hampton, Nita Naldi, Lew Cody and Conrad Nagle we are doubly sure it will be an enjoyable evening—or afternoon. It is the story of a faithful wife, her husband, a modern Cleopatra and there you have it—a triangle or rectangle or whatever it is but because it is well handled by capable people it is universally declared to be a good picture.

"BURN 'EM UP BARNES"

If you like a racing picture don't fail to see "Burn 'Em Up Barnes" at the Colonial theatre all this week. If you don't like such a picture—but you do, so what's the use of discussing the matter. Combine Johnny Hines, sometimes better known as Torchy, and a lot of irrepressable youth and a love story and one of the most thrilling races on screen record and you have a little idea of what the show will be like. The story isn't altogether new, the speed mad son of an indulgent millionaire father—we wonder if the screen will ever run out of millionaire fathers—is suddenly put out of his father's home and will to make his own way in the world. Of course he does it, at a tremendous speed too— and there's your thrills and sobs and laughs.

GRAND OPERA—MADAME BUTTERFLY—ORPHEUM WEDNESDAY NIGHT, DECEMBER 5

The Lincoln engagement of the San Carlo Grand Opera company will take place Wednesday evening, December 5, at the Orpheum theatre, the opera being Puccini's immortal masterpiece of oriental love and passion, "Madame Butterfly." Of this exquisite musical spectacle, Puccini spoke as follows after its first representation in New York at the Metropolitan opera house on February 11, 1907:

"I like 'Madame Butterfly' the best of all my operas. It is the one which gave the most happiness in creating, and I believe it to be the one in which whatever originality I may be said to possess, is most evident."

Lincoln is to have a rare privilege in the local presentation of "Butterfly." Mme. Tamaki Miura, the most celebrated livin interpreter of the role of Cio-Cio-San, will sing the part here. She is a native Japanese, and no one understands better than she how to put the real oriental flavor into the subtle character of the pathetic little cherry-blossom girl. Her presentation is absolutely unique, and keeps one in a constant state of wonder and admiration throughout the evening's performance. She will be supported here hy a brilliant cast, complete chorus and orchestra, and magnificent scenic investure and colorful costumes, imported specially from Japan by Mme. Miura.

Screen Siftings

Hollywood In Mourning—All Hollywood is in mourning for Dorothy Phillips' director-husband, Allan Holubar, who died last week after a very brief illness from pneumonia.

Veteran of the Screen—William V. Mong, character actor who has just finished the role of Pedro in "Thy Name is Woman," has played his even hundreth part in screen dramas.

Screen Writers Cooperate—Original screen writers trained by the Palmer Photoplay corporation wrote "The Judgment of the Storm," "Unguarded Gates" and "Lost" which are being released by the company within the next two months. The usual process of adaptation was reversed in "The Judgment of the Storm" from the film of which Roy Mason wrote a full length novel being published by Doubleday, Page & Co. The productions were made at the Ince studios and feature Lloyd Hughes, Lucille Ricksen, George Hackathorne and Myrtle Stedman.

Zane Gray Director—"The Call of the Conyon" was filmed under the direction of the author of the novel, Zane Gray, in its original locale. The railroad station at Flagstaff, Ariz., the picturesque Weatherford hotel, and Lolamai lodge in Oak Creek Canyon. "To the Last Man," the first Zane Gray production by Paramount, was "shot" in the Tonto Pasin in Arizona 200 miles from a railroad.

Beauty Is Rewarded—Clara Bow, 17-year-old Brooklyn high school girl who a few months ago won a beauty contest, and who was rewarded with a small part in "Down to the Sea in Ships" has in her third picture, "Black Oxen" been given the heavy role of Janet Oglethorpe.

Youthful Movie Star—Ben Lyon, First National player recently brought to the west coast for several pictures including the male lead in "The Swamp Angel" opposite Colleen Moore, is only 22 years old although he started as an extra at the Fort Lee studios in the east, in "atmosphere" for a society picture.

Moore Plays Lead—Owen Moore is playing the leadin grole in "Torment" for Maurice Tourneur, having finished "Her Temorporay Husband" with John McDermott as director.

Busy In Algers—Edwin Carewe, First National producer-director, is about in Algiers, or close by, ready to film "A Son of the Saraha." He left Hollywood nearly a month ago, and sailed on the Majestic.

No Big Splurge—Associated First National through General Manager Richard A. Rowland is denying a report that it will spend $3,500,000 on film productions in the next two months. "On the contrary, we are in full sympathy with Famous Players in their retrenchment and we are spending no more than what our contract require us to spend," he says.

Plays Dual Role—Gloria Swanson will appear as a boy for the second time in her career in "The Humming Bird," being filmed at Paramount's Long Island studio. Her first appearance was i n the old days of Mack Sennett comedies. In fact, in this picture she has a dual role that of the boy and of the boy posing at times as a girl in his activities as leader of a gang of apaches in the Paris underworld.

Long Working Day—These ten and three quarters hours represent Nita Naldi's working day: leave for studio 7:30, arrive 8. Hour dressing and make-up, work on set until noon. Half hour posing for portraits; thirty minutes for lunch; back at 1 and work to 5; forty-five minutes to remove make-up and change back to street clothes. Home at 6:15 p. m.

Billie Dove Marries—Irvin Willat, who is directing Zane Gray stories, has just taken as his bride Miss Billie Dove, leading lady with Tom Mix and other stars.

Every woman who is a member of the league is eligible for the contest which closes January 12, and the condition is made that books and pamphlets in the lists submitted must be trustworthy as to facts and "must not contain propaganda for any cause." Each title must be followed by the name of the publisher and the price, and a list may be of any length provided only that the total cost of the books in one bibliography is twenty-five dollars and that in the other it does not run to a penny more than fifty.

"Every girl for Everygirl's" is the slogan adopted by the camp fire presidents' club in their drive to get subscriptions for Everygirl's magazine, the campfire girls' own magazine. Enough copies of Everygirl's have been secured so that every campfire girl may have one to read and find out what the magazine is like. The subscription price is one dollar a year but if a campfire subscribes 100 per cent the price becomes seventy cents. Everyone who knows about the magazine is enthusiastic and many of the girls are asking their parents to give it to them for a Christmas present. Special decoration will be given to girls subscribing before Christmas, and to the camps that subscribe 100 per cent special honors to be worn on ceremonial gowns will be given. If you have not secured your quota of magazines and subscription blanks call at the campfire office and get them. Mary Hay is the first and only wife of Richard Barthelmess, so far as I know. They have a alittle baby girl. Address Dick in care of Inspiration Pictures Corp., New York City. John Walker may be reached through F. B. O., New York City. Thomas Meighan and Lila Lee are both Famous Players-Lasky stars, Hollywood, Cal.

The cast for "The Broken Wing" is: "Philip Marvin," Kenneth Harlan; "Inez Villera," Marian Cooper; "Capt. Innocencio, Dos Sentos," Walter Long; "Celia," Miss du Pont; "Sylvester Cross," Richard Tucker; "Bassillo," Edwin J. Brady; "Quichita," Evelyn Selbie; "Villera," Ferdinand Munier.

Dear Movie Editor—It surely made me feel good to know someone missed "Dinty." I have had it in my mind to write this department about several things that I wanted to know about, so "Blue Bell"" here goes.

Would not you like to have "The Christian" come to a Lincoln movie house? I know of a number who have waited long and anxiously for its appearance. Have asked the manager several times why he does not have it, and he always puts me off with a half-promise, and yet it does not come. Fans, how did you like the pictures that were to have been Wallie Reid's? "Mr. Billings spends His Dime' with Walter Hi'ers. Hiers always is good, but he is in a class by himself, and while he has the merry mischievous personality, he cannot take Wallie's place.

Then, there was Jack Holt in "A Gentleman of Leisure." How Wallie would have romped through that, but it seems to give Jack a pain to smile. It does me to see him. He also gave "Nobodys Money," which was written for Wallace Reid. Richard Dix played in two that were to have been Reid's, and we like him, but it is positively painful to imagine him in Reids place.

Another thing that has been on my mind, "why do we not have "Robin Hood?" It has been playing in small towns, but not here. Played at no advance in price, and I was told that the manager of the picture house here said they wanted him to show it at an advance.

May I tell you how much I too like Theodore Kosloff? I have seen in "The Mail" where others complimented him. In "To Have and To Hold" he nearly "stole the picture" from Bert Lytell. He surely is the polished actor, and another that I like is Ramon Navarro, whom we have only seen twice, in "The Prisoner of Zenda," and "Trifling Women. Hope we soon see "Scaramouche"" with him leading. I just love Betty Compson and Miriam Cooper, like Seena Owen, but think she is the saddest looking person.

I thank you, Blue Bell and others.—DINTY.

I'm surely glad to hear from you again, too Dinty. Hope you will not desert us for so long a time next time.

You remember, do you not, that The Christian" has been here once—at the Lyric, the week of March 5. Did you miss it then? There was quite a little comment about it at the time. Some of the fans did not like Richard Dix in the role.

Dont know about "Robin Hood." There are a great many fans here who seem to want to see the picture in spite of the fact that it's sort of old now. Guess you will have to get up a petition, or else look forward to seeing Doug in "The Thief of Bagdad," which they say is to be far superior to "Robin Hood."

The motion picture producers are working now to put pictures on a more "safe and sane" basis that will cut down the enormous cost of production, and in doing that, will also cut the admission prices. When you consider the large amount that it takes for "overhead"" expenses at the theatres—lights, orchestra, specialties, and theatre rent, and add to that the big price that is paid to get the films, I suppose the increase is merited. However, when there are so many good pictures to see, it does count up like everything to try to take them all in—and it's hard to pass them by. Let us hope that the "shut down" of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation of ten weeks will accomplish the desired results.

Dear Movie Editor—I need a few pictures to complete my Movie book, and wonder if you would be so kind as to send me one of Mary Pickford, Rodolph Valentino, Ramon Novaro and Leatrice Joy. Thank you very much for your space and trouble, I remain,—ANXIOUS.

I would be glad to grant your request ANXIOUS, but the stars have been neglecting me in the matter of pictures lately. They must be putting all their money into Christmas shopping, and doing it early.

Dear Movie Editor—I wonder if you would let another movie fan into your charming circle?

Will you tell me the address of the following actors and actresses: Conway Tearle, Harold Lloyd, Thomas Meighan, Charlie Chaplin, Antonio Moreno, Pola Negri, Norma Talmdge, Mry Pickford, Billie Burke, Pearl White and Betty Compson? Will they send pictures if you write to them? My little sister is making a collection and I'd like to help her enlarge it.—BETH.

There is always room for one more, and I'm glad to nave you enter within the magic portals.

Address Conway Tearle at the Los Angeles Athletic club. Antonio Moreno would receive letters sent there also. Pola Negri, Thomas Meighan and Betty Compson could all be reached in care of Famous Players-Lasky, Hollywood, Cal. Charlie Chaplin's studio is at 1416 La Brea Ave., L. A. Norma Talmadge has her studio at Los Angeles, and Pearl White is somewhere in Europe, but a letter sent in care of Pathe, New York would be forwarded. Billie Burke lives in New York City.

Most of the stars mail their photographs out upon request. Be sure and remember the postage because now that the salaries are being reduced, many of the stars will feel quite poverty stricken until they can adjust themselves to the "cut."

Dear Movie Editor—As I have written to you before and secured the information I wanted, I am coming after more.

How old are the following: Pola Negri, Jane Nova, Alma Tell and Norma Talmadge? What is Irene Castle's next play? How old is she? Is she still a Mrs? What color hair and eyes has Gloria Swanson and Betty Compson. Betty is surely a good actress, don't you think? Tell me all you can about Richard Dix.

I must close for I will leave some space for some other fans. I still remain—DOLLIE.

Pola Negri was born in 1899, and Jane Novak is three years older. Alma Tell is also in the early twenties, and Norma Talmadge is twenty-six. Just at present Miss Castle is not making pictures. Don't think she has made any since "Slim Shoulders" and "French Heels." She is thirty, and has been married twice. Her first husband is dead, you remember, and she's separated from Mr. Tremain.

Gloria has brown hair and blue eyes. Betty Compson is a clever little girl. Her hair is light brown and her eyes are blue.

Richard Dix was born Peter Brimm, in St. Paul, Minn., twenty-nine years ago. He was educated at the St. Paul high school and the University of Minnesota, and started his career on the stage in "The Hawk" with Faversham. He played lead in stock in Los Angeles for two and one-half years before becoming a motion picture actor. His screen debut was made under the First National banner in "Not Guilty." He soon became a Goldwyn star, and was with that company until Famous Players-Lasky contracted for his services. He is a six-footer, weighs 178 and has brown hair and eyes.

Dear Movie Editor—I am really ashamed for not writing sooner, and thanking you for the pictures you sent me, for it was certainly nice, and now, here I am begging for some more.

What I want to know is, how old is Charles De Roche, what color eyes an dhair has he and is he married? What color hair and eyes have Richard Dix and Johnnie Walker, and will you please send me a picture of them?

Who took the part of Don in "Kindred of the Dust," and who were his sisters?

How old is Huntley Gordon and is he mairried? What is the color of his eyes and hair?

Well I guess this is all for this time, and I promise to write sooner next time, I remain as ever—FRENCHIE.

Mr. De Roche was born in 1897 with brown hair and eyes. I am under the impression that he brought a wife with him.

Richard and John both have brown hair and eyes.

Ralph Graves was "Donald" in "Kindred of the Dust." Eugenie Besserer and Elizabeth Waters were the sisters, Elizabeth and Hane.

Mr. Gordon was born in 1883 with light brown hair and blue eyes. I suspect there is a Mrs. Gordon.

I'd like to send you another picture now, but have none at all. There should be some in soon, I think.

Dear Movie Editor—I have been one of your column readers for a long time. Is Dick Hatton a new star? How old is he, and what is his weight? Who is his leading lady in "Fearless Dick" and what is his address?

Where does Rodolph Valentino live? What is his age, weight and color of hair and eyes? How many reels was "Blood and Sand?"

Is Ralph Lewis still playing in pictures? How old is he? What is the color of his eyes, and what is his weight? How many reels was "Westbound Limited," where was the picture made?

What is Hoot Gibson's next picture? Where was he born? How old is he?

Where does George O'Hara live? Who is his leading lady in the second series of "Fighting Blood?"

That is all Thank you very much.—OREN, Aurora, Neb.

Mr. Hatton has been in pictures for some time. He is shy about his age. He weighs 140, and may be reached at the Los Angeles Athletic club. Don't have the leading lady in "Fearless Dick," because I don't have the cast for the picture.

Just now Rodolph's home is where he hangs his hat. He's touring Europe at present. He is twenty-eight years old and has dark hair and eyes. Weighs 154. There were about seven reels in 'Blood and Sand" as I remember it.

Ralph Lewis is busy every day making pictures for F. B. O. release. He was born in 1892 with brown hair and gray eyes. He weighs 189, and is five feet ten inches tall. "West Bound Limited" was filmed in the west. It is 7,500 feet long, about seven reels.

Hoot Gibson's current release is "The Extra Man." His next will be "Hook and Ladder." He is a product of Nebraska, having been born in Tekamah, in 1892.

George O'Hara is filming the "Fighting Blood" series in the west. Louise Lorraine is the leading lady in his second series.

Screen Siftings

Old World Calling—The Old World is reported to be calling to Hollywood directors. Wallace Worsley, who made "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," is sought by a French syndicate who wants him to produce "Les Miserables," the other Victor Hugo masterpiece. The late Allan Holubar had a call from Rome he might have accepted if his four-picture Metro contract had not prevented it.

Sails for Tibet—W. F. Alder, author and explorer, is sailing February 15 for Tibet, where he and Oscar Apfel are considering the making of a movie drama in Tibetan settings. Apfel has just completed his contract directing for Metro. Alder originally planned to take travel pictures. Apfel made two pictures in continental Europe last year.

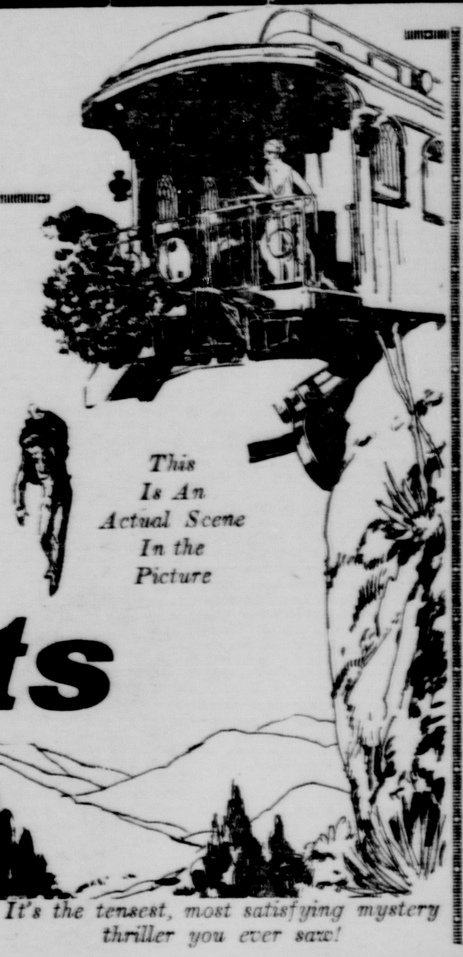

Turns Down Movies—Here's a girl who didn't want to get into the movies: Dorothy Arzner, script girl at the Lasky studios. She was offered good money to take a role in James Cruse's "To the Ladies," which called for a comely, efficient young business woman. "I have no illusions about the movies," she said. "I'll stick to my job as script clerk."

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

The Flapper's Methods Are Said to be Successful—She Has Her Choice of Men While the Old-Fashioned Girl Is Without One Beau—"Petting" Is Not More Common Than In the Past, Just More Open—Sense of Humor Is Great Gift and a Great Temptation — Other Questions Discussed.

Would Be a Flapper.

Dear Minerva: May I say a word on this flapper question. I am a girl of flapper age, but alas I am not a flapper. I say "alas" because I find that I am not nearly as popular as the girls are who are of the regular flapper type. And moreover that it is the so-called flappers who are marrying, too. Whereupon I think I shall reform and become a flapper as soon as I can get results.

You see it is this way with me. I came to Lincoln from a small town two years ago. I was raised in an old-fashioned way and I was so shocked at the girls when I first came here. I showed that I was surprised and shocked, which is an awfully good way to get left alone. So I have been left very much alone and have done a lot of thinking. And I have decided that the girls who bob their hair and use slang and are free and easy in their ways are just as nice and often nicer than the more reticent ones who hang back and criticise. They are the up-to-date, lively girls and naturally have a corner on all the men. And they marry them, too.

So I bobbed my hair last week and am much improved in appearance thereby. And I'm going to imitate these popular girls just as well as I can and as soon as I can become. One of Them.

A. I don't see how anyone could blame you for wanting to imitate the hard-boiled young things when they manage to appropriate all the eligible males for themselves. The competition for men has always been keen and never more so than now. And if it requires bobbing the hair and assuming the devil-may-care attitude of the modern flapper to attract the modern men, the the girl who does not adopt this pose is pretty slow.

After all, it is only a pose and as harmless as all the other poses of past ages which girls have taken up and later dropped.

There was the time when all the girls had "secret engagements," generally to two or three men at a time, these "engagements" being excuses for the socalled "privileges" which were otherwise denied the men. The thing became a code and the men knew that if they wanted to be "petted" (although they called it spooning in those days) all they needed to do was to come to a secret understanding with the girl, call it an engagement, and the caresses were his. As for the engagement maybe it took and maybe it didn't. More often it didn't.

One advantage that I see in the flapper system is the advantage it gives the homely girl. Take the girl of slight physical charm and she can give her hair a distinctive bob and dress in an individual style and if she has sufficient pep and originality and daring she can be more popular by far than the peaches and cream beauty who lacks the "punch" of personality and pep.

There are probably a good many "petting parties" as are so much advertised by the critics. But I dare say there are no more nowadays than there were in the olden days, only they are less secretive about it. And I do know this, that there are more men and girls who are just good pals, sharing in athletics and social pleasures, in enjoyment of art, literature, the dance and of life in general, without the stifling addition of sentimentality.

Nowadays the proposal and the engagement are not likely to be the formal affairs they once were. But they are much more likely to "stay put." The man and maid drift together in a comradely, chummy sort of manner, later they decide in conference that they are mutually in love and so they marry. The most unfortunate part of the whole system is the ease with which they may break this marriage if it doesn't happen to suit.

But that is quite aside from the point, which is that the modern flappers do get results in the way of admiration and a large circle of men from which to choose husbands, they have learned to get by that hitherto insurmountaable barrier, lack of beauty, and are really not such bad sorts after all.

Danger of Humor.

Dear Minerva: My husband is a very witty man. He can be the most entertaining man I have ever known when he chooses to be so. But unfortunately, he generally prefers to use his humor to hurt my feelings or those of someone else. He makes so many jokes about little failings or peculiarities of mine that I am always just around the corner from crying when we are out in company. I try not to be so sensitive and do manage to conceal it so he and others do not know how much they hurt me. But it hurts just the same. Sometimes I wish I had married a stupid man rather than one who is so brilliant but so unfeeling.

What can I do about it? Should I be sarcastic in turn or just swallow all he has to say meekly and continue to cover up my haurts?—Patient Griselda.

A. If you attempt to retort in kind, you will give the appearance of squabbling, than which nothing is more unpleasant. So there is nothing left for you to do but hide your emotions, and as far as possible, conquer them. Then also you can appeal to your husband's chivalry and discontinue his jokes at your expense.

It is unfortunate that the person with a sense of humor so often uses this wit in a sharp, malicious manner. A sense of humor is a great gift and a great temptation. It takes a certain amount of intelligence to be able to make fun of things, but it takes a grea deal more intelligence, and character also to know when not to make fun of things.

It is possible to make almost anything or anyone look ridiculous. Anything is susceptible to ridicule.

But it is decidedly poor taste for man to use his knowledge of his wife's follies and foibles by making jokes at her expense. Certainly no bystander enjoys such humor.

This is an age when humor is greatly respected and the humorist is most likely to be spoiled by over-appreciation.

William Lyon Phelps says on this subject "A sense of humor is almost invariably accompanied by common sense and there can be too much of both. Common sense and a sense of humor save a man from making himself ridiculous, but they often keep him from making himself anything else.

And again:

"The great leaders of thought, the great mystics, have not always been conspicuous for their humor; they triumphed over the last fear, the fear of being laughed at."

Jane Austen said "The wisest and best of men, nay the wisest and best of their actions, may be rendered ridiculous by a perso whose first object in life is a joke."

The Reception Room.

Dear Minerva: We are building a new home and I am puzzled over one point. Is it good form to have the front door right into the room which is actually in use by the family as the living room? Or should not some more formal room be provided for the reception of guests? We cannot afford a very elaborate house and had planned to have the large living room, the dining room, kichen and a large sun parlor at the rear end of the living room, on the first floor. But I wonder if I should not change the plans and have a formal reception room in the front perhaps sacrificing the sun room at the rear. What is your advise?—New Housewife.

A. The formal reception room is not the necessity that it once was. Most modern homes have the reception room most intimate and cozy and in the small home the family living room is used also for the receiving of guests. Of course it is often a convenience to have a smaller, more private room in which to entertain friends. But I believe your sun room could serve such a purpose. If the living room was occupied by members of the family and you wished to have a personal talk with a caller it would be very courteous and charming to invite her to the cheerful sunroom at the rear end of the living room. I am sure you will not feel the need of a cold, formal receiving room of any sort in your small home.

It is much nicer to be invited into a room that actually is lived in than into the old-style form of room, the stiff, dressed-up room that suggests no activity other than that of receiving callers.

When to Serve Crackers.

Dear Minerva: Is it proper to serve crackers with the soup course? Or with the salad?

Also when a friend invites you to have lunch with her at a down-town tea room, is it proper for you to take the check and pay for the two lunches.—Puzzled.

A. It is not considered good form to serve any sort of crackers with the soup course at dinner. If any sort of starchy accompaniment is desired, place some toasted croutons in the soup. If you like, crackers or wafers of some sort may be served with the salad course, but should not be accompanied by butter. The really best place for wafers or crackers is with cheese at the close of the meal. They are then passed with the cheese, taken from the plate with the fingers and eaten of course with the fingers. They are not buttered but when eaten are spread with the cheese. The entire wafer is not spread, just a bit of cheese is laid on a piece of wafer by means of the knife, the cheese being taken to the mouth in this way.

If the friend invited you formally and definitely to have lunch with her, she expects to pay the bill and it is rude for you to offer to do so. If perhaps you and a friend lunch frequently together, it is proper for you to suggest that you make the lunches "dutch," but not to insist even on this.

Not Good Alone.

Dear Minerva: I have read your mail for several years and have always looked at it as a kid's joke, but I have decided to ask a question of atwo.

My wife and I parted some time ago, she is married again. I have not kept company since our parting, have been afraid that I could not find one whom I could trust, so I hve been spending my evenings in my room or going for a walk. I used to dance some, go to shows and to church, a church that does not believe in divorce.

Would I be doing wrong if I tried to get a companion so as to get some pleasure out of life or should I keep on as I have been doing?

My acquaintance among ladies of my age is very limited because I lived for just one.

Have been told that some cities have a get acquainted club, is there such here?

I am not a kid even if my hair is not gray but do not care for the younger set.

Hoping that this meets with your approval and you can give me an answer. I am, yours respectfully.—A. J.

P. S. Does a woman ever have this kind of a, life to live. I hope not.

A. It is not good for man to live alone. There is no get-acquainted club. But there are lodges which have social evenings at which men and women can get acquainted. And most of the churches have social evenings for such purposes. If you make known your wishes to get acquainted there are no doubt married women friends of yours who delight in match making, who can produce unmarried women for your acquaintance.

Are Human Beings.

Dear Minerva: I am a college girl and I spent the last summer waiting on tables in a summer resort hotel. It was a wonderfully interesting experience. Also profitable, considering tips, etc. Before this experience I had never given much thought to the girls who served me. Before my father died I travelled with him a great deal. I always treated the girls courteously, or hope I did. But I never thought of them as individuals. And that, I have discovered is the way with most people. They regard the people who serve them as a part of the machinery of the place and not as persons.

That is natural, I suppose. Yet if people would treat the girls who serve them as human beings it would make them a lot happier. In a little town the clerks and waitresses are usually treated more as human beings because they are well known to everyone. But in a city they get no personal notice whatever.

Wouldn't it be well for all of us to try to treat those who serve us a little more like human beings and a little less like machines? EDNA.

A. I believe however that there are some girls, at least in some lines of work, who prefer being treated like machines. At least I have known of girls who professed to dislike very much the personal touch from their customers and prefer to be regarded merely as a part of the furniture. All of their professional training is toward the end of training them to efficiency in their work and self effacement.

Questions Answered Briefly

To-Be: The bridegroom selects his best man, usually his closest friend, if not his brother. He asks the best man to secure railroad tickets, parlor car reservations and hotel accommodations a week or more in advance for the wedding journey, the bridegroom of course paying all these expenses. And he should be at the bridegroom's house with a motor car at least an hour before the time set for the marriage. He has the wedding ring, which he must hand over at the time designated in the ceremony and is entrusted with the clergyman's fee which is tendered after the ceremony. He sends the bridegroom's bags to the bride's house, then the bridegroom and best man drive to the church, or, if it is not a church wedding, to the bride's home. Bridegroom and best man are dressed alike, except that the bridegroom's boutonniere is more bridal in effect.

Edna: The blackheads may be forced out singly, but great care must be taken not to injure the delicate tissues of the skin and cause even greater blemishes. Try first to soften the skin by steaming and cold cream. Then if the blackheads are not lodged too deeply they will wash off easily.

Alice: "R. S. V. P." stands for the French equivalent to "Reply if you please."
